Defeat for Gun Amendments

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson's call for registration of all guns has been turned aside by two House votes that appeared to kill all hope for such legislation this session.

By surprising votes of nearly 2-to-1 the House Friday defeated registration amendments to a bill that would ban interstate mail order sales of rifles, shotguns and ammunition, plus over-the-counter sales to residents of nonadjacent states.

One amendment, offered by Rep. Jonathan B. Bingham, D-N.Y., would have required registration of all firearms. It lost by a standing vote of 172-68.

The other, sponsored by Rep. Robert McClory, R-Ill., would have required pistol registration only. It was turned back 168-89.

A final vote on the bill and on numerous pending amendments

Reveal Plans of $300,000 Town Building for Ulster

By ALBERT J. CAWEIN

The Town of Ulster has completed its study for the construction of a $300,000 town office building complex and highway department garage and the proposal will be presented for public perusal at an information meeting July 25 at 8 p.m. in Lake Katrine Grange Hall.

In the preliminary studies it has been determined that the project to be financed by bond issue would be amortized over a 30 year period, and would add $1.73 per $1,000 of assessed valuation to the town tax rate. The study also notes that the elimination of the cost of the present operation in makeshift, leased and rented buildings could reduce the tax rate addition to $1 per $1,000.

On Town Property

Thenew 56 by 129 foot town hall and 65 by 200 foot town garage would be constructed on town property along Neighborhood Road, Lake Katrine, near Route 209. The town hall would be of block and brick veneer construction with 6,248 square feet of space on the first floor at an estimated cost of $124,960. The basement would have 2,184 square feet with vault and storage room and is listed to cost $17,472.

The town highway department garage, also block and brick veneer will be 13,000 square feet plus a storage area and will cost $104,000.

The new facility, according to Town Supervisor Thaddeus Musialkiewicz, will provide large storage rooms for records and voting machines, a vault for vital statistics, deeds and records; a town clerk's office and reception room, offices for town tax collector, supervisor, planning board, building inspector, town justices, assessors, water department and a spare office for future expansion. There will also be a large meeting room and justice court, lavatories and supply room and a parking lot to accommodate 90 vehicles.

The highway department garage will have 20 stalls for rolling equipment, workshop, tool room, employees room and shower and superintendent's office. The garage is to be constructed on the same property some distance to the right of the proposed town hall.

Preparing Brochure

Supervisor Musialkiewicz said a brochure is being prepared and is expected to be printed in time for distribution to the public by the end of this week.

The Ulster supervisor said a series of photographs showing the existing facilities and indicating the handicaps town employees must overcome to operate town business are on display at the supervisor's office in the town post office.

The Ulster supervisor listed some of the unsatisfactory con-

2 Held for Assaulting Trooper on Thruway

By WALTER S. CLARK

A bizarre skirmish on the Thruway in the Greene County township of New Baltimore Friday night during which a state trooper was beaten with his service revolver and robbed after being shackled and threatened with death, was climaxed with the jailing of two New York City men on several felony charges.

Trooper Joseph W. Gallelli, 25, assigned to the Kingston barracks of Troop T, was the victim of the two assailants. He was treated at the Columbia Memorial Hospital in Hudson for a deep laceration of the left cheek and multiple bruises of the face and wrists.

Held in the Greene County jail without bail are Thomas Graham Howard, 35, an unemployed artist, of 31 Grove Street, Manhattan, and Donald Charles Elfe, 34, a goateed unemployed salesman, of 1845 Phelan Street, the Bronx. They are being held for first degree robbery, unlawful possession of a dangerous weapon, second degree assault.

Howard also is charged with possession of a dangerous drug, marijuana.

Arraigned before Catskill Town Justice George Carl, both men were committed to jail without bail pending a hearing and further investigation by state police.

State police officials gave this account:

On Night Patrol

Gallelli was on night patrol on the superway, riding alone in the police car and heading north near Cocksackie at about 9:30 p. m. Friday, when he spotted a slow moving car heading toward Albany. As the young trooper approached the car he noticed the motor was over heating and the car with the two men was stopped.

The trooper offered to get water for the radiator of the Pennsylvania registered vehicle. A pail of water was obtained and Gallelli handed it to one of the men. After the trouble appeared corrected with the automobile, the trooper asked Elfe, the driver of the car, for his license and registration for a routine check.

Elfe, it was reported, walked to the rear of the car, opened the trunk and produced his wallet containing the registration. At this time, Howard got out of the passenger side of the car and approached Gallelli with a .45 caliber revolver pointing at him.

"This is it, I'll kill you," said one of the men as Gallelli was held at gunpoint.

The trooper was forced to turn around with his back to the pair. He was handcuffed with his hands behind his back. His cuffs were used to shackle him. The trooper's wallet was taken from his pocket. His police shield was ripped from his blouse as his assailants pushed him into a wooded area some distance off the superhighway and then he was virtually thrown down an embankment.

The men drove north a short distance. Gallelli managed to crawl back to the police car.

Knocked Unconscious

Gallelli was hit on the face with a revolver several times. One blow knocked him unconscious and he lay prone on the side of the Thruway. The men then sped northward.

Sometime later the trooper regained consciousness. He again made his way to the police car and completed the signal which was a distress call over the police band. Within minutes several troopers arrived along with a maintenance crew.

The handcuffs were removed. Gallelli was rushed to the hospital in Hudson where he was treated.

Meanwhile, alarms were sent over the radio and state police teletype with a description of the car and the two Negroes provided by the injured trooper in his original distress call.

Sometime later, Trooper A. G. Clark of Albany spotted the car near the Berkshire spur. He forced the driver to stop. The men gave no resistance as they were held at gunpoint.

An official told a reporter later that Gallelli's wallet, service, revolver, police shield, ID card and other personal belongings were found in the Pennsylvania car.

Marijuana Found

Howard and Elfe were taken to the Claverack State Police station for questioning. Later they were turned over to Leeds State Police and questioned by BCI Investigator Joseph Valenti. Howard was found in possession of marijuana, authorities said. Both men were accused of having fully loaded revolvers in addition to other illegal equipment.

According to one state police official, Howard admitted under questioning that he assaulted two policemen in separate incidents in New York City in the past year. One assault took place during a demonstration in front of the United Nations building. The official said Howard is active in the Harlem unit of CORE.

Gallelli, who was the victim of the assault-robbery, on numerous occasions while on duty on the superhighway, has played the role of a good samaritan. This time the act wasn't appreciated and his life was in danger.

Very Little Difficulty At Honolulu Meeting

By FRANK CORMIER

HONOLULU (AP) — By all official accounts, President Johnson and South Vietnam's President Nguyen Van Thieu have had little difficulty reaching a meeting of minds during their brief Honolulu summit.

Officials from both countries said the two men and their top advisers had done such successful spadework for the conference that there was no need for extended conversations here.

Thieu announced he would tarry a bit in Hawaii to meet with newsmen after Johnson returns to the U.S. mainland.

Thieu, in a formal statement at the opening conference session Friday, said that of course his country hopes for a just and honorable peace at the conference table.

But he gave no indication, at least in that document, that he would favor a complete halt to bombing of North Vietnam. And a member of his party reaffirmed the fixed position of the Saigon government that it would never negotiate with the Viet Cong as a group, though it would listen to the views of any individuals from the other side who cared to air them.

Secretary of Defense Clark M. Clifford, in advance of the Honolulu talks, indicated a possible bombing halt and direct Saigon-Viet Cong negotiations would be among the topics to be explored by Thieu and Johnson.

Johnson and Thieu met privately for about an hour Friday morning at the hilltop command post of U.S. military forces in the Pacific, then went into larger group sessions and a working lunch that, altogether, took up half the day. In the evening they got together again at Johnson's borrowed seaside residence outside Honolulu.

Czechs Stall Kremlin

By JAMES O. JACKSON

PRAGUE (UPI)—Czechoslovakia's anti-Stalinist Communist leaders today stalled on a Kremlin bid for a showdown meeting in Eastern Europe's greatest crisis in a decade.

Party sources said the Czechs will not agree to meet the Soviet leaders at least until all Russian troops are out of this country.

Leonid I. Brezhnev, the Soviet Communist Party first secretary, and his comrades Friday sent word here they want a meeting in either Kiev or Lvov — both on Soviet soil — Monday or Tuesday with the Czechs.

Alexander Dubcek, the Czech party first secretary and leader of the democratic reform forces, has been criticized by the Kremlin as dangerous to Communist security, conferred with his aides late into Friday night. The sources said they tried to figure out just how to stall the session.

Avoid Trap

Sources close to Dubcek said the Czechs "hardly will accept the invitation" to what they consider a sort of bear trap.

Diplomatic observers said the Soviets want the meeting to give them a chance to pressure Dubcek to curtail if not halt his reform program.

The Russians delayed sending their invitation until after the Czech Communist Party central committee met Friday. Possibly they figured the central committee might rebel at Dubcek's defiance of the Soviet Union.

But the 110-member committee voted by acclamation to support Dubcek, who ousted Stalinist Czech leader Antonin Novotny from power eight months ago.

Czech party officials said resolutions, telegrams and other messages of support have flooded into Dubcek's office.

Troops Move Slowly

But eyes remained on the undisclosed number of Soviet troops, mostly motorized infantry, that remain in Czechoslovakia 20 days after the end of the east bloc war games for which they came. The Soviets have promised to have them out by Sunday but, according to Czech news reports, the Red Army caissons are rolling ever so slowly.

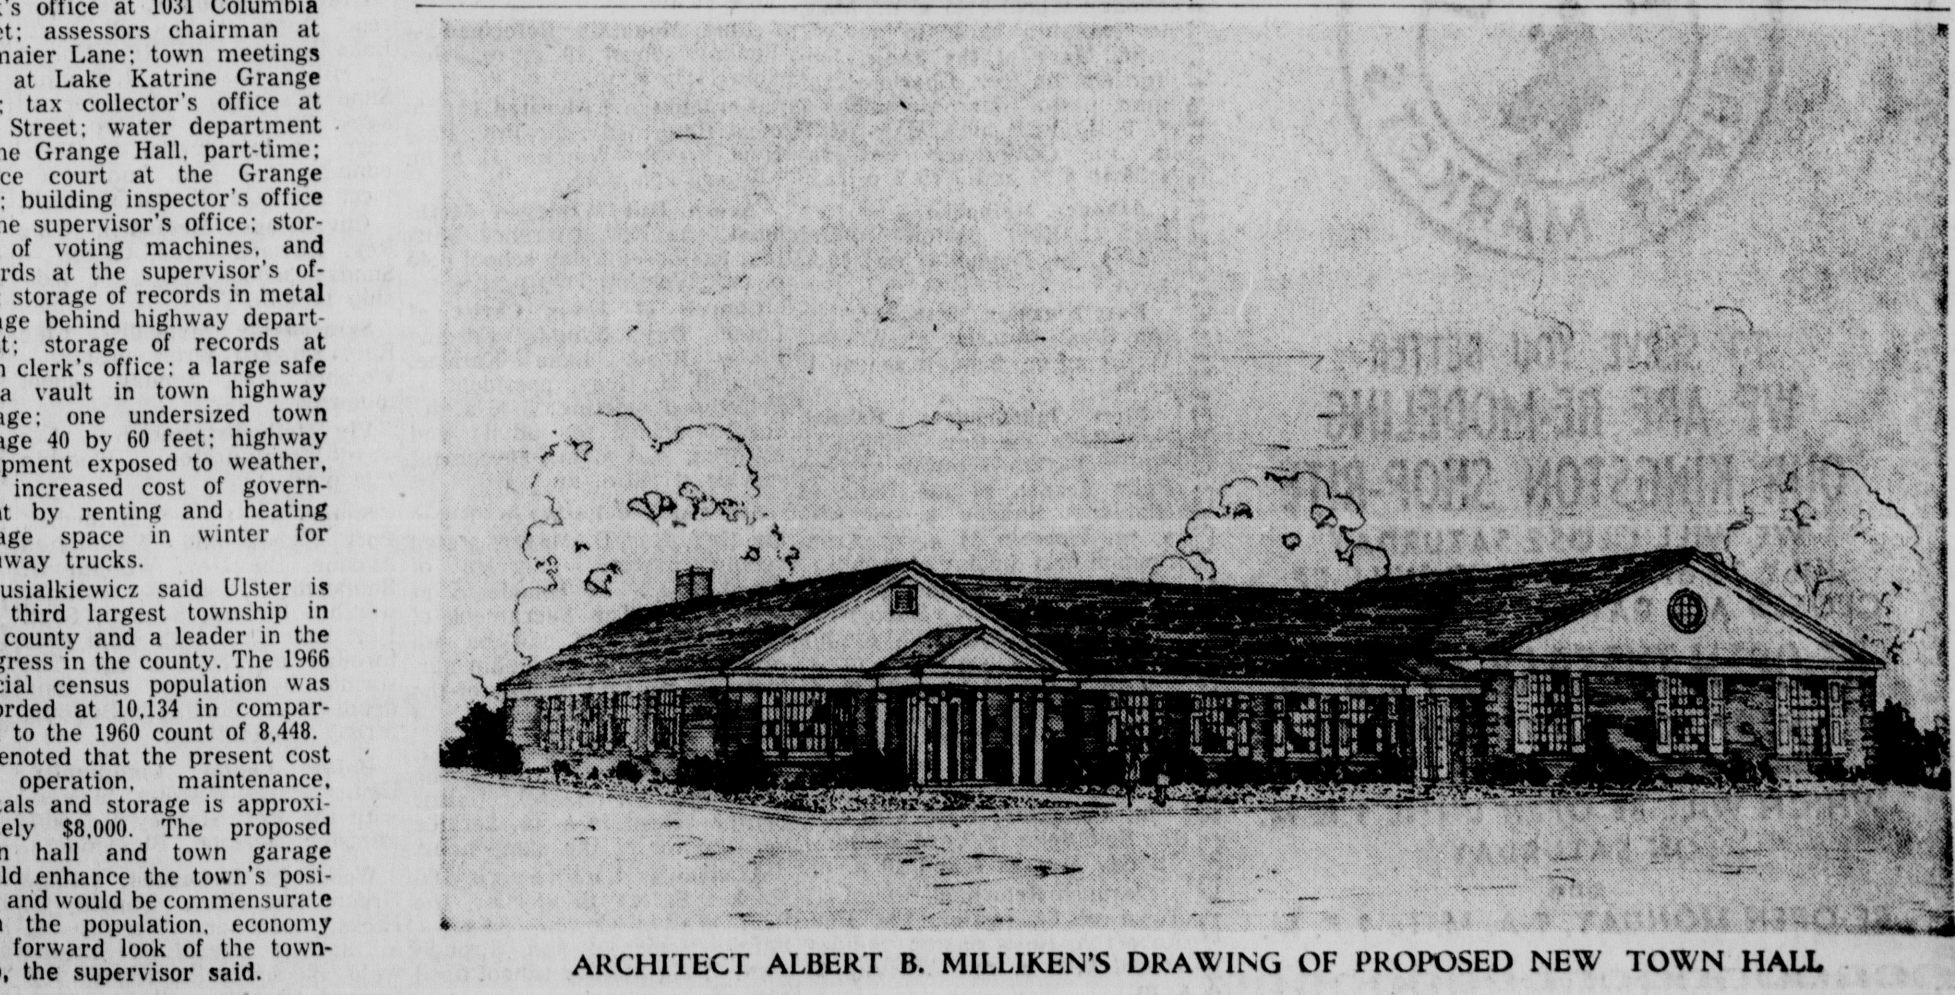

Diplomatic observers said the Soviet troop go-slow clearly is designed to keep pressure on Dubcek. The Soviets, joined by their hard line allies East Germany, Poland, Hungary and Bulgaria, have demanded Dubcek's regime put the shackles back on the newly free Czech press. In a joint letter they have demanded non-Communist groups be banned once more.

A heavy raid by U. S. B-52 bombers scared away Viet Cong guerrillas who set 39 manacled captives out as bait. Story on page 3.

Aides also held a series of small sessions on specific topics: Military, economic, diplomatic and so forth.

In his opening conference statement, Thieu quoted Johnson as saying it would be unacceptable to agree to "a fake solution and call it peace."

"Past experiences have shown that peace cannot be secured simply through the pledges and signatures of the aggressors," he said. "It has to be accompanied by effective international guarantees, credible to friends and foes alike."

The POWER of FAITH

by WOODIE ISHMAEL

Mary Moore, director of social services for the Hospital of the Holy Family, which is a division of the Catholic Medical Center in Brooklyn, has a courageous faith which she shares with others. Mary Moore has been blind since childhood despite eight operations. She made up her mind, nevertheless, to live a normal life and to find a career in service to others. Her first schooling was at the New York City Institute for the Education of the Blind. She received her bachelor degree in social service at Mount St. Vincent College and her masters degree from the Columbia School of Social Work.

Perhaps because of her own handicap, which she chooses to ignore, Mary Moore can listen with sympathy to those who need understanding and counsel and give them courage to face their own difficulties. Not only does she work in the hospital with the doctors and nurses but she goes into the homes to dispense her own brand of sympathetic assistance.

Of her blindness she says, "It is a source of assurance to the patients. It is God's way of getting me in contact with people and through people I know Him."

Paltz Professor To Be Sunday Guest

Overlook United Methodist Church will have as its guest speaker Sunday, 10 a. m., Dr. Robert J. Decker, professor of history and African studies at the State University College at New Paltz.

He has chosen as his topic, Just to Care, and is well qualified by background and experience to speak on missions in the overall theme of the special summer services, "To Open More Doors."

Born of missionary parents in Sierra Leone, Africa, Dr. Decker was educated at Marion College, Indiana, and at Indiana University. His career has included both teaching and student advisory positions in this country. With his wife and children he traveled to Africa where he spent six years as director of schools at the Methodist Mission in Katanga, a province of the ex-Belgian Congo. In 1959 he returned to the United States to become advisor to student government at Indiana University, and later director of student personnel and associate professor of Afro-Asian studies at the University of South Florida.

In 1963 he served as rector (president) of the Université Libre du Congo at Stanleyville and in 1965 he became general secretary (executive vice president) of the National School of Law and Administration in Kinshasa, Congo. In 1967 he accepted his present position on the faculty at New Paltz where he lives with his wife and three children.

Pastor Emeritus Returns to Trinity

The Rev. John H. Frenssen, pastor emeritus of Trinity Evangelical Lutheran Church, Spring and Hone Streets, will conduct the services and preach at the church July 21 and 28.

The Rev. Mr. Frenssen retired from the pastorate at Trinity last October. During his long and varied ministry, his service included the pastorate of First Lutheran Church, Poughkeepsie; the administration of the Wartburg Home for Orphans and Aged at Mt. Vernon, and membership on the Executive Board of the Metropolitan New York Synod of the Lutheran Church in America.

The Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Frenssen recently returned from a motor trip to Minnesota and Colorado and are making their home in Poughkeepsie.

Clerics Briefed On SS Benefits

Clergymen representing all faiths in the Ulster County area met for a social security seminar at the district office at 57 Albany Avenue, Kingston, this week.

George J. Habernig, manager, welcomed his guests and gave a brief summary of the purpose of the session.

A film on children's benefit payments was shown followed by a discussion led by Herbert Sumliner, assistant manager, and Hy Gardlin, field representative.

Highlights of the discussion concerned the monthly payments that are made by social security. It was emphasized that there are still several hundred residents of Ulster County who have not yet inquired about the possibility of payments due them.

The clergymen were informed that they are now automatically covered by social security for retirement, survivors, disability, and medicare protection, unless they file a waiver certificate exempting them from coverage.

In attendance were the Revs. Austin Carey, James Childs, Olney E. Cook, Jonathan Eichhorn, Brooks N. Henry, Arthur E. Kaufman, James McManis, James J. McNally, Alvin F. Messersmith, Gerald Sutch and Gerret J. Wulschlegler.

Another social security seminar for clergymen will be held Tuesday, July 23, at 10 a. m. at the Social Security Office at 57 Albany Avenue, Kingston.

Cragmoor Order Evaluates Works

The Daughters of Mary, Health of the Sick met at their Motherhouse, Vista Maria, Cragmoor, for a General Chapter recently. The Chapter consisted of a variety of events and elections, with special emphasis on the spirit of renewal and adaptation.

Sister Annmarie Chiusano, from Transfiguration Parish in Brooklyn, was elected the Major Coordinator (Mother General) for a three year term.

Sister Annmarie is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Chiusano of St. Mary Magdalene's Parish in Laurelton, L.I. Sister Joan Marie Coss, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Coss of St. Patrick's Parish, Seneca, Ill., was elected as her assistant.

A major undertaking during the General Chapter was the development of an experimental constitution. Emphasis has been placed on the responsibility of each member to share in the burden of government.

Special sessions were held on the evaluation of the works in which the Sisters are now engaged—at Okauchwa, Guatemala, and Ulster County. Their special purpose is to witness to the mission mandate of the whole church through compassionate service in religious, social and health development and through the education of others in these apostolates.

One of the changes most noticeable in the new constitution is the election of the Rev. Richard E. Lake, pastor—Worship at St. Remy 9 a. m., at Bloomington 11 a. m. Sermon title, What Is a Christian? Guest speaker Elder Frank Elmendorf of the Reformed Church of the Comforter, assisted in the service by Norman Tierney and Harold Theiss. Coffee hour following worship in Bloomington.

First Baptist, Partition Street, Saugerties, the Rev. Brooks N. Henry, pastor—9:45 a. m. Sunday school classes for all ages; 11 a. m. worship service. Sermon by the pastor, Studies in Timothy. At 7 p. m. evening service. Sermon by the pastor, The Way of Life.

Plattekill Reformed, Mt. Marion, the Rev. John A. Needham Jr., pastor. Worship 10 a. m. Guest speaker, the Rev. John Van Heest, pastor of the First Reformed Church, West Cossackie. Elder David Bogert and Deacon Harold Shortt will assist.

Overlook United Methodist, Woodstock, the Rev. James W. Cook, pastor. Worship service 10 a. m. Guest speaker, Dr. Robert J. Decker. Topic, Just to Care. Nursery provided.

St. Paul's Evangelical Lutheran, West Camp, the Rev. Alvin F. Messersmith, pastor—Sunday school is in summer recess. Worship services during the summer months are at 10 a. m.

Area

First Baptist, Rhinebeck, the Rev. John Koppelaar, pastor—Bible school 9:45 a. m. Worship 11 a. m. Sermon, Baffling Behavior. Nursery care and junior church. Evening worship 6:30. Message, The Evangelical and Ecumenism.

Hippie Problem Big in New Paltz

If public intoxication is one of the big law enforcement problems in the Village of Ellenville, "hippies" appear to be a problem of equal proportion in New Paltz.

Village Police Chief Harold Phillips made the claim yesterday and he has instructed his men to "move them along" whenever they are blocking a merchant's doorway.

The so-called "hippie" problem exists on Main Street between little Church Street to the West, and North Front Street and Plattekill Avenue to the East.

Phillips said the "hippies" will move when they are told but that merchants refuse to sign complaints or "get involved," even though it is they who suffer.

One merchant, responding to The Freeman's questions, said that there was some fear of vandalism or harassment from those who would be hit with the complaint.

Most of the merchants questioned in line with the above reasoning refused to be quoted with their names, except, for those whose establishments did not provide the necessary front stoop resting places for weary hippie bones.

Two merchants suggested, however, that they do not appear given to violence and that they are, in fact, essentially harmless.

One woman merchant claimed that, although the hippies are "awful looking characters," they have never touched her unlocked parked car nor have they ever passed any questionable remarks.

"I don't think they are dangerous," she said, "but I wouldn't trust them."

The merchant went on to add, "When they look at you, they make you feel uncomfortable. They are living in a world of their own."

Business Suffers

There are a number of the merchants, however, who feel that business "definitely suffers" because of the young people of the long hair, shaggy feet, and what one man, waiting in the New Paltz Bus Terminal, called "that uncompromisingly unwashed projection that is little understood but long remembered."

"They are rebelling, and maybe they should. There is a horrible war going on and what future do they have," said a woman employee of a Main Street store owner.

She did add, however, that although "they (hippies) are looking for something, and they have to be listened to, we live in this town, we work here, and they do hurt business."

Her employer declared that when a contingent of hippies is sitting on the front steps of his establishment, "many customers believe the place is closed and they go elsewhere."

He stated that, "If all the merchants got together, then maybe something could be done. The situation is now, that whenever we tell them to move, they move and that's it."

Dyson Attacks Rocky, Wants Senator Named

Democratic candidate for Congress in the 28th District, John S. Dyson, in recent statements attacked Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller for not naming a successor to the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy and outlined solutions to the plight of the district's elderly residents.

In a telegram to Rockefeller, Dyson said it was "about time" the governor appointed a Kennedy successor. He suggested such persons as Howard Samuels, James Scheuer, Richard Ottinger, John Lindsay, John Gardner and Ogden Reid. Dyson also said that he hoped Rockefeller was not using the appointment as a "political plum" in his (Rockefeller's) quest for the presidency.

Speaking before the Red Hook Democratic Club, Dyson urged the stabilization of property taxes for the low-income elderly person and the increase of social security benefits to keep pace with inflation.

Dyson, a Millbrook newspaperman, is pitted against Republican, Hamilton Fish Jr. in the congressional race.

Four Injured In Area Mishaps

Four persons were injured and several others escaped unhurt as the result of traffic accidents early today that were investigated by Kingston State Troopers Norman Kilfoyle and E. A. Zeboris.

At 1:30 a. m. Ronald Torri, 26, of 231 Albany Avenue, was driving his 1964 car east on Route 28 when an unknown vehicle in passing sideswiped the left side of his automobile and forced it off the highway. Torri complained of possible injuries of the right arm.

Passengers in the car were Robert Koepfen, 18, of 118 Hooker Street, who received possible injuries of the left ankle, and Philip Beechel, 21, of 231 Albany Avenue, possible injuries of the right arm and shoulder. The three were examined at Kingston Hospital.

Robert Gilmore, 22, of 14 Bennett Avenue, Saugerties, was driving a 1965 convertible east on Route 212 at 1:45 a. m. today when an unidentified vehicle forced him off the left shoulder into a rock cut. Marine Kenneth Lavelle, 21, of 22 Oak Avenue, Ware, Mass., a passenger, sustained multiple abrasions and contusions of the face and shoulder. He was taken to Kingston Hospital by Saugerties Ambulance Service. The mishap occurred five miles west of Route 32 in the Town of Woodstock, according to Trooper James Fitzgerald.

Frank Adamiak, 45, of 106 Prescott Street, Demarest, N. J., narrowly escaped injury when his car hit a deer on Route 28 about 1½ miles west of the village of Phoenicia in the Town of Shandaken at 12:40 a. m. Adamiak lost control of the vehicle as it went off the left side of the highway down an embankment and overturned.

Police Surrender Perry to MPs

Douglas R. Perry, 19, who told authorities he has no permanent address after his capture by Kingston police that ended a massive manhunt on Thursday, was turned over to military police late yesterday and taken to Stewart Air Force Base, presumably to face charges.

Perry escaped from custody by leaping from a police car in the parking lot at the county courthouse after he had been picked up as an accused deserter from the U. S. Marine Corps. He was taken into custody nine hours later by city police after a resident reported Perry was seen on South Washington Avenue.

The youth was held in the county jail until military authorities arrived late Friday.

Cited by Police

Paul F. Koch, 19, of RD 4, Box 546, Kingston, was cited by city police early today for failure to produce a registration for the car he was driving, unsafe tire, faulty muffler and operating a motor vehicle with insufficient lights. The summonses are returnable before City Judge Hubert A. Richter.

Dutchess Barn Burns

During a heavy thunderstorm that hit Dutchess County communities Friday afternoon, lightning struck on Salt Point Road, Town of Pleasant Valley. Chief Investigator Charles Borchers of the sheriff's office estimated the loss at $30,000.

U.S. Bombers Strike Hard Against Viet Guerrillas

By GEORGE ESPER

SAIGON (AP) — A heavy raid by U.S. B52 bombers scared away Viet Cong guerrillas who set 39 manacled captives out as bait and planned to ambush South Vietnamese troops coming to their rescue, military spokesmen said today.

The government troops freed the emaciated men and women, who had been chained to stakes in the ground, and reported killing six Viet Cong soldiers who had stayed behind as guards when most of the other guerrillas fled.

Three South Vietnamese infantrymen were wounded when the government troops charged into an open field Friday to free the prisoners in the Mekong Delta, 125 miles southwest of Saigon, spokesmen said.

The captives, held by the Viet Cong for periods ranging from two months to two years, included 13 women, 21 male civilians, three militiamen, a hamlet chief and an assistant hamlet chief.

Field reports said the Viet Cong learned of government troops' plans to try to free the captives, dragged them into an open rice field and set up ambush positions around them.

But the government soldiers were not scheduled to sweep the area until after the B52 raids.

The captives were quoted as saying that most of the guerrillas fled when thousands of pounds of bombs from the eight-engine bombers fell on the fringes of the ambush site. They told officials they had seen at least seven Viet Cong who were wounded by the air attack.

Officials questioned the captives at the provincial capital of Can Tho, where they were taken for medical treatment.

Government troops on the sweep operation also reported capturing five guerrillas and four other suspects and seizing more than 250 mortar and anti-tank rocket shells, 10 rifles, 200 sticks of TNT and 42 rounds for recoilless rifles.

Nine miles north of the ambush site, other government troops reported killing 29 guerrillas in two days of skirmishes in an operation that ended Friday. A military spokesman said three government infantrymen were killed and 28 wounded in the intermittent fighting. The South Vietnamese troops also reported capturing 20 tear gas grenades.

Elsewhere, ground fighting remained in its month-long lull, with no significant actions reported by the allied commands.

Small-scale enemy terror attacks had been anticipated today, called "national shame day" in Vietnam because it is the anniversary of the signing of the 1954 Geneva convention which partitioned the country. There have been reports that between 1,000 and 1,500 Viet Cong commands have slipped into Saigon, but the capital was quiet.

A threatened major Viet Cong offensive is not expected before late this month at the earliest.

In remarks broadcast by Hanoi Radio, North Vietnamese President Ho Chi Minh charged the "U.S. imperialists still are unwilling to renounce their criminal war of aggression. He called on the Vietnamese "people and fighters" throughout the country to intensify their "war of resistance" against the United States.

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, JULY 20, 1968

Air Bridge to Russia

Times Square and Red Square are now just 10½ hours apart—plus circling time waiting for a landing slot and commuting time to and from the airports.

Direct airline service between New York and Moscow (one round-trip U.S. flight a week, one Russian) would have come about long ago had it not been for cold-war animosities. Some may still fear that allowing Soviet Aeroflot planes to land on U.S. soil represents one more instance of the erosion of America's will to resist international communism, if it does not provide actual expressway for spies and other nasty characters.

But we retain enough confidence in this country's intelligence services and the good sense of the general public to feel they can handle this new challenge. The situation works both ways, and the Kremlin faces a substantial increase in American tourists, with all capitalistic influences they may carry with them.

Coffee, tea or milk? Or vodka, borscht and caviar? You can now pay your money—a sizable chunk of it—and take your choice.

Riot Risks Too Risky

There is a new type of backlash for which American slums are suffering. It is the insurance backlash. The key London reinsurance market that usually underwrites a large part of American insurance is turning its back on the high riot-risk insurance originating in this country. That has led to cancellations and outright refusals of casualty insurers to cover risks in slums.

The nation's casualty insurers took in $23 billion in written premiums last year, compared with riot losses of $70 million. Even this year's 72 million riot-linked losses do not disturb the insurers. But the industry's overall underwriting loss in 1967 reached $23 billion. The industry barely broke even.

The riot losses tilted the scales. London was unwilling to re-insure slum property and autos in the light of industrial disasters, British economic austerity measures, and the devaluation of the pound sterling against the dollar last November.

Nothing less than Federal re-insurance presently under study can offer a solution to slum coverage and anti-riot insurance. The slums and the riots are the responsibility of the Government. For that reason, the Government must assume its share of the insurance burden.

Chain Letter Revival

It seems that every decade has its chain letter craze. The one now playing on credulity, superstition and bluff is citing names of socialites, fashion designers and other such well publicized persons as a come-on. It is apparently catching a lot of dupes.

One that offers a prayer that promises the receiver an award if he sends it to 20 friends does not violate the law, since it does not send or request anything valuable through the mail.

The mail department, however, brands the others, the so-called "executive quickie," one that does violence to the law. It requires the recipient to invest $15 with the hope of gaining $2,190 in 10 days—always provided you send it on to 20 friends.

However, in most chain letter schemes only the originators collected. So beware. In the past three or four decades, chain letter campaigns have started to free France from the Nazis, Czechoslovakia from the Communists, end the Korean war, ban the atomic bombs and seat Communist China in the United Nations. Most chain letter schemes are as futile as these, though they are usually pitched to personal profit, not such lost causes.

Confidence in Advertising

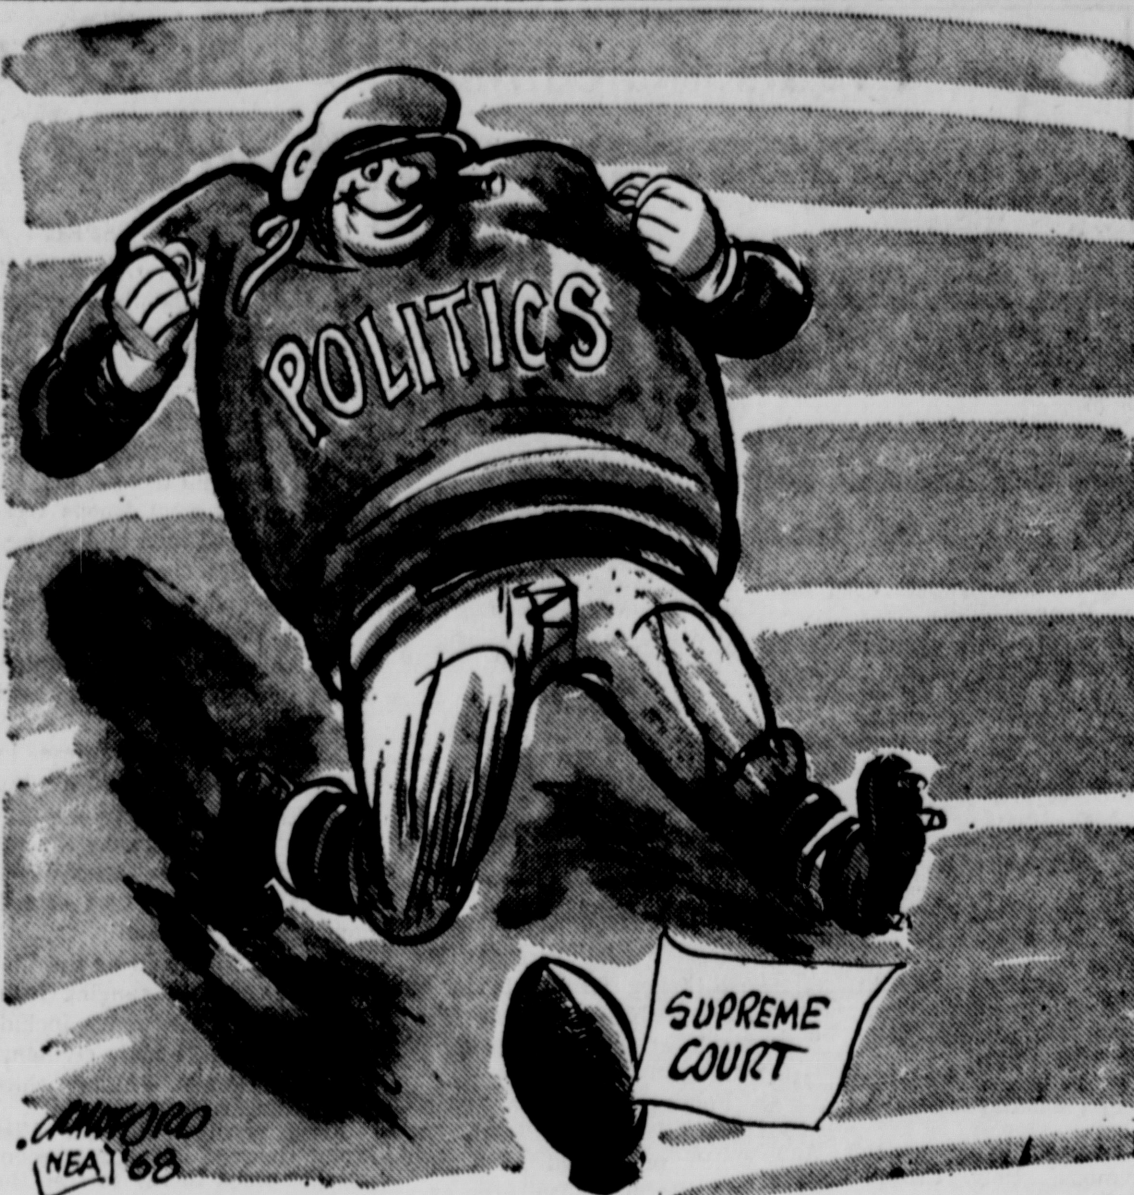

When asked about their over-all attitudes toward advertising, 41 per cent of Americans consider themselves favorable for it, 14 per cent unfavorable and the rest are indifferent or have mixed feelings.

Most consumers agree that advertising has helped to raise our standard of living, though they question some of its social effects.

Contrary to the views of critics, only one per cent of the adult public thinks advertising is in need of more government regulation.

These are some of the figures released after an in-depth study by two Harvard professors covering 1,846 interviews conducted among a cross-section of adult Americans.

It is reassuring to learn that the authors discovered that the consumer "is no passive, helpless target of communications." He has built-in defense mechanisms against advertising, such as boredom, doubt, personal experience or disinterest.

Preseason Warmup

Henry J. Taylor Says

Nixon Must Avoid Booby Trap

Able Richard M. Nixon has a simple choice and the more surely he makes it—all out—the better it will be for him and for the Republican party.

Nixon's Democratic opponents, along with Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, claims that he (or any Republican) can win only by appealing to the so-called Democrats and independents. This is a booby trap.

First, it assumes the rigidity of groups that today simply does not exist. Blocs disappear, or become not decisive, when an over-all protest vote wants to make itself felt.

Second, this is the same old timeworn push by writers and others whose hearts are really with the Democrats and very humanly want a Republican nominee who is as close to being a Democrat as is available.

How come that nearly every Administration's spokesman and nearly all Democrats in the press prefer Mr. Rockefeller? They want the Republicans to scuttle Mr. Nixon. They wring their hands in behalf of the GOP and insist that it seek a "moderate" Republican. What is this idiotic search for a Republican "moderate"?

By every conceivable definition and test Richard M. Nixon is a moderate.

The trouble is that Mr. Nixon, far more than Mr. Rockefeller, threatens the status quo.

Well, that's exactly where Mr. Nixon's simple choice comes in.

The harder he hits at the status quo, and concentrates

his appeal as a dissatisfied, worried American who will "throw the rascals out," the closer he will come to the great, throbbing support of the country. Moreover, Mr. Nixon has the duty to fairly and honorably do this in justice to the two-party system. Nothing needs competition so much as government bodies.

Endorsement of this stance, this positive turn-away from the booby trap, is available in a veritable Niagara of evidence.

Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy's surprise showings merely display the scope and intensity of the dissatisfaction with the status quo even within the Democratic party itself.

His stunning success in the New York Democratic primary all but completed the evidence that Vice-President Hubert H. Humphrey cannot campaign on the Great Society's record as it now stands and, as generally conceded, would lose both New York State and California against any Republican. The full array of Empire State Democratic party leaders will confirm this to you privately.

Mr. McCarthy, nationwide, is neither a man of great standing nor a whiz-bang TV orator. The McCarthy phenomenon should be read in terms of how immense is the roar of the protest vote.

Gallup reports that George C. Wallace has nearly doubled — to 16 per cent — his nationwide support since April. It has never been so high. Mr. Wallace is a poor exponent of the protest vote and, like Mr. McCarthy, he is merely revealing resentments against the status quo.

In addition, President Johnson himself gave Mr. Nixon a roaring tip about the dissatisfaction by his March 31 withdrawal.

If you get out into the grass roots the McCarthy and Wallace phenomena become less mysterious. Everywhere I go across the country average folks seem just itching, and ready, to kick somebody in the pants—and they don't care much who.

People vote against, not for, in most elections, although candidates' vanity seldom permits a candidate to believe this.

"Throw the rascals out" is the thing that works if anything is to work against the great and entrenched power of the "ins."

As usual with the "ins," their ambition is to lure the Republicans, first, into nominating a Democratic blood-brother and, failing this, to claim that no one who is a real opponent can be elected.

The timeworn ploy is to force any real opponent into the defensive, always speak of the future because the present would kill them dead, and have the whole charade end up making their opponent unable to polarize the protest vote.

A good place for any Republican candidate to start in avoiding this booby trap is by turning his back on The New York Times editorials and the many articulate handwringers in and out of the press and politics who are Democrats at heart anyway and always have been.

That's not easy. Many involved are sincere. But if Mr. Nixon leaps over the booby trap and forthrightly, energetically, relentlessly and honorably polarizes the protest vote—but surely does it—the payoff is very likely to be astounding.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

Chief Justice Earl Warren, speaking of capital punishment, said: "Throughout my life there has always been something to me that was repulsive, to have the government take a life when you are asking everyone else not to take a life." Mr. Chief Justice, this is what it is like.

The night is cold. The air holds its breath as the file of men crunch down the hill on old snow. Two keepers crouch to frisk the men at the gate. Stars wink hard in winter. The warden waves the reporters into the death house. They look disreputable in wrinkled overcoats. Some smell of whiskey.

The building is brick. A door is at the rear, as in church. There are seven rows of pews and a center aisle. No hymn books. Two doctors lean against a wall. The young one twirls stethoscopes around his extended finger. Three turns this way. Three turns that way. The older one leans against his hands.

The chair is front and center. It looks homemade. The black straps fall outward. The room is square and bright with light. The heat is turned high. The writers shuffle to the pews. They are now state witnesses. They whisper. Some make notes. A State Trooper crouches behind me. I can hear his breathe.

The executioner is a family man. He is tall and skinny and his features slide toward his chin. He is a worried hunting dog. He stands in the alcove to the left, spinning a dial. A door to the right opens a drifter. The Principal Keeper peeks. The warden nods. The time is 10:59. The day is Thursday.

The PK emerges. He has the rolling gait of a sailor. Behind him is a priest in cassock and surplice. He walks backward with a gold crucifix held high. It picks up the ceiling light and spangles the face of John Cullen. He is medium all over: size, age, demeanor. Two keepers help him to walk.

Mr. Cullen had 36 years in which to straighten out his life. Now he has three minutes. John was a $1.98 crook. One afternoon he got in a little deeper when he tried to rob a refugee of a $3,000 ring. John got piano wire. Instead of tying her hands, he tied her neck.

He will not look at the chair. He looks at the concrete floor. The PK nods. John turns and sits. The hands are on the big arms, and he tilts his head back as though a barber is about to lather his face. There is a long sigh. The PK asks him if he has anything to say. John Cullen swallows and his Adams apple bobs. "No," he murmurs. "Thanks."

The keepers crouch for the leg and arm straps. The executioner assists with the big ones across the chest. One comes across the chin; another tight on the forehead. The priest murmurs prayers for the dying. John Cullen could have used those for the past year. That's how long he has been dying in the death house.

The swinging stethoscope slows. It stops. John Cullen is patient. He can see by looking under the forehead strap. The faces he sees are stiff with fright. Mr. Cullen closes his eyes and sighs a big one. The executioner hurries to the alcove. There is no sound. No dimming of lights. Mr. Cullen tries to leap straight out. He is hit by 2,000 volts and 16 amperes. His body strains against the chest straps. A thin spiral of blue smoke emerges from one hand. The State Trooper murmurs: "Jesus, Mary and Joseph."

The executioner turns the juice down, then up. In the silence, the chest straps crack like bullwhips. The executioner is opposed to messy work. He makes sure. The second hand creeps around his watch three full times before he turns everything off.

Cullen sinks back, relaxed. The keepers take the body straps off. The white shirt is unbuttoned. One sponges the chest with a towel. The PK motions to the doctors. They are professionals. They leave the wall, walking in step, to the chair. The silver stethoscopes are held to several parts of the chest. They are removed from the ears and passed to the other man. He listens. The two men whisper. The older one turns to the reporter and says: "I pronounce this man dead." John Cullen is now even with the world he has just left. He owes nothing. The trooper behind me is sick.

A hospital table comes in. A clean white sheet is tucked around it. The keepers lift John Cullen. He is most relaxed. The eyes are open. A tear runs sideways down one cheek. It is alive.

This, Mr. Chief Justice, is what it is like . . .

Drew Pearson Says

Fortas's Admission May Cost Him Liberal Support

FORTAS: WHITE HOUSE CONFEE

On November 19, 1967, Drew Pearson and Jack Anderson reported that Justice Abe Fortas had participated in various conferences in the White House regarding Vietnam and other problems. Pearson and Anderson referred to this in several subsequent columns.

On July 16, 1968, this was the highlight of Justice Fortas's testimony before the Senate Judiciary Committee during the consideration of his appointment as Chief Justice.

WASHINGTON — Justice Abe Fortas's admission that he gave advice to President Johnson on high policies of State has strengthened Senate opposition to his confirmation. In fact, his testimony that he had summarized the advice of others on Vietnam for the President may have lost him support among some liberal Senators.

It had long been known in Washington society that the Fortases cancelled out on dinner parties because they were suddenly called to intimate family dinners at the White House.

It was also known that President Johnson asked Fortas's advice on a great many subjects ranging from whom he should appoint as Attorney General and whom he should appoint to the regulatory agencies, to the war in Vietnam. The President himself has been quite frank about this, even when Fortas himself was denying it.

On more than one occasion after he was appointed to the Supreme Court, Fortas remarked belittlingly that it was libel per se to print reports that he had been conferring with President Johnson. Obviously this was a sensitive matter—though he has now confessed it to the Senate Judiciary Committee.

But the President himself was not so sensitive, and frankly informed many people that Justice Fortas was one of the trusted friends on whom he leaned for advice.

No. 1 Hawk

Now it develops from Fortas's own testimony that he must have been the leading hawk among the war advisers. This had been suspected but never documented.

The President numbered among his advisers Secretary of State Rusk, who assumed the role of impartiality; former Secretary of Defense McNamara, a definite dove; Ambassador Averell Harriman, a dove; Walt Rostow, a hawk; Under Secretary of State George Ball, a dove; Ambassador Arthur Goldberg, a hawk; the Joint Chiefs of Staff, hawks; and Clark Clifford, who since he has become Secretary of Defense has been revealed as something of a dove.

If Justice Fortas summarized this conflicting advice for the President, then by his own testimony it would appear that he kept the President on a war course which turned out to be one of the most disastrous in the history of the United States; a course which has undermined the other truly great domestic accomplishments of the President.

Other Fortas Advice

Testifying on other matters, Fortas glossed over his persistent recommendation that U.S. Attorney David Bress be made a U.S. district judge. Bress has been an excellent U.S. attorney and deserves reward. However, the basic point is whether a member of the Supreme Court should recommend judgeships. Under the constitutional separation of the executive from the judiciary, he should not. Yet Fortas recommended Bress as U.S. attorney in the first place, and then asked that he be promoted to be a judge in the second place.

He was also firm in vetoing such men as New York Attorney Louis Nizer to be Attorney General, though this occurred before Fortas assumed his position on the bench.

No Supreme Court Justice has conferred with the President more than has Fortas, except for Justice Felix Frankfurter, who was a notorious busybody in running back and forth between the Court and the White House.

All of this runs counter to the long history of the United States in which the Chief Justice has been completely independent of the White House.

It began with Chief Justice John Marshall, whom Thomas Jefferson described as "a crafty Chief Justice who sophisticated the law to his mind by the turn of his own reasoning."

Yet it was John Marshall who probably more than any other man used the Supreme Court, to keep the early struggling states from becoming a loose-knit federation. Had it not been for John Marshall's tough decisions and his independence of the White House, the United States would not be the powerful country it is today.

The tug-of-war between the court and the White House continued under Abraham Lincoln, who said of the Dred Scott decision that it got the doctrine of democracy down "as thin as the homeopathic soup made by boiling the shadow of a pigeon that had starved to death."

On the other hand there was the close and secret liaison between President Buchanan and Justice Catron of Tennessee and Justice Grier of Pennsylvania by which Buchanan knew in advance that the Missouri Compromise was to be held invalid.

Among the more recent Chief Justices, Charles Evans Hughes was horrified when President Roosevelt suggested conferences between him and the Court.

Perhaps the ideal relationship between the President and the Chief Justice has been that between Earl Warren and Lyndon Johnson. They maintain friendly, cordial relations, but remain completely aloof where policy is concerned.

In the case of Justice Fortas it is easy to understand why Lyndon Johnson, having leaned on Abe for advice for 30 years, continued to lean on him after he went to the Supreme Court. It was a natural relationship and Fortas' advice on domestic matters was brilliant. The question, however, is, first, whether this was a correct relationship, and, second, whether the advice of a man who knew nothing about foreign affairs was not disastrous for the American people.

Soviet, Chinese Military Aid Interrupted by Armed Clashes

By MARK GAYN
Chicago Daily News
Foreign Service

HONG KONG, July 17 — The flow of Soviet and Chinese military aid to North Vietnam has been cut off a number of times since Mid-June, diplomatic sources here report.

Most of the interruptions have been on the 125-mile section of the railway that runs south from the Chinese provincial capital of Nanning to the border with Vietnam. Other serious breaks, however, have been reported on the line running north from Nanning to the vital railway junction of Liu-chow.

Nearly all the interruptions have been caused by armed clashes among rival factions of railwaymen, workers, Red Guards and army regulars. Peking has tried to insulate railroad employees from battles raging around them by ordering them to avoid ties with local revolutionary bodies. This ban, however, is being breached everywhere as the feuding groups of railwaymen seek allies on the outside.

The same diplomatic informants denied the rumor, current here for weeks, that the North Vietnamese consulate in Nanning had been sacked by Red Guards angered by the Vietnam peace negotiations in Paris.

They, however, reported that in May the North Vietnamese consul was compelled to attend a mass meeting in Nanning and to deliver a speech that followed the Peking rather than the Hanoi line. He is said to have told the crowd that the only path to victory in Vietnam lay not in peace talks, but in a protracted war, along the lines taught by Chinese Communist party chairman Mao Tse-tung.

This is not the first time the movement of Soviet and Chinese aid to North Vietnam has been affected by Mao's "cultural revolution."

Chou's Sharp Lecture In his sharp lecture, Chou reported that ships were being raided for guns in the major Chinese ports of Dairen, Shanghai and Tsingtao. He described some of the raiders as "thugs."

Railway operations were also said to have been disrupted all across the length and breadth of China, but especially at the three major points through which all Soviet overland aid and most of the Chinese must pass. These points are Shenyang (formerly Mukden), in former Manchuria; Ghenchow, which lies at the junction of the north-south and east-west rail systems; and Liu-chow, another junction point in the south.

In Ghenchow, the trouble has been centered on the northern station, where the personnel simply appears to have walked out, thus stalling vital operations. But it is Liu-chow where the unrest has jammed the rail hub into a jammed bottleneck, halting the flow of supplies to North Vietnam. Of it, Premier Chou said:

"Here the struggle has been the longest. When an agreement was reached at one point, it could not be implemented at another. The chief reason is that the two local factions are influencing the two railway groups and armed clashes have never ceased."

The premier added: "In the meantime, the Navel mechanical section (which lies in the joining Kweichow province but is part of the Liu-chow system) is also in a doubtful situation. Traffic is at a standstill. Material cannot be transported to Hainan or to Vietnam. Goods brought from Yenchuan, Kweichow and Zunnan are piled up there . . ."

Operations in Nawei, according to Chou, have been disrupted for "the past year or more"—much of the time by go-slow or full-blown strikes. The section has now been put under the Kweichow military district, with the army made responsible for untangling this difficult knot.

Early this year, Premier Chou struck at the Red Guards who had raided arms shipments going to Vietnam and helped themselves to the guns and ammunition they felt they needed to "make revolution" in South China. In one instance they were said to have captured and fired 10,000 rounds of ammunition intended to help the North Vietnamese shoot down U.S. aircraft.

The latest and the most detailed disclosure came in a speech Chou made about three weeks ago in Peking, before a meeting of out-of-town railwaymen.

Backers of Humphrey Capture Delegate Race in 5-County Area

By LYNN MULVANEY

The final count of Democratic primary votes cast June 18 for delegates to the national convention has been tallied for the five-county 28th Congressional District with the three men committed to Vice President Hubert Humphrey, the victors.

The slate, headed by Congressman Joseph Y. Resnick, who took the top number of ballots—7,263, is comprised of Thomas Quinn of Columbia County with 5,817 votes and Roy Guarino of Dutchess County with 5,216 votes. Together they reaped 18,496 votes compared to a total of 14,079 for the next three runners-up, all committed to Sen. Eugene McCarthy.

Marshall Efron of Dutchess County came in fourth behind Guarino with 4,963 votes. Mrs. Tobie Geertsema of Ulster County was next with 4,633 and George Skau trailed her with 4,483 votes.

The three delegate candidates, formerly committed to the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy were last with George Whalen of Dutchess County receiving 4,294 votes, Roger Mable of Ulster County 3,741 and Hilary Masters of Columbia County, 2,830.

Resnick Wins County

In tabulating Ulster County's votes, the Resnick slate remains ahead but among the runners-up, Roger Mable of Esopus came out ahead of Skau and Whalen and in the City of Kingston, Mable came in second behind Resnick.

The total Ulster County and City of Kingston vote is as follows: Resnick, 2,132; Quinn, 1,966; Guarino, 1,792; Efron, 1,508; Geertsema, 1,477; Mable, 1,432; Skau, 1,372; Whalen, 1,222 and Masters, 1,058.

A report out of Albany this week shows that Sen. McCarthy captured 62 of the 123 elected delegate seats to the convention.

The election bureau reported that delegates pledged to the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy won 27 seats while forces of Vice President Humphrey won 15 seats in the primary. Nineteen delegates who are uncommitted also were elected. The report from the Department of State came amid furor in the Democratic ranks over the distribution of New York's 65 at-large delegate seats.

Protest Decision

McCarthy backers have protested the decision of the Democratic State Committee to allocate only 15½ of the at-large votes to McCarthy. They claim he is entitled to many more.

Reacting to that criticism, State Chairman John J. Burns is trying to persuade some of the at-large delegates to resign so that the committee can redistribute some of the at-large votes.

The state's 190-vote bloc will be one of the largest in the presidential nominating convention now scheduled for Chicago next month.

Burns' effort to have some of the delegate's at-large resign is designed to meet criticism that the Negro and Puerto Rican communities have been short-changed in terms of representation.

This criticism was leveled in addition to the complaints from McCarthy supporters that their man deserved more at-large votes.

No State Dem Party Leader For Two Years Claims Burns

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York State Democratic Party will have to wait at least until 1970 to find a leadership replacement for the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, says Democratic state chairman John J. Burns.

The affable man what holds the splintering reins of the state committee says it will take the election of a governor to make his organization a viable one again.

Burns, starting his second full term as the $40,000-a-year state committee chairman, doesn't see himself in the position vacated by the assassination of Kennedy.

Now 47, Burns has no plans of making another run for a state-wide office. He ran for lieutenant governor in 1962 on an unsuccessful ticket headed by U.S. Attorney Robert M. Morgenthau, who was closely associated with the late John F. Kennedy.

A strong supporter of both Kennedys, himself, Burns is looking for a candidate to charge into the picture with the appeal of either the late president or senator.

Some Glamorous Names

Kennedy forces in New York

State look to some of the glamour names in their camp to bridge the candidate gap in 1970. Both Ted Sorensen and Stephen Smith are spokesmen of Senate and gubernatorial candidates.

Others mentioned were Howard Samuels, now undersecretary of commerce who was on the 1966 gubernatorial ticket headed by New York City Council president Frank D. O'Connor Rep. Jonathan Bingham of the Bronx and former Mayor Robert F. Wagner, U.S. Ambassador to Spain.

Some party leaders have said Burns has the makings of a state leader. Assembly Speaker Anthony J. Travia, who retired to take a federal judgeship, urged Burns to step forward to fill the vacuum.

O'Connor is the titular head of the party because of his spot on the last gubernatorial ticket, but Burns says the City Council president does not have the patronage or power to keep the state county leaders in line.

Brooklyn County leader Stanley Steingut and Queens County leader Moses M. Weinstein are expected to battle it out for the speaker's post vacated by Travia if the Democrats retain their assembly edge this fall but

O'Dwyer's Margin Is 18,238 Votes

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Paul O'Dwyer, who supports Minnesota Sen. Eugene McCarthy for president, defeated Eugene Nickerson by 18,238 votes in the three-way, Democratic primary election for U.S. senator, final, official results show.

The Department of State reported Friday that O'Dwyer, a New York City lawyer, received 275,877 votes in the June 18 primary.

Nickerson, Nassau County executive and an ally of the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, had 257,639 and U.S. Rep. Joseph Y. Resnick of Ellenville 229,893.

The department also said U.S. Sen. Jacob K. Javits, a Republican who seeks a third term, received 10,277 votes to

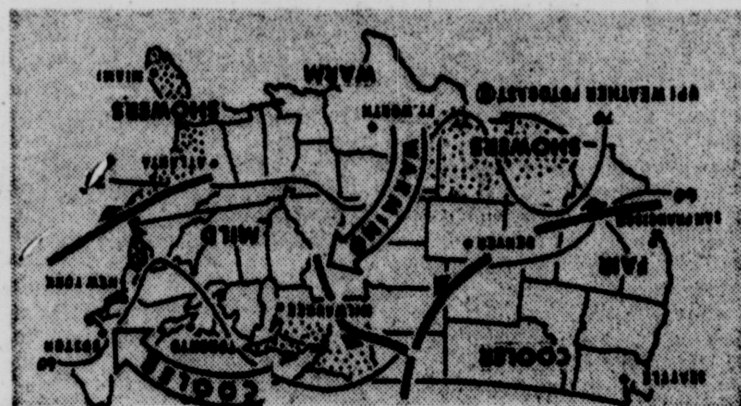

3,969 for Murray Baron, a labor lawyer, in the contest for endorsement by the Liberal party. Javits had no GOP opponent, but Baron challenged a decision by Liberal leaders to back the senator.

James L. Buckley was unopposed as the Senate candidate of the Conservative party.

O'Dwyer outpolled Nickerson in New York City by a margin of approximately 7-5. Nickerson prevailed 7-5 outside the city but could not offset a larger vote in the city.

The figures were:

New York City — O'Dwyer, 175,934; Nickerson, 118,339. Outside New York City — O'Dwyer, 99,943; Nickerson, 139,300.

New higher interest rates on Savings Bonds and Freedom Shares

Now U.S. Savings Bonds pay 4¼%, new Freedom Shares pay 5%.

Today, Savings Bonds are a better investment than ever. Now they pay 4¼% when held to maturity. And new Freedom Shares pay a full 5% when held to maturity.

Freedom Shares are still sold on a one-for-one basis with Series E Bonds, but now you can buy the combination any time at your bank—and not just on a regular monthly plan as before.

The higher interest rate on Savings Bonds applies not only to the new ones you buy, but to your older ones too for their remaining period to maturity—generally effective with the first full six-months interest period beginning on or after June 1. (Outstanding Freedom Shares are not affected).

Buy Bonds and New Freedom Shares—help yourself even more as you're helping your country.

Your Dental Health

SURGERY WITHOUT PAIN WAS SLOW DEVELOPMENT

By William Lawrence, D.D.S.

Someone once pointed out that the first operation under deep sleep anesthesia was done by the Lord. In the third chapter of Genesis, it says, "... the Lord caused a deep sleep to fall upon Adam, and he slept: and He took one of his ribs and then closed the flesh."

Since then, relief from pain

has been a profound hope of mankind. But it took many thousands of years before the next painless operation under deep sleep anesthesia was recorded, and this occurred under circumstances peculiar enough to have pleased even Dr. Tim Leary, the psychologist.

Either was synthesized in the 12th century but not until many centuries later did some Georgians, probably sated with alcoholic hangovers and looking for new kicks, discover its exhilarating effects.

Some very interesting parties or happenings called "ether frolics" were then taking place in Georgia and other parts of the South. A few whiffs of ether were enough to send you to Pleasure Land.

But, as was inevitable, someone took an overdose and instead of a jag this reveler fell down "dead."

A doctor was called but, by the time he arrived an hour later, his patient awakened, apparently none the worse for his experience.

Dr. Crawford Long in Jefferson, Ga., heard of this incident and began experimenting with ether. Once, while under the influence, he severely bruised his leg. When he sobered up, he did not remember either bruise or pain.

Thus did Dr. Long "discover" ether and come to understand its proper use. It was he who actually performed the first recorded surgical operation in the history of the world (barring the Lord's) under general anesthesia.

The year was 1842, and the operation was routine enough: lancing a boil.

Please send your questions about dental health to Dr. Lawrence in care of this paper. While he cannot answer each letter personally, letters of general interest will be answered in this column.

When Is a Camp Not a Camp — When It's for Teens

TEEN CAMPERS RETURN — Weary campers unload gear at the Jewish Community Center Thursday after three day sojourn dude ranching down county. The JCC Teen Camp program puts the emphasis on travel for 15 teenagers participating in this second year of operation. (Freeman photo by Haines).

Jewish Community Center Teen Campers have taken to the high road and low during the first part of the season. Fifteen "campers" have taken part in the program which emphasizes travel by car, bike and foot. Not at all a camp session, the JCC Teen Camp provides a unique summer of arts, culture and fun, all of which is being recorded on movie film by the campers themselves.

The teens during the first camp period ending July 27, will have visited Lake Taghkanic, Overlook Mountain, toured the Art Students League at Woodstock, and participated in an overnight bicycle trip to Camp Thoreau, Wallkill, during the first week.

This week's highlight was a three-day trip to the Sunny-croft Ponderosa Dude Ranch in Wallkill and the group also spent another day at Lake Taghkanic.

Future Events

Next week they will attend a performance of Peter, Paul and Mary at the Saratoga Performing Arts Center, visit Rye Beach, tour the Ellenville Antique Auto Museum and Sam's Point and the Ice Caves, and spend another day at Lake Taghkanic.

During the second session of the camp, starting July 29 and ending Aug. 16, the highlights will be a three-day trip to Mystic, Conn. and environs, including a visit to Yale University. Other highlights include day trips to Lake Taghkanic, a trip to Palisades Park, and a trip to the Saratoga Performing Arts Center to see Diana Ross and the Supremes.

Film Makers

As part of the program, the group is producing a film which they are making, using the places they visit as settings for the film.

Directing the program are Donn and Mary Ann Avallone. Participants in the first session are Eric Berger, Lori Braunstein, Randy Feit, Joel Feldman, Kenneth Friedman, Richard Gossett, Eddie Halpern, Ricky Kamen, Meryl Kanover, Naomi Katz, Arlene Markowitz, Steven Rafalowsky, Jody Summer, Ellen Sherry and Howard Tevlowitz.

The Jewish Community Center is a member agency of the Ulster County Community Chest. Stanley King is executive director.

ON CAMERA — Ken Friedman aims his movie camera at where the action is while Eric Burgher and Randy Feit direct the production. All the summer events are being recorded on film. Settings are easy to come by as the fun seekers travel around the county and the state. (Freeman photo by Haines).

The Teen Scene

FACING THE MUSIC AT NEWPORT

By LEI

The Jazz Festival, held annually starting on the Fourth of July, is over for another year, and for another year, the music has just begun. Now, for the next 11 months, everyone will be analyzing and criticizing every aspect of the Festival. Fortunately, this year there was very little trouble with the badcats that inevitably give everybody a hard time. So this year most of the discussion is about music.

Probably the most complaints (after those about the general overcrowding) concerned the large number of "pop performers" who appeared. Probably the most comments were about the return of the big band. Actually, to those following the scene, neither of these "surprising developments" is noteworthy.

Aside from a small and loyal minority, jazz is no longer the musical idiom of the young. Probably there are many teenagers unfamiliar with the work (or even the names) of Thelonius Monk or Dizzy Gillespie. However, jazz is far from dead. With an "if-you-can't-lick-it, join-it" abandon, jazz has started popping up in pop, until sometimes it is hard to tell them apart.

It might be easy enough to class the Ramsey Lewis Trio as jazz, along with Louis Armstrong and Pete Fountain (though all have had pop hits), but where would one class Hugh Masekela? Or Dionne Warwick, and Nina Simone? Al Hirt is jazz, of course, but what on earth is Herb Alpert? (That was not one of the alternatives we had in mind. . . .) And how could Ray Charles, who has sung everything from soul through c & w be put in one bag?

The purists protest that they will not go to Newport again to hear another "pop festival." Perhaps they were not so much put down by the performers who did appear, such as Dionne Warwick, as they were disappointed by what appear to be odd omissions, such as Ella Fitzgerald. And perhaps they were irritated that some of those attracted by the "pop" names were not as rapt while listening to Duke Ellington and Count Basie.

The return of the big band should surprise nobody, when even in such traditionally "simple" music as country and western, full orchestras now back record singers, and when rock groups now tour with the 30-piece band needed to give them their "lush" backing. Unfortunately, some big bands make music, while others make memories. They appeal to widely different groups.

Generally, any dissatisfaction with the 1968 Newport Jazz Festival can probably be traced to a public habit of overclassification. Good music is good, no matter what its bag. Those who split hairs over what type of music was being played would do well to consider, without nostalgia or a desire to be "with it" the actual merits of the music they heard. It might appear that the performers at this Festival were chosen with more of an eye toward selling tickets to EVERYONE than they were toward providing a uniformly excellent level of performance.

Paltz Classes Attract 65 For Summer

New Paltz students are taking advantage of the six week summer school session at the high school to learn personal typing and driver education skills. In all 65 students are enrolled, 41 in driver ed and 24 in personal typing.

Retired business education teacher Miss Laura Stanley is typing instructor. At the end of the course students should be able to type at least 25 words per minute and certainly be able to type their own term papers.

Driver ed classroom sessions are being taught by Robert Doucette, Board of Cooperative Education Services special education teacher. The road work required equals the book work sessions. Instructors are Theodore Sirko and Lawrence Johnson, chairman of the science department and director of athletics respectively at New Paltz High School.

Since only four students are permitted in the car at one time two cars are required. Louis Smith Chevrolet of Highland has provided a 1968 model for use in the summer course, joining the 1967 Ford provided by Rizzo Ford, Highland, for use during the regular school year. Students will divide their behind the wheel experience between the two cars.

Local Delegates Back From Key Club Parley

Six Kingston boys, members of Key Clubs at two local high schools returned recently from Montreal where they attended Key Club Silver Jubilee International Convention.

Representing Kingston High School were Gene Bruno, Garry Schantz and Gary Matthews. John Augustine, William Franz and Gerard Grier were John A. Coleman High School delegates.

More than 2600 Key Club delegates were on hand for the five-day parley, representing every state in the United States, every province of Canada, Puerto Rico, Antigua and the Bahamas.

Experiment Tripper Gives City's Medal

Kingston's own ambassador to Germany delivered greetings and gifts last week to the Mayor of Zoest.

Anna Mary Portz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Portz of 27 Orchard Street, Hurley, is touring Europe as part of the Experiment in International Living this summer. A fall semester senior at Kingston High School, Anna Mary was a winner of a Prisma scholarship for the trans-Atlantic adventure.

Further assists for the trip were provided by Kingston Kiwanis Club which bought film and camera and Hurley Lions Club which gave money.

She visited Zoest July 12 and presented the mayor with a medallion and citation from Mayor Raymond W. Garraghan on behalf of Kingston. In a letter to her parents this week, she reported the German mayor was "very pleased and proud of the medal." She will deliver his message in person when she returns the end of August.

After an orientation period at Experiment headquarters in Vernon, Anna Mary left from Bradley Field, Conn., July 9. She met her home stay family in Bad Sassendorf and was presented with a bouquet of roses by her German "sister." At present the American Experimenters are touring Germany, Austria and Italy with high

Rivaltime Triumphs Handily at MR

MONTICELLO — Rivaltime holds the fastest mile ever raced at Monticello Raceway, a 1.584 race mile three seasons ago. Last night at the Mighty M, the six-year-old didn't have to set a record, easily capturing the $10,000 first division MYR Pacing series, now in its second and final week at Monticello.

Reined by George Sholtz, the pint-size driver that guided the bay son of Good Time out of Tallulah Hanover by Billy Di-rect to that record mile, Rivaltime toured the Mighty M's double oval last night in 2:01.4, winning easily, gate-to-wire by two lengths over five others.

In a class all his own, Rivaltime left from the rail and drew the fans support, going off at 2.5 odds, a prohibitive favorite. Rivaltime shot for the top as the starting gate pulled away.

Spanish tennis corps, won a gruelling two-hour and 18-minute marathon from Nicola Pietrangeli Friday with a sweep of the final two sets for a 6-3, 6-6, 6-4, 6-2 triumph.

Juan Gisbert broke the ice for Spain in the first match of the day by stopping Australian-born Martin Mulligan 6-4, 2-6, 6-2, 6-4.

Bueno-Tegart Battle
EASTBOURNE, England (UPI)—Brazil's Maria Bueno and Judy Tegart of Australia played their way into the women's singles final at the Rothman's Invitation Lawn Tennis Tournament with decisive victories Friday.

Miss Bueno captured her semi-final match 6-2, 6-4 from Winnie Shaw of Britain. Miss Tegart's opponent, 21-year-old Alex Soady of Britain was never in the match. Mike Sangster of Britain defeated Australia's Bill Bowrey 6-4, 9-7, and Herb Fitzgibbon of Garden City, N.Y. beat Britain's Bobby Wilson 7-5, 6-2, and will meet in the Holyoke men's singles final.

Spain Grabs 2-0 Edge
BARCELONA, Spain (UPI)—Spain took a commanding 2-0 lead into today's doubles match which could spell the end of Italian hopes for advancement in the Davis Cup European Zone A tennis final.

Dear Abby

Too Young, She Wants Out

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
© 1968 by Chicago Tribune
N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I must have started a dozen letters to you and tore them all up, hoping each time things would work themselves out. Well, they haven't so this time I am writing to you for advice.

I'm not quite 18 and have been married for 10 months to a man who is 26. When I told my mother I wanted to marry Phil, she begged me not to, saying I was "too young," and would regret it. I wouldn't listen to her, said I was "in love" and I talked her into signing for me.

Now I realize my mother was right. I can't begin to tell you how unhappy I am. Phil is jealous, suspicious, treats me like a child, and he even "spansks" me on my bare bottom if I don't obey him. All the love I had for him is dead and I can hardly stand for him to touch me. Abby, this is just not working out. I talked to my pastor and he says, "Give your marriage a chance."

All day long thoughts keep running through my mind. Should I just leave and go home? Should I tell Phil I want a divorce? Could I get an annulment? Or, now that I've made my bed must I lie in it? Please, please help me.

SICK AT HEART
DEAR SICK: Tell Phil what is in your heart and go home to your mother. A lawyer can tell you if you're eligible for an annulment. Fortunately you are a child. Better to leave the bed "you made" than to lie in it and conceive children there you don't want, in a marriage you feel is a mistake. Confide in your mother. She will understand.

DEAR ABBY: I have asked many people this question, and they have all come up with different answers, and I would love to know yours.

I am a 16-year-old girl. Just for fun, an 18-year-old boy challenged me to a race. I won.

Should I have let him win for the sake of his masculine pride? Or should I have beat him as I did, fair and square? FAST GIRL
DEAR FAST: Since HE challenged you, and you accepted the challenge, you should not have "let him" win. Naturally, it was a blow to his masculine pride, so let this be a lesson to you. Never accept such a challenge with a boy again, because if you win, you lose.

DEAR ABBY: Saturday I attended the wedding of a relative. I wore a very nice black dress with long sleeves and as I didn't want to spoil my hair-do I wore a black lace mantilla on my head.

Now I know they say that black is out for weddings, but I have seen plenty of black dresses at weddings so there is nothing so unusual about that.

Well, outside the church, a friend of my mother-in-law's asked me "WHOM I HAD LOST!" It took a minute for me to realize what she meant. At the reception my husband's uncle asked me the same thing. I am furious. What should I have said to these rude people? Do you share my opinion that these remarks were ignorant and uncalled for?

HURT
DEAR HURT: If the remarks were intended to ridicule, I would agree with you. But perhaps they were not. It was probably not so much the black dress that gave the impression of mourning as the black lace mantilla.

CONFIDENTIAL TO RICK: You probably talk too much. Nobody ever listened himself out of a job.

Everybody has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal., 90069 and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

FOR ABBY'S NEW BOOK-LET "WHAT TEEN-AGERS WANT TO KNOW," SEND $1.00 TO ABBY, BOX 69700, LOS ANGELES, CAL. 90069. (Hear Dear Abby Mon. thru Sat. at 10:30 a.m. WKNY-1490)

Impossible Slam Made by Error

By Oswald and James Jacoby

Today's hand is an old timer with a new twist. Seven diamonds is a reasonable contract, except for one thing. There is no real play for it because declarer has two clubs in each hand and can only discard three hearts on dummy's top spades.

On the other hand, most declarers will make the contract against any lead but a spade by cashing two clubs and all the trumps. East and West are each likely to guard spades and will have to discard down to one heart each in order to do so.

Of course, if South bids hearts along the way, West may count up and decide that his partners will hold at least four spades, whereupon West will throw spades early.

The new twist is supplied by British writer Victor Mollo. South is a very bad, but very lucky, player who reached seven diamonds as shown in the box.

He carefully won the first club with dummy's queen and led a diamond to his ace. When East showed out, declarer, who couldn't count very well, decided to go back to dummy with the ace of clubs to finesse the diamonds. He was so intent on this that he led dummy's jack of diamonds.

At this point, there was no way to get to dummy for the three top spades. An ordinary poor player would realize this and play ace and one heart to get out for down one but Mollo's man was built of sterner stuff. He wouldn't lose a trick until he had to and he ran out all his trumps.

East threw one spade early but West did not discard a spade. Eventually, declarer played his ace of hearts and was about to concede down several when he discovered that all his small hearts were good and he made his grand slam!

It's the little things that get one down—like toy autos on the basement stairs.

Tennis is the one sport in which it is permissible to have the best racquet in town.

Horoscope By SYDNEY OMARR It's In The Stars

("The wise man controls his destiny . . . astrology points the way.")

FORECAST FOR SUNDAY, July 21, 1968

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Streamline methods, appearance, surroundings. Means get rid of nonessentials. You will be better able to concentrate once motives are clearly defined. Know this—respond accordingly.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Build spiritual bridges. You profit by obtaining peace within. Be sympathetic to needs of one who confides problem. If you are generous, repayment will be bountiful.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Day when your appearance, personality are emphasized. You attract attention. You can successfully take initiative. Welcome contacts, challenges. Be ready to accept unusual invitation.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Trust intuitive intellect. Means hunch pays off. Heed urgings of inner voice. Spiritual matters take precedence. Participation in group, club, charity drive proves beneficial.

LEO (July 23-August 22): Socialize—meet people, go places. Extend hand of friendship. Study TAURUS message. Realize you are not alone, but you must make first gesture. Then contentment follows.

VIRGO (August 23-September 22): Check details. Your career potential, goals, ambitions are spotlighted. If vigorous in pursuit of ultimate aim, you can succeed. Accent on potential. Realize and appreciate your own worth.

LIBRA (September 23-October 22): Good lunar aspect to added knowledge. Gain shows through written word. Read, study, absorb information. Individual with spiritual insight expresses desire to aid. Accept. SCORPIO (October 23-November 21): Emotions run deep. You have a flash of illumination.

with family, home, security, basic things in life. Pay attention to inner revelation. SAGITTARIUS (November 22-December 21): Stand back and review. Play waiting game. Don't be in too much of a hurry to prove a point. One allied with you waits for a fond gesture. Break from pattern.

CAPRICORN (December 22-January 19): Put foot down where situation indicates others are taking advantage. Be practical. Fine for coming to understanding with associates, co-workers. But deal from a position of strength.

AQUARIUS (January 20-February 18): Good lunar aspect today coincides with creative activity, love, romance, dealings with children. You get chance to prove abilities. Be warm, giving. Then you receive reward.

PISCES (February 19-March 20): Give attention to domestic situation. Don't ignore basic matters. Those who advocate quick action should be treated with kind tolerance. But your own feelings should dominate.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you possess ability to make people laugh during a time of crisis. You are going through a period of searching, but opening for greater expression is on horizon.

FORECAST FOR MONDAY, JULY 22, 1968

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Completion of important project indicated. Favorable effect on security shown. Family affair turns out well. No need to chastise one who disagreed. Extend hand of forgiving friendship.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Make that call to relative. Obtain hint from ARIES message. Show by actions that you are mature. Accent on short journey, messages. Take initiative. Utilize creative abilities.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Find out how best to utilize assets. Consult experts. Some who have experience express willingness to aid. Accent generous offer. Your instincts about project apt to prove correct.

Lucille Ball—New and Old

By BOB ROSE

LOS ANGELES — On a January night 15 years ago, America was talking about two big news events: the inauguration of Dwight D. Eisenhower as president, and the birth of a baby, the child of a young, named, blonde-haired comedienne named Lucille Ball and her Cuban-born husband, Columbo Hadda Hopper. Lucille Ball breathlessly reported that "interest in the birth was fantastic." She told how she was in Washington for the inaugural having cocktails with two distinguished publishers and their wives when one of the ladies rushed in and demanded that the TV set be turned on.

"Lucy's having her baby," she said. "We have to see if it's a boy or a girl."

It was the same all across the country, a country in the midst of a great baby boom. Everybody knew that Lucille Ball and Desi Arnaz, stars of the fantastically popular I Love Lucy comedy show, were having a baby in real life as well as on the series.

Since the baby had to be delivered by caesarean section, their writers could time everything perfectly. And they did.

On Monday night, Jan. 19, 1953, the regular I Love Lucy show night: the episode was entitled, "Lucy Goes to the Hospital." When the show was over: the sponsor was able to end the unbearable suspense.

"It's a boy, Desi Arnaz Jr.," came the announcement.

Lucy is taking Desi Jr., which is still regularly on, in the ratings. The new show, titled here's Lucy, starts on CBS Sept. 23, again on a Monday.

Lucy is also taking Gale Gordon, her current co star, along with her from their I Love Lucy show, which has had a six-year run.

Lucy will be a widow (Lucy Carter) with two children, Kim (Lucie) and Craig (Desi).

"It's still the same Lucy. I'll never change that. She just has a new name," says Miss Ball, an ex-model and longtime movie star 34 films in 20 years pre-TV, and TV's reigning comedienne for 17 years.

Now she sits at a desk in an office that used to belong to Howard Hughes in the old, and how it all happened times, for closeups and long shots.

anyway. And she was most pleased with her children.

"When I asked them if they wanted to be in the series, they were so excited. Do you mean it, Mom, do you mean it? When do we start? I was afraid I'd have to be tougher with them, but they've buckled down on everything—their lines, their schoolwork. They're getting better grades now with a tutor than they did in school. They're even taking language courses voluntarily during the summer."

But most of all Lucy thinks the kids will be accepted because of the response she gets on her Thursday night "Broadway Opening Nights" each week. Unlike most other TV comedy situation shows, hers has been done in front of an audience from the very first, using three cameras at all

City Beat

By HUGH REYNOLDS
Freeman City Hall Reporter

IT LOOKS like the Big Top won't be back to Kingston, at least as long as Mayor Garraghan is in office.

The circus that came to town June 12 left a lot of happy children, a lot of deep holes in the ground at Dietz Stadium and a lot of unhappy city officials.

The Beatty people also left $25 to cover the cost of cleaning and damage to the field, but this was hardly a down payment on the $200 patching job the city had to do. Fortunately a bond taken out by the sponsoring organization, the Knights of Columbus, covered the cost.

This was the second year in a row Garraghan was talked into letting the circus in town against his better judgement. The same thing happened last year and Ray said no more circuses, but being a sofie for kids, was eventually talked out of it. Now he's fed up.

But all is not lost. City officials have no complaints with the Coleman Carnival shows which leave the fields they rent in fine shape. Except for the animals there isn't much difference between a carnival and a circus, anyway.

WITH THE MAYOR'S secretary, June Diamond, on vacation drastic measures had to be taken. City Treasurer Stan Petro, the last of the two-fingered typists, volunteered his services and is doing a commendable job. Stan may not be too fast but he's accurate.

Speaking of Stan, the Petros are a pretty interesting political family. Stan is, of course, a Democrat, a committeeman and long-time friend (despite his youth) of Mayor Garraghan.

Stan's parents are both rockbed Republicans and have been for years. Stan's sister, Judy, is Ulster coordinator for Tommy Mayone in his campaign for Ulster County sheriff. Judy was also recently appointed to a job in Family Court, the bailiwick of John Ray Mayone, city Republican chairman.

A family gathering of the Petros must make for some interesting political discussions.

BACK TO John Mayone. It looks like the move to dump him from his city chairmanship ended with a meeting of the minds between H. Clark Bell and Peter J. Savago forces.

Bell's boys were hot after John Ray following the significant defeat of Savago, a heavy favorite whom Mayone backed to the hilt. Twenty-seven city committeemen were needed to accomplish the deed but sources close to this column said the highwater mark was reached at 18. Close, but no cigar. Better to string along with John Ray until after the election than blow the whole bit over a party split.

There were a few other considerations, too, like who was going to replace the hardworking city chairman. John was open to criticism but being lazy wasn't one of them.

Democrats, of course, are a bit let down over the settlement. They have a strong candidate this year in Dr. Gerald Gorman who stood a good chance of making it if the Bell-Savago primary battle had expanded into a major party split. With the tacit unity of the party, it looks like Bell is once again a favorite. Aren't all Republicans running on a county level?

HALLMARKS — Morton Finch, one of the city's fire commissioners, recently returned from the hospital and looks in fine shape. Mort has more than a passing interest in the aldermanic race in his ward this year. His son, Jack, is running on the Democratic ticket against Louis Smith in the new Fifth Ward. Should be a most interesting race as both men are well-known and popular in their ward with Smith having an edge in campaign experience.

Voting Next Week On New Housing Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate and House are expected to vote next week on a $5.4-billion housing bill hailed by one sponsor as the greatest advance against slums in 20 years and by another as "breath-taking in its scope."

In what amounted to a victory for President Johnson, House-Senate conferees agreed late Friday on a compromise version of the measure whose major new feature is government interest subsidies to help low-income families buy homes.

The conferees took just five days to iron out some 150 differences in the versions that passed the separate chambers. The final bill follows closely legislation as recommended by the administration which will carry out the first three years of a 10-year program the President hopes will wipe out slums.

Agreement by the conferees virtually assures passage by the House and Senate.

The provision to assist home buying is aimed at 500,000 families in the $3,000-$6,000 income bracket.

CONTROVERSIAL SIGN — Robie Construction, general contractor at Rondout Gardens and Colonial Gardens, has erected a sign to explain its position in the company's current dispute with Teamster's Local 445. The sign, erected Thursday afternoon, met with immediate opposition from the Teamsters and the Kingston Housing Authority which is building the two apartment houses. The Authority has ordered the sign removed and the Teamsters have threatened possible court action. (Freeman photo by Kruh).

Ray Tucked Away In Memphis Jail

By BILL OHNSON
Associated Press Writer

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) —

James Earl Ray, tucked safely behind the most elaborate security screen ever seen here, awaits the first meeting with his lawyer since being removed from a London jail.

The lawyer, Arthur Hanes of Birmingham, Ala., arrived by plane from New York shortly before midnight Friday, quickly got into a car and drove to a downtown hotel—escorted by six policemen.

Hanes told newsmen here he had talked briefly with Ray shortly before his client was handed over to United States authorities for the Thursday flight to Memphis.

After being searched and passed through cordons of heavily armed, helmeted sheriff's deputies, Hanes presumably will be admitted to the third-floor cell block where Ray, charged with the April 4 assassination of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., is confined in the Shelby County Jail.

Quarter-inch steel plates cut off light and air from the windows, and the hum of newly installed air conditioners provides a quiet background for the talks.

There is a telephone at hand, and in the corridor there is a sandbag-lined steel box—the receptacle for any bomb or explosive device that might be smuggled past all the guards and security.

Ray, arrested in London June 8, was taken to the jail just before dawn Friday after a secret flight aboard a U.S. Air Force jet from Britain. Hanes, who caught a later flight to the United States, protested the decision that prevented him from accompanying Ray.

No date has been set for an arraignment for Ray, and Hanes is expected to work this out with Judge Preston Battle, who will preside at Ray's trial, and the prosecution. Ray must enter a plea at the arraignment.

It was learned that Judge Battle does not expect to set a trial date at the time of the arraignment, but will give opposing counsel time to determine when they are ready.

Battle has laid down strict ground rules for the trial, sharply limiting news and photo coverage and forbidding all the principals—and even employees of the court from making any comments about the case. A copy of this order had not been served on Hanes when he arrived in New York from London.

Steel Strike Near Reality

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A big sentiment after top union negotiators called for a strike vote. "We're tickled pink about this," said George A. Pashkevich, vice president of the local. "I know the international will be pleased."

Most of the rest of the rank and file will vote Tuesday. The first public demonstration of the federal government's interest in the status of the bargaining surfaced Friday when the nation's top mediator, William Simkin, flew to Pittsburgh.

He met with the nine-man committee that will settle the basic wage - benefits package and said: "Both parties desire very sincerely to reach a mutually satisfactory agreement without a strike and without government intervention. I support that objective. I hope and believe that it can be accomplished."

Simkin, who worked out a four-month contract extension that prevented a strike in 1965, said his visit was not government intervention.

Both union and management, worried about their crucial role in the economy, have repeatedly said they want the government to stay out of this year's negotiations.

Simkin, who had tried to keep his visit secret, returned to Washington and said he had no plans to return to Pittsburgh soon. He refused to give any evaluation of the talks.

Novel on '66 Congressional Election In This Area Called "Real Scorcher"

"A real scorcher," Doubleday Publishing Company calls "GRASS ROOTS," a novel by Catskill author, Jane Barry, and just released last week.

Billed as a novel of "outside love and inside politics," Grass Roots is based on the 1966 Congressional election in this district which pitted Alexander Aldrich against Hamilton Fish Jr. in the Primary and Fish against Joseph Y. Resnick in the General Election of that year.

Since Doubleday publicized book before its release as one which "rips the lid off local politics, and shows the intimate inner workings of how campaigns are run," we asked author Barry if there was a villain in the novel. Said Miss Barry, "No, unless perhaps it's politics as such. For individuals I don't think there are good guys or bad guys in politics. There are just a lot of hungry guys. That's not bad, that's just human."

The Inside Scene

She went on to say: "The book deals with how a campaign on the local level is run. How it works. The scene is from the inside where the entire drive is just to win, not what is going to happen after you win."

"In lots of ways a political campaign is like a war. For the people in the campaign, like a soldier in combat, it's all reduced to just zap Charley before Charley zaps you. Everything gets lost in the combat itself. All the ideas and ideals and good and bad are for the non-combatants, the people on the sidelines," she said.

And what of Miss Barry herself, whose political novel deals with that recently remembered and toughly contested political campaign for Congress? She's a Hudson River Valley native, born and raised in Greene County, and Grass Roots is her sixth book. Although she's one of the most successful novelists in our immediate area, she is probably not as well known locally as she should be—a fact that stems from her propensity for shunning publicity and personal appearances.

"I didn't used to mind being on radio and television or talking to groups, but I found I liked it less and less and now do not do it at all," Miss Barry says.

First About Today

First published in 1955, Miss Barry's first two novels, THE LONG MARCH, and THE CAROLINIANS dealt with the American Revolution. Her next three books, TIME IN THE SUN, a Book of the Month selection, SHADOW OF EAGLES and MAXIMILIAN'S GOLD, presently under movie contract, were set in the American South West. Grass Roots is her first contemporary novel.

But she does bring to the subject of her new book a life-long experience in local politics on the grass roots level. Her father, the late Levitt Powell, was supervisor of the Town of New Baltimore, and her earliest memories involve small town politics.

Married to John D. Barry in 1952, she has been immersed in politics ever since her husband, president of John Barry Associates Inc., a public relations firm of Catskill, managed the Hamilton Fish Jr. congressional campaign in 1966. In his business Barry has been running political campaigns for 15 years.

"Ever since I married John our life seems to have been one political campaign after another. In the early days I used to go to a lot of political functions with John. I gave that up when I realized one day that I heard all the political speeches at least 10 years ago," Miss Barry said.

Fought for Fish

Asked if she participated in the Fish campaign to get material for Grass Roots, Miss Barry who worked actively in support of Fish said, "No. I had been thinking of a political novel for years. I jumped into the actual campaign finally because John was so deeply involved, and in the general election against Congressman Resnick we all knew we were going to lose. I couldn't stand to see John get beaten, as he knew he was going to be, without doing all I could to help."

In reading the book, one would have to grant that Miss Barry displays a thorough knowledge of politics from the inside. The novel is fully contemporary in tone and handling and the author calls it "contemporary historical." Only the fact that the hard-fought campaigns upon which the novel is structured occurred in the very recent past separates it from what could be termed traditional historical novel.

Like all historical novels, Grass Roots depends upon actual events to create the novel structure and development. Readers will recognize the fact that the author's close involvement in the 1966 campaign upon which the novel is based gives a vividness and power to the writings, as well as a universal understanding of the people and drives that dominate political campaigns.

Jane Barry's GRASS ROOTS should prove to be of more than passing interest to local readers in this election year of 1968 since two of its main protagonists have been much in the news again of late. If Fish lost to Resnick in 1966, he has proved his durability in his comeback bid for Congress this year. And if Resnick was the winner who took all two years ago, he has now suffered the same type of defeat he bestowed on Fish by being beaten by Paul O'Dwyer, whose followers were once referred to by Resnick as "a few marbles rattling around in the bottom of a tin can and making a lot of noise."

Two Broadway Hits for a Summer's Evening

THE HOMECOMING, Harold Pinter's hit of London and new York will be playing at The Woodstock Playhouse for two more performances, tonight and tomorrow night. THE APPLE TREE, a funny, delightful musical, opens Wednesday, July 24 and runs for two weeks.

The Homecoming is theatre of the new genre, certainly different — certainly shocking — in its conception. Pinter has written a play about the black side of the mind, but he has retained his character's humanity. He has mixed laughter and a macabre kind of lunacy. He shows us forces from the primeval world existent in the present. And then he turns the tables on us, just as surely as his heroine Ruth, the "sacrifice," confounds her new family by suddenly, irrevocably becoming the powerful one in the family circle. The pivotal role of Ruth is performed with cool lucidity by Tanny McDonald. Her husband, who has brought her home to London to meet his family, is played by

The Apple Tree has been called one of the most delightfully, downright funny musicals ever to hit the Broadway stage, where it was the toast of the season. Actually, it is an evening of three one-acts. The first, The Diary of Adam and Eve, is based on a short story by Mark Twain. In it we see a Twain version of the original Garden of Eden with a perplexed Adam and a continually delightful Eve. Tanny McDonald plays Eve, Gene Nye is cast as Adam, and Gary Miller portrays the devilish snake.

The second show of the evening is an uproarious spoof called The Lady and the Tiger, in which we have a heavily feathered and beaded Princess Barbera trying to decide whether it is better to lose her lover to a tiger or to another woman. Miss McDonald is the slightly selfish Princess; her hapless lover, Captain Sanchar, is Gary Miller. The playlet's balladeer is R. Mack Miller, and King Arick is created by Nicco Boccio.

The last of the Apple Tree trio is the one-act written by witty Jules Feiffer, Passionella, a take-off on the old Cinderella story. A poor chimney sweep yearns to be a moo-vie star, "not a well-liked, rich, beautiful, glamorous moo-vie star, just a beautiful, glamorous moo-vie star." And does she get her wish? The marvelous character Passionella is played by triple threat actress-singer-comedienne Tanny McDonald and her Prince Charming, Flip the Rock n'Roll singer, by Gene Nye. The narrator of the show is Michael Bradshaw. For a triple treat sounds like you'd better see the Woodstock Playhouse's fabulous production of The Apple Tree designed by David Segal and directed by Harold Baldrige.

Tickets are available for all performances. For reservations call the box office.

Beal Exhibit Revives Legend: No Flies on Mary's Railings

Now in its third week, the Gifford Beal exhibition at the Storm King Art Center in Cornwall, is attracting many visitors.

The exhibit featuring the works of the late artist who spent a great of his life in Newburgh and the New England region, will continue until August 25.

Among the late artist's many paintings done in the Newburgh area, the one showing the departure of the popular river steamer, Mary Powell, from the Newburgh landing stage during the early part of the century, has attracted considerable attention.

Out of Rondout

The Mary Powell was built in 1861 for the Hudson River Day Line for passenger service only. Her captain was Absalom L. Anderson who sailed his craft between Rondout Creek at Kingston, and New York City.

A popular legend about the fine old riverboat which was named after Mrs. Beal's great-grandmother, was that Capt. Anderson was so proud of his ship that he had the flies whisked from her railings to keep the vessel's weight down for better speed.

This boat was one of the finest, fastest, safest and most popular of the Day Line's ships. She was also considered the most beautiful.

The Mary Powell remained in service for almost 50 years since boat trips up and down the Hudson River, until 1915, was the only way to travel to the vacation areas of the Hudson Valley.

The grounds of the Art Center are an added attraction at the exhibition. Art lovers, students and horticulturists will find the many outdoor works of art interesting. The Center is open daily except Monday, from 2 to 5 p.m. Admission is free.

STEELE IN "TREE"

The Festival That Sound Built

17-KINGSTON DAILY FREEMAN, JULY 20, 1968

By TOBIE GEERTSEMA

Everyone has to start somewhere! There on a field outside Woodstock, sitting on blankets or sprawled in the grass all around and behind me, were hundreds of people who had seen it every single time it came to town. The 20-year-old boy in the red poncho next to me had seen it four times. The girl in the long braids and bell-bottom frousters sitting in front of me had seen it three times. Everyone in all that great outdoors had seen it at least once or twice before. And I hadn't been to a Sound Festival even once. It was like a loss of innocence.

Presuming, just presuming, that there is someone else in the area (and they would have to be over 30) who hasn't seen it, a Sound Festival is something that shouldn't be missed. It's where the action is, it's where it's happening . . . and it's THE SCENE in letters a mile high.

If you want to be erudite about it, it's all part of the almost complete cultural revolution that has had its roots in the younger generation and which has swept across America in the last few years. It's that new trend in contemporary culture known as pop and it can be used to define topics and embrace emotions of almost every conceivable type. While it has rocked the world of art, drama, literature and lately, student endeavor and politics, its major influence has been on music — and even the so-called "serious music" has been made to sit up and take notice, and sometimes assimilate.

Flower-Casual

If you want to be more descriptive about it, Sound Festival (at least the Woodstock version) is an artistic contribution to the senses. The visual scene alone is worth the price of admission. The audience comes from all points north, east, south and west, and those who come do so to be involved as much as to listen. In attire that runs the gamut from Far East exotic and flower-casual to Bermuda shorts now considered square and mini-skirts no longer daring, they combine digging the music with sunbathing during the afternoon sessions, and take their blues and acid rock and folk around sizzling campfires at night.

Sound Festival is attempting to organize today's music and to present it for all it's worth. And even those who attend with reservations because of the generation gap (as we did) find themselves coming away with more understanding of pop and its influence on this country; and of youth and its aspirations.

We missed the first Sound Festival last Labor Day and the second last spring. And we missed the third over the Fourth of July weekend but that was the one in which Tim Hardin, Major Wylie, the Blues Magoos, Chrysalis, Happy and Artie Traum and a host of other contemporary music artists jazzed, jammed and rocked it up in a field on Pan Copeland's farm between Woodstock and Saugerties on Glasco Turnpike in High Woods. That was the one that attracted hundreds of scene makers from everywhere to pick up on how the music sounded out of the discotheques and in the open, free-of-four-walls confinement of the Catskills. That was the one where the old, familiar smell of woodsmoke from campfires mingled with the modern dazzle of a light show.

That was the one that was so successful, it sent out signals that another Sound Festival was called for as soon as possible.

There's Communication

Well, it's here and it arrived without any vintage labels attached. And it's interesting in its every aspect from the enthusiasm of the performers to the communication between them and the audience. As one who has rarely missed a Newport Jazz Festival is on its way and moving up. Lately, Newport has become totally commercial; has lost its sense of being different. Sound Festival seems to have the charisma Newport now lacks.

Last night we plugged in and tuned on the latest and current festival for size and it was a great way to spend an evening. The musicians who put in appearances were worth the attention of anyone who has ever wondered where music is going. Among them were the remarkable Cat Mother and the All Night Newsboys, Jerry Jeff Walker, Sweet Honey, Billy Batson, Scott Fagin, Major Wylie, Kathy Powers, Happy and Artie Traum, and Lothar and the Hand People . . . and there were others, too.

They'll all be back again today and tonight, beginning at 3 p. m. and infiltrating the mountain air until midnight. There's a light show by Pablo for a sunburst background and Bob Fass of WBAI and Kip Carson of WKIP share the MC honors, and food abounds right on the grounds at a spot called Putt's Place.

If you drive down Route 212 from Woodstock, follow the signs and fall by, you may find — as we did — that Sound Festival is informal and relaxed. And you may find that there is no truth in the legend that a magic moat separates popular and serious cultures. Somehow we got the impression that even Bach, who was a bit of a transcriber himself, would have approved of the fresh instrumentation we heard last night.

MAJOR WYLIE, who appeared at Woodstock's first sound Festival over the Fourth of July weekend, is back for the second such happening, the finale of which takes to the great outdoors tonight.

CHRYSALIS, a fairly recent rock group on the American scene, is due for stardom and all its trappings in the not too-distant future, insist the multitude of fans this youthfully talented group of musicians has attracted in several appearances in this area.

CRAFTS

With crafts—the old crafts that found their beginnings in handworked clay, fiber and metal—making a big comeback this year, more than a few local residents will probably be attending the 15th Annual York State Craft Fair. The fair will hold forth in the Terrace Dining Hall on the Ithaca College campus from Monday, Aug. 5 through Saturday, Aug. 10. It'll be open from 1 to 10 p. m. Monday through Friday and from 10 a. m. to 4 p. m. on Saturday.

This year's featured craftsman is the distinguished jeweler Jean Delius of Buffalo. Her imaginative designs, combining enamels with gold or silver, as well as her consummate skill in handling technical difficulties, has gained her a notable reputation that vies with her fame as a teacher.

In addition, seminars in clay, fiber and metal will be offered each morning at 9:15 to 12 noon, as follows: Metal, Aug. 7, Fiber, Aug. 8, and Clay, Aug. 9. These seminars may be signed up for either in advance or on the mornings slated. The mornings of Aug. 5, 6 and 10 will offer demonstrations in Joinery Craft-In, a new feature of the fair this year. Distinguished craftsmen from Ohio, New York, New Hampshire and Massachusetts will participate in the seminars and demonstrations or serve as moderators.

Another activity will be

Constructions for Youngsters, entering its second year and providing a supervised area for both play activity and a means of expression. Children have been so enthusiastic about this feature that the excitement of their spontaneous constructions have made it a permanent part of the fair, and all children over five years are invited daily from 1 to 4 p. m.

Continuing demonstrations at the fair will include pottery, weaving, printing, enameling and glass blowing, as well as metal casting.

Over There Posters

An exhibition of "Posters and Sheet Music" from the period of World War II (1914-1918) will go on display at Museum Village of Smith's Clove, on Sunday, July 21.

The posters reflect the patriotic fervor of the times and the music is concerned with variations on the theme of "Mother," "Over There," "Roses," "The Girl I Left Behind Me," and others.

Included in the exhibition at the Monroe Museum will be military equipment and dress reflecting the war. The exhibition will end on Aug. 18.

Television

On the eve of her 17th year in TV, Lucille Ball is making a brand new start. Her upcoming "Here's Lucy," which debuts this fall on CBS, gives her the distinction of launching and starring in three prime network comedy series. Also new will be the fact that she'll be making her own children a part of her professional life. Via a new format, Lucie Arnaz and Desi Arnaz Jr., were written into the series. Seems the kids have always been interested in show business and Lucy feels the hard work involved in a full-time TV career, in addition to keeping up with schoolwork, will keep them on the straight and narrow.

Another fall show that may possibly have the making of a hit is "The Ugliest Girl in Town." It'll be fun, gags and quips and, for a switch, the "ugliest girl" will be played by young Canadian actor Peter Kastner. The series will run Thursday nights over ABC and revolves around the swinging adventures of a kookie young Hollywood junior talent agent and his equally kookie English girlfriend. Insiders say the idea came from Twiggy's life story. Since she looks more like the boy next door than the girl next door, author Robert Kaufman dreamed up a script about a Twiggy in reverse — a thin, 17-year-old boy who is mistaken for a girl model and let loose in the fantastic shirl of the contemporary London mod scene.

Olympics Again

Been wondering when the Summer Olympics will be televised what with all those advance advertising commercials? ABC's tentative schedule calls for a one-hour special on Sunday, Oct. 6. Opening ceremonies will be aired Oct. 12 and closing ceremonies will be live and in color Sunday, Oct. 27.

There's talk in TV circles of resurrecting the classic "Abie's Irish Rose" for a series and, if it happens, it'll be because of two witty people named Jerry Stiller and Anne Meara. You've probably seen Jerry (a Jewish boy) and Anne (his Brooklyn wife with the "map of Ireland" on her face) on the Ed Sullivan show. They've done more than 30 of their ethnic comedy routines on that Sunday night program in the past few years. Incidentally, Anne was once an apprentice at the Woodstock Playhouse.

REFLECTIONS: TV has to be given credit for trying to promote understanding between the races, with series like ABC's Time for Americans and CBS's Of Black America. Nevertheless, the media's major job must be to get those who need to be taught compassion and understanding to watch. Most viewers, it seems to us, are usually concerned people who already care... Without the British Isles, TV wouldn't be half as interesting since Patrick McGoochan is one of the smoothest actors around, Roger Moore one of the best looking, and Patrick Macnee one of the suave.

Since it's cooler inside than out these humid nights — and since the mosquitoes around our house refuse to allow us in the backyard anyway — we've been watching a lot of night-time TV of late. Among the shows that intrigued us last week was Channel 17's "Conversation with Muhammed Ali" in which former champ Cassius Clay told how he feels about being stripped of his title, what it means to be a Black Muslim, and how he feels about George Wallace and other members of the white race.

Watching the Miss Universe Beauty Pageant with 63 — count 'em — 63 beautiful girls from different countries, brought home the fact that, statistically, the girls are getting bigger in each successive show from a tape measure standpoint. There were actually some size 16's on parade.

Real Shockers

What made "Prejudice and the Police" on Time For Americans well worth the viewing were those nose-to-nose confrontations between minority community leaders and the cops. All of them were real shockers as were the aftermaths.

You didn't miss anything if you didn't catch "A Walk in the Night" on Premiere — all about a Swedish seaman who jumps ship in Chicago, of all places, to try to find his wife. On the other hand, "Justice and the Poor" over Channel 17 did an excellent job of pinpointing legal inequities at all levels.

Funniest bit of the week, far as we're concerned, was Paul Lynde as a nervous flagpole sitter who's stunned to find a lady reporter shinnying up the pole for an interview on Thursday's "Dean Martin Presents the Goldiggers" show.

Perusing the possibilities for homescreen viewing in the week ahead, TEMPO suggests the following as fairly good bets:

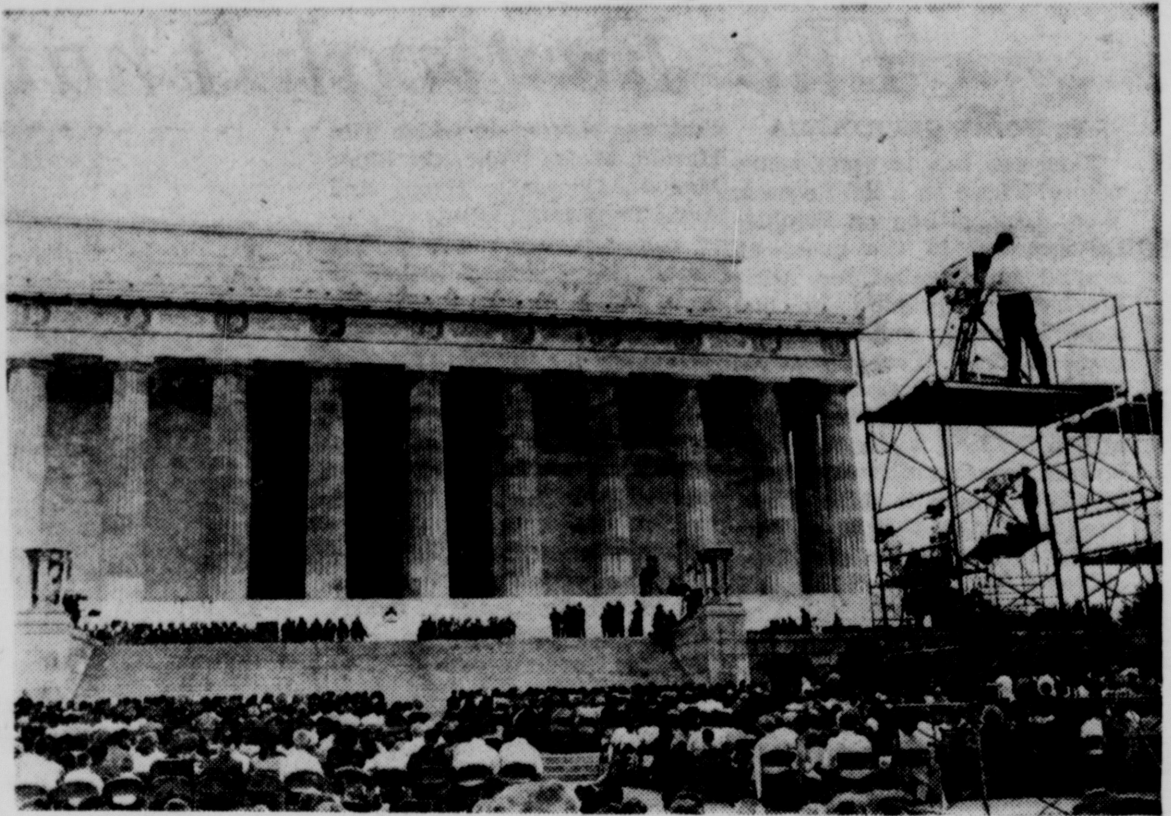

Today, Sat., July 20.

WIDE WORLD OF SPORTS (ABC, 5 p. m.). Featuring the World Figure "8" Stock Car Championships from Islip, L.I., and the World Lumberjack Championships from Hayward, Wis.

THE PRISONER (CBS, 7:30 p. m.). A highly provocative episode in which the Village where he is held captive turns into a ghost town enabling Pat McGoochan to escape via a scary sea route.

Sunday, July 21

PUBLIC HEARING (CBS, 11:30 a. m.). "Humphrey vs. McCarthy" is the topic debated by a Humphrey assistant and CAMERAS OF NET'S Washington affiliate station were on hand to record a memorial program for Carl Sandburg held on the steps of the Lincoln Memorial last September. Footage of this event will be included when NET FESTIVAL presents its tribute to the late poet next Wednesday at 9 p. m. on Channel 17.

a McCarthy delegate — at large in the N. Y. State delegation to the Dem National Convention.

ANIMAL KINGDOM (NBC, 6:30 p. m.). Focus is on the Florida Everglades with its variety of snakes, turtles, rare birds and rarer insects, plus the stars of the show — the vanishing alligators now threatened by extinction.

DR. JEKYLL AND MR. HYDE (ABC, 9 p. m.). A repeat but an excellent one of this classic warhorse, with Jack Palance playing the dual personality with restraint and a minimum of makeup.

Of Zithers and Roller Organs

"Dimensions of American Music" is the title of the unique exhibit of old musical instruments that is now being displayed on the mezzanine of the Hall of Springs on the Saratoga Spa grounds.

Created and installed by the New York State Museum and Science Service, the exhibit has been loaned to the Saratoga Performing Arts Center by Clifford C. Allanson, executive director of the New York State Council of Retail Merchants, Inc., and noted collector of musical Americana.

Brass horns, zithers, roller organs, and a variety of other instruments of historical interest will be on display in the Hall of Springs evenings from 5:30 p. m. through the first intermission throughout the Saratoga Performing Arts Center's 1968 summer festival, which formally opened on July 4.

The exhibit is the third in an annual series inaugurated simultaneously with the opening of the Performing Arts Center in 1966. Last summer, ballet costumes of Barbara Karinska and ballet photographs of Martha Swope were featured, and the previous year, the exhibit was devoted to memorabilia of old Saratoga and her racing community.

Allanson, who has played a number of instruments for many years and now plays the trombone in the Delmar Community Orchestra, began his rare collection years ago when living in Ithaca. He and his wife built a country house of logs for an escape place in a wooded area on their property. When looking for primitives to decorate the country house, Allanson found a couple of zithers which he intended to use for decoration. But, as he explains, "The zithers were too interesting to hang on the wall," so they were repaired and played, and never were used for mere decoration.

The Allanson collection now contains about 800 items, and Clifford Allanson can speak with authority about each of them.

Steuben Day

Steuben Day, originally scheduled for early June at the New Windsor Cantonment but rained out, will be celebrated Sunday, Aug. 4, at the "living" museum, which is in its fourth season. The day will honor the memory of the great German soldier who came to America in the dark days of Valley Forge and infused new skill and determination in Washington's army. The original program, featuring members of the Westchester Militia in field exercises at 2 p. m., will be maintained. One of these will be a re-enactment of General Friedrich Wilhelm von Steuben's first efforts in drilling rag-tag colonial troops. Heinrich Schreiber, the Cantonment's farrier, will portray Steuben.

On Sunday, July 21, the Cantonment at nearby Vails Gate will feature General Knox Day, with talks on artillery. On July 28, Training Day, the New York Line will be featured in military exercises.

Suddenly Faier Is Everywhere

Billy Faier, who hails from Woodstock and has soared to the top in musical circles, will appear in concert—playing banjo and singing his own all new songs—Tuesday, July 23 at the Woodstock Playhouse. The popular Faier has played the Playhouse almost every summer for the past decade and audiences there have come to know him as an old friend, talented musician and versatile performer.

Faier's material Tuesday will be brand new and all original compositions and the Woodstock musician says it will be his first performance of a spanking new sound for banjo—a sound he describes as "very flowing, of Eastern influence and highly improvisational."

Faier, as most of his fans know, has played Broadway, had his own radio program over a New York City station, made a galaxy of records, and given concerts in famous folk houses all over the U.S.

The artist as opposed to musician side of Faier shows up currently in his show of light-boxes at Woodstock's Polari Gallery. The show which opened last Sunday and runs through July 28 highlights Faier's talent in an exciting new art form. Public response to his striking light-boxes (not to be confused with light shows) has been enthusiastic. For Faier, who has been working in this media for the past year, the boxes represent "a work of art illuminated from within."

As a producing artist concerned with self expression in many forms, Faier has virtually taken over the art colony this week. He'll be on double view at the Playhouse and the Polari and the public is the winner in being afforded an opportunity to see the two sides of Billy Faier. So drop into Polari and see the light-box show and reserve your tickets for the July 23 concert through the Playhouse box office.

Anne Bancroft For Berkshire

Anne Bancroft will star in the Berkshire Theatre Festival's second 1968 production, William Gibson's "A Cry of Players" opening Wednesday, July 24 at nearby Stockbridge, Mass. Miss Bancroft continues her association with Mr. Gibson which began when she starred in "Two for the Seesaw" and "The Miracle Worker."

"A Cry of Players" follows Elaine May's "A Matter of Position" which completes its three week run tonight.

Gene Frankel, who directed "The Blacks" off-Broadway and Samuel Beckett's "Waiting for Godot" in the Festival's inaugural season, directs "A Cry of Players," which also stars Frank Langella.

Langella, who received an Obie for his performance in Robert Lowell's "The Old Glory" returns to the Berkshire Theatre where he was seen in

Roerick Returns

William Roerick, who first appeared on the Berkshire Playhouse stage with Ethel Barrymore in "Declassee" is featured in "A Cry of Players." His more recent credits include Max in the National Company of Harold Pinter's "The Homecoming" and DeSade in the National Repertory Theatre's production of "Marat/Sade."

Music for "A Cry of Players" has been composed by Richard Peaslee who wrote the music for Peter Brook's original production of "Marat/Sade." Settings are being designed by David Mitchell and lighting is by the Festival's resident lighting designer Michael Davidson. Costumes are by Patricia Quinn Stuart.

Mail orders are being accepted now for "A Cry of Players" at the Berkshire Theatre Festival, Stockbridge, Massachusetts.

How to Rent an Opera Company

The cost of buying an opera company is beyond most people's reach. The cost of renting one, however, is within reason thanks to the New York State Council on the Arts Touring Program. The program, now in its eighth year, provides financial assistance to non-profit community groups and institutions to help defray the cost of performers' fees. The program thus helps professional performing arts groups to reach communities throughout the state which, without state aid, could ill afford them; it consequently supports the artists themselves by giving them increased opportunities to perform and to earn a salary commensurate with their talents and training. To stimulate community participation, funds are directed to local sponsors (PTA's, colleges, service organizations) who make all arrangements including ticket sales, booking of theatres, and local publicity. Information concerning attractions is contained in the Council's Touring Program brochure, now available from the Council's offices at 250 West 57th Street, New York City 10019. Included in the booklet is an application blank for council support. This year's brochure contains a listing of 89 symphony and other musical groups, 52 dance groups, and 18 opera attractions. For the first time, provision for Council support of solo recitalists has been made. This season the Touring Program assisted in the presentation of over 340 concert, dance, theatre and opera performances in 190 communities throughout the state.

Now, at KINGSTON SAVINGS BANK you can choose the Savings Plan you like best—and still get high SAVINGS BANK interest-dividends.

5% a year on REGULAR SAVINGS ACCOUNTS — latest interest-dividend, compounded quarterly, paid from day of deposit.

DAY OF DEPOSIT TO DAY OF WITHDRAWAL ACCOUNTS will earn one-quarter percent per annum less than regular savings accounts, as prescribed by N. Y. State Banking Law. Interest-dividends credited for whatever number of days your money is on deposit provided a balance of at least $10.00 remains in the account at the end of the quarterly dividend period. This account is advantageous for people who make frequent deposits and withdrawals.

5% a year guaranteed interest compounded semi-annually on TIME DEPOSIT ACCOUNTS, if held to maturity.

Available anytime in amounts from $1,000, maturity on any day you select from 6 months to 2 years. You may however, withdraw part or all of your money at any time after 30 days at a reduced rate in accordance with regulations of the N. Y. State Banking Department.

Salty Art

The salty seaport village of Mystic, Conn., will again be the setting for the Annual Mystic Outdoor Art Festival, a yearly event returning for the 11th time and slated on Aug. 10 and 11. Mystic will literally be taken over by some 300 entrants who will set-up "Portable Art Galleries" along the narrow streets and picturesque riverbanks, as professional and amateur artists come from all over the U.S. to present a colorful two-mile panorama of art. The festival has three simple rules for exhibiting: the work must be original, it must have been executed by the exhibitor, and the exhibitor must assume full responsibility for his equipment and work. Entry applications may be obtained from the Festival at its Mystic address and a nominal registration fee is the only financial obligation of the artist. Some 50,000 tourists and local residents are expected to spend the two days browsing, "people-watching," bargaining, and buying from the vast variety of art work available.

Focus on New Trends

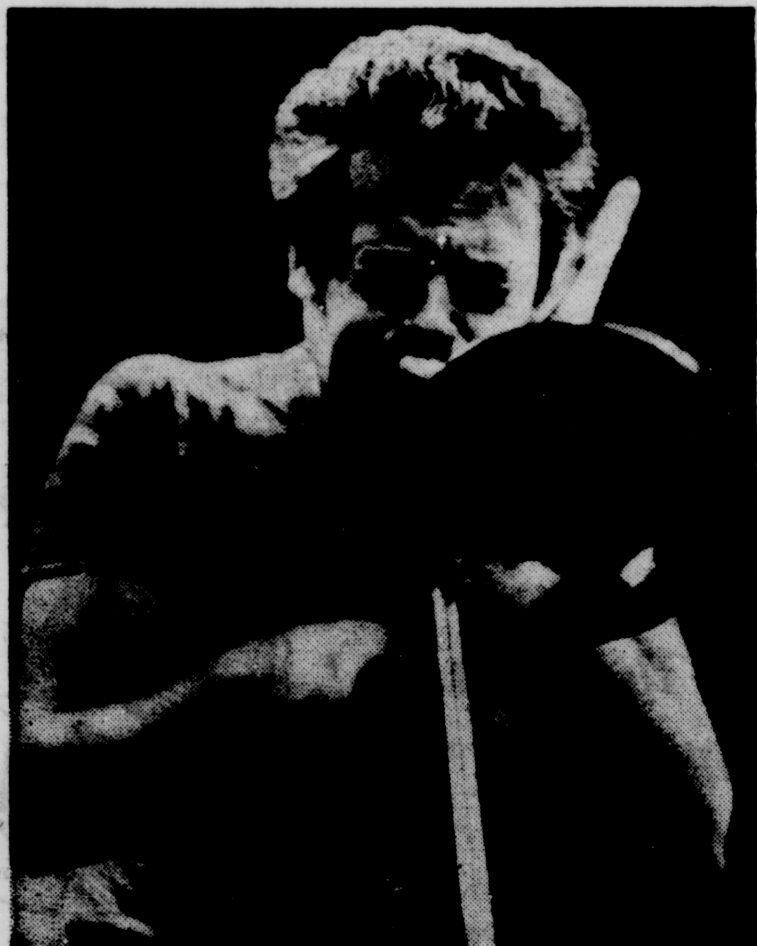

RAVI SHANKER

Global Flavor

"Wide World" is the theme of the current exhibition at the Woodstock Artists Association Gallery on Tinker Street, Woodstock. The show is the fourth of the current season and must be tabbed one of the most colorful. An international flavor is conveyed by the paintings whose motifs were inspired by the experiences of the artists while traveling both in this country and abroad.

A jury consisting of Harold Baumbach, Sam Prager, and Maurice Sievan made the final selection from the many works submitted. While landscape predominates in subject matter, there are many works depicting figures characteristic of various foreign locales. The Mediterranean area and Latin America are the most frequently portrayed regions. The show runs through July 24.

Primordial Jazz Blast

AN ENGLISH MAGAZINE rates Roswell Rudd as "the world's number ONE trombonist," and he'll attempt to prove just that when he brings his Primordial Jazz Octet to the stage of the Woodstock Playhouse for a late show session at 11 o'clock tonight. Veteran of Manhattan's Survival Music series, Rudd's big band features two saxes, a clarinet, vocalist Susan Elrauch, two bass fiddles, drums, and Rudd alternating on trombone, French horn and piano. Reminiscent of Duke Ellington's old band trombone-soundwise, the Rudd Octet also takes off on wild atonal patterns, astonishing staccato runs and off-note melodies. Tonight's show should be jazz at its best what with Rudd's record of winning the title of Best Jazz Arranger of 1966 and a Downbeat Jazz Poll earlier

Tanglewood, in nearby Lenox, Mass., has long been a musical mecca for those who appreciate the symphony orchestra. And Saratoga Springs, just a stone's throw from Albany, is one of those quiet upstate college towns for most of the year that comes excitingly alive during the summer as an arts center for performances of every type.

Ulster residents are fortunate in having both these festival breeding grounds so close to home. Thousands of people drive hundreds of miles to enjoy the riches offered at Tanglewood and Saratoga, while those of us who live here in the Mid-Hudson Valley are able to do so in our own leisurely fashion.

And, from Tanglewood this week, via a press party tossed by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, came news that was startlingly new. Tanglewood, steeped in the traditions of the classics, said orchestra spokesmen, is definitely "getting with it." Interspersed with all the Brahms and Bach this season will be "Contemporary-Trends" Concerts. Sponsored by the Berkshire Music Center, the "new" concerts will feature jazz and folk, music from India, and rock.

Keeping Pace

Tanglewood, which has towered over the music scene for many years, has apparently remained modern enough to see the direction in which concert performances have been developing in recent years and has recognized the fact that the young people who study there have grown up with popular music in all its guises. Bowing to progress, the musical center will strive to present pop music and so-called serious music in amiable co-existence.

It is also significant that the Berkshire Music Center is showing its awareness of these new musical developments not only by instituting the concerts, but by keeping the participants in residence for varying periods to work with students.

The first concert came off successfully July 17 when a jazz/folk evening presented Judy Collins, The Modern Jazz Quartet and Don Ellis and Orchestra. Two more are planned this month: Music from India with Ravi Shankar and Ali Akbar Khan on July 24, and The Association in a rock show on July 31. Both will be at 8 p. m. in the Shed at Tanglewood.

Looking to the future, too, and realizing that in the recent past serious and pop music have influenced one another in remarkable and unexpected ways, is the Saratoga Performing Arts Center. To broaden the public's vision of art and recall the days when Saratoga was the exciting and glamorous "Queen of American Spas," SPAC also combines the classics (ballet and symphonies) with the new (movies and electric guitars).

In Third Week

The New York City Ballet has just entered its third week at SPAC with premieres of two ballets: "Slaughter on Tenth Avenue," and "Meditation." "Slaughter" is George Balanchine's new ballet and, on the same program, the troupe features "Divertimento No. 15" and "La Valse," featuring Patricia McBride. The triple bill can be seen tonight at 8:30 p. m. and tomorrow's matinee, at 3:30 offers "Serenade," with Melissa Hayden; "Allegro Brillante," with Miss McBride and Anthony Blum; "Meditation," with Suzanne Farrell and Jacques d'Amboise, and "Ballet Imperial," with Violette Verdy. Other events slated at SPAC this week include: Sunday, July 21, 8:30 p. m.—Congress of Strings concert at the amphitheater, a free program featuring a 60-member orchestra of young string players with Richard Burgin conducting. The Spa Summer Theatre Film Festival, tonight at 7:30 and 9 p. m. has Katharine Hepburn in her film debut, "A Bill of Divorcement," with John Barrymore. The week of July 21 to July 27 will be devoted to three of the best of the films of Humphrey Bogart, one of the all-time great screen personalities. The films are "The Treasure of the Sierra Madre," playing from July 21 to 23, "The Petrified Forest" playing on July 24 and 25, and "The Maltese Falcon" on July 26 and 27.

PATRICIA McBRIDE and CONRAD LUDLOW

Courbette, Croupade, Capriole

One of the world's rarest and most exciting displays, the leaping Lippizan stallions will be at the 128th Orange County Fair on Friday, August 2. The program will take place in the Fair Stadium, Middletown, at 2 p. m.

Prof. Ottomar Herrmann, who brought the animals from Austria, will put on the display with his family.

The Royal Lippizans, also known as Lippizanners, perform their famous "airs above the ground," the courbette, croupade and capriole, in which the great horses seem to hang suspended in the air, thus giving the display its name.

One of the most amazing feats is the series of three caprioles when the horse leaps three times in the air, stretching its legs each time in a great arc.

Flying Falcon

"Flying Falcon," ridden by Harry Herrmann, is the world's only horse to jump a bar while standing on his hind legs like a man.

One other horse has done this, one trained 50 years ago by the professor's father.

When asked how he trained the animal, the professor changes the subject, but whatever the secret it means kindness.

"I hate the whip," the professor says. "Speak to him kind and be with patience."

Solely for Beauty

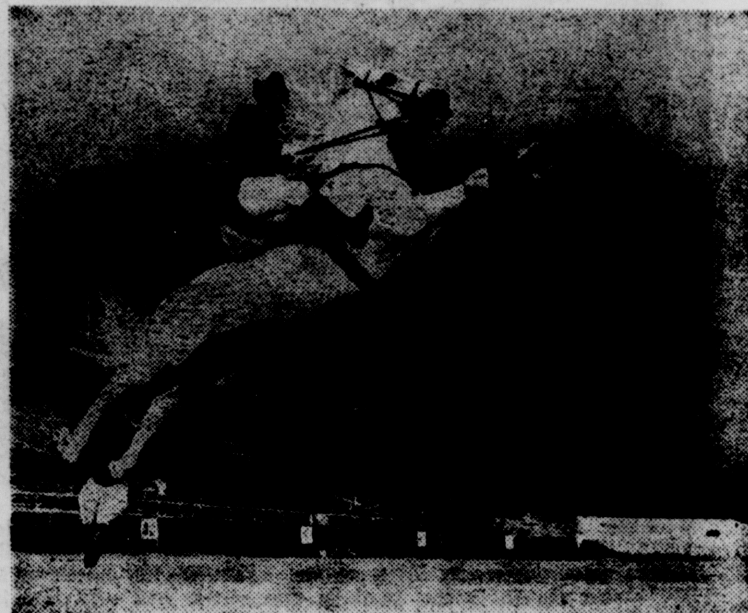

The horses were originally taught these maneuvers for use in battle by Austrian nobility, but now they are done solely for beauty.

Only a few hundred of the breed are alive at a time and only a handful can make the great leaps.

The whole breed was threatened with extinction at the end of World War II when the Russians overran Austria. Herrmann was one of those who smuggled the horses away to the protection of Gen. George Patton and the American Army.

The escape was told in the Walt Disney movie "Miracle of the White Stallions."

MOVIES

THOROUGHLY MODERN MILLIE. Anyone who has ever heard of Ross Hunter (a fairly big name as movie producers go) knows full well that he generally dresses up his films (Magnificent Obsession and Madame X among others) for the suburbanite who likes to see a pretty girl in a fine pickle wearing reams of fancy frocks. In Thoroughly Modern Millie, he fits Julie Andrews into some flapperish fantasies by designer Jean Louis to continue the trend. And if this is not the greatest musical ever produced, it is one that will be happily remembered for better reasons than its jazz age styles.

The image that lingers for this reviewer is Beatrice Lillie as a white-slave trader operating the Priscilla Hotel for Single Young Ladies. Pushing a creaky wicker laundry cart through the corridors, the inimitable comedienne collects the flibbertigibbet guests (Julie Andrews, Carol Channing and Mary Tyler Moore for starters) she has plied with chloroform, poisoned apples or spiked party punch and packs the poor things off to a Fate Worse Than Death.

Channing's entertaining, Moore gets plenty of opportunity to show her hoofing expertise in the picture, and comic relief is also generously displayed by Andrews, freed from the presweetened roles that have shot her to movie stardom without utilizing much of her obviously mischievous talent. A perfect Roaring Twenties flapper, Julie is the bee's knees as a light comedienne, heedlessly swan diving into every pitfall prepared for the heroine of this nitwit adventure yarn. Millie's a romp and it's now playing at Kingston's Community Theatre.

ROSEMARY'S BABY. Satan is alive and whooping it up on Central Park West in Manhattan. And the millions of readers of Ira Levin's best-selling chiller from which this movie was made should enjoy Old Nick on film as much as they did in the novel. Two reasons would be the excellent job of directing by Roman Polanski (the Pole who gave us Knife in the Water) and the superb acting ability of Mia Farrow.

Mia, as Rosemary Woodhouse, and her husband Guy (John Cassavetes) move delightedly into an apartment in a drafty old fortress of an apartment house in New York called the Branford. They're sure life there will be magical, but a faithful author friend (Maurice Evans) thinks it might be black magical inasmuch as the Branford has an unsavory history of suicides and diabolical happenings, including the near murder by a mob of a notorious Satanist.

Life at the Branford is fine at first. There's a funny old couple next door (Sidney Blackmer and Ruth Gordon) and a girl Rosemary's age. But then the girl commits suicide by jumping out a window. Still, the funny old couple is as darling as ever and Rosemary's hubby's acting career is booming—and so they plan to have a baby.

Even those who read the book and know how Baby comes out will get the eerie feeling when Rosemary passes out from too many martinis and too much chocolate mousse and has an all too real nightmare. And in what become the most unpleasant pregnancy in fiction, Rosemary grows more emaciated the more the funny old couple offer tonics and advice.

The old black magic that jinxed Rosemary and her baby makes for a bewitching film, full of suspense, and it's superb viewing as it continues into its second week at the Mayfair Theatre here.

THE GREEN BERETS, the movie they are holding over at the 9-W Drive-In for a second week, is virtually without precedent in this age of "new" cinema. Two qualities give it a special distinction. The first is that John Wayne should have stuck with stagecoach westerns and with the Marines on Iwo Jima instead of branching out as an authority on Vietnam. The other is that the content of this film is totally unbelievable in view of what the press and TV tell us about this war, which holds the distinction of being the longest conflict in which America has ever been involved.

Instead of leading his Berets into action in documentary style, quasi documentary style, or simply as an observer judging neither side, Wayne chooses to fictionalize a war that has become more real through television than any other in history . . . and to play the hawk to the hilt.

He preaches the righteousness of the U. S. cause from his own messianic conversion and does so with such a lack of common sense dedication that the nice - guys are always us; the bad guys those caviar devouring, champagne swilling V. C. Director and star Wayne is simple, honest and courageous; the American press (personified by David Janssen) is a bleeding dove; bullets fly as they do in standard cowboy flicks, and all Vietnamese talk like Indians in war-paint readying a massacre on a covered wagon train.

When Wayne tells a Vietnamese orphan at fade - out that he'll do all his worrying for him since the timorous tyke is "what this war's all about," most viewers will wonder dubiously why, if that's the case, American foreign policy is on the griddle, bestiality is in the headlines, the impact of bullets and Napalm on bodies is shown in the color pages of every magazine, and comprehension of this gory, glory-

JOHN WAYNE talks things over with Edward Faulkner, Jason Evers and George Takei after a Vietnam skirmish in "The Green Berets," war adventure film which has been held over and is now in its second week at the 9-W Drive-In here.

hallelujah war is so impossible for so many.

Still, "The Green Berets" is probably the most hopeful picture on display currently. Looking into his crystal ball, Wayne ends his film with the V.C. in full retreat and us in control.

THE SCALPHUNTERS. By contrast, this film — which takes second billing to "The Green Berets" at the 9-W Drive-In — is one of the cleverest sleepers of the year. It's an amusing western with a racial equality twist and it's got everything — an avalanche, a locoweed stampede, Shelley Winters chewing on cigars, an educated horse named Agnes who sits up like a human to talk with Burt Lancaster, and that most beguilingly guileful actor, Ossie Davis.

Davis plays a runaway slave with finely flaired fettle. Captured by Indians, foisted on fur trader Lancaster, and captured yet again by bounty hunters (headed by Miss Winters), Davis romps through his role with relish. So does Telly Savalas as the villain of the piece.

In BANDOLERO and in TONY ROME, the two films now playing at the Sunset Drive-In, celluloid through the windshield watchers will see post-Civil War veterans off to the West in search of excitement, and Miami through the wry view of Frank Sinatra who plays a roughed - up and reluctant private eye.

Bandolero has James Stewart and Dean Martin as brothers who fought on opposing sides in the war. Now that it's over, Dino has turned head of a small band of outlaws and bank robbers. Most of the plot concerns his ravaging of the countryside, capture by the sheriff (George Kennedy), rescue by brother Slim Jim Stewart, and the inevitable escape and trackdown. There's looting and killin' all the way to Mexico, but there's also sultry Raquel Welch for the old fallin' in love with Dino bit.

Sinatra is Tony Rome, an ex-cop (not exactly by choice) who services (not exactly by choice) a demanding and dangerous clientele. Through Miami's high spots and low spots, he keeps his wit and wits in spite of all obstacles and calls his broads (including Jill St. John, Gena Rowlands and Sue Lyon) the way he sees 'em. Art in the Park

The second annual "Art in the Courthouse Park" will be held in Monticello on Saturday, Aug. 10, from 10 a. m. until dark. Sponsored by Catskills Resort Association, Inc., the art show received broad acclaim last year and artists from various communities in three counties participated.

This year there will be three classifications; novice, apprentice and professional, with four classifications of art including scenic, portrait, still life and abstract. The 1968 edition will see cash prizes as well as ribbons awarded to winners and artists may offer their works for sale if they so desire.

All artists interested in exhibiting should contact Mrs. Max H. Rhulen of Monticello, or Mrs. Burton Levinson of Liberty.

JULIE ANDREWS' DREAM of turning herself into a 1923-style flapper comes true in this scene from the hilarious romantic comedy with music, "Thoroughly Modern Millie." John Gavin is the gent in the straw hat and the jazz age film is currently on-screen at Kingston's Community Theatre.

'YOUR SHIELD OF SECURITY'

A River Troubadour Begins Hudson Trek

A contemporary troubadour will carry current news and historical lore the length of the Hudson River this month and next. The objectives of his wanderings, according to the New York State Council on the Arts, sponsor of the program, are "to make a human connection between the over-all community of the Hudson corridor. At the same time the project is an attempt to relate the arts directly and immediately to what is happening now in each of the river communities."

Don McLean, a 22-year-old singer and song writer, will be the Hudson River Troubadour. He began his trek Monday from the top of Mt. Marcy in the Adirondacks, the highest point in New York State and the source of the Hudson River. He will travel from town to town and sing where people are gathered.

Prior to starting his trip, McLean had been intensively reviewing and gathering historical lore pertinent to the area.

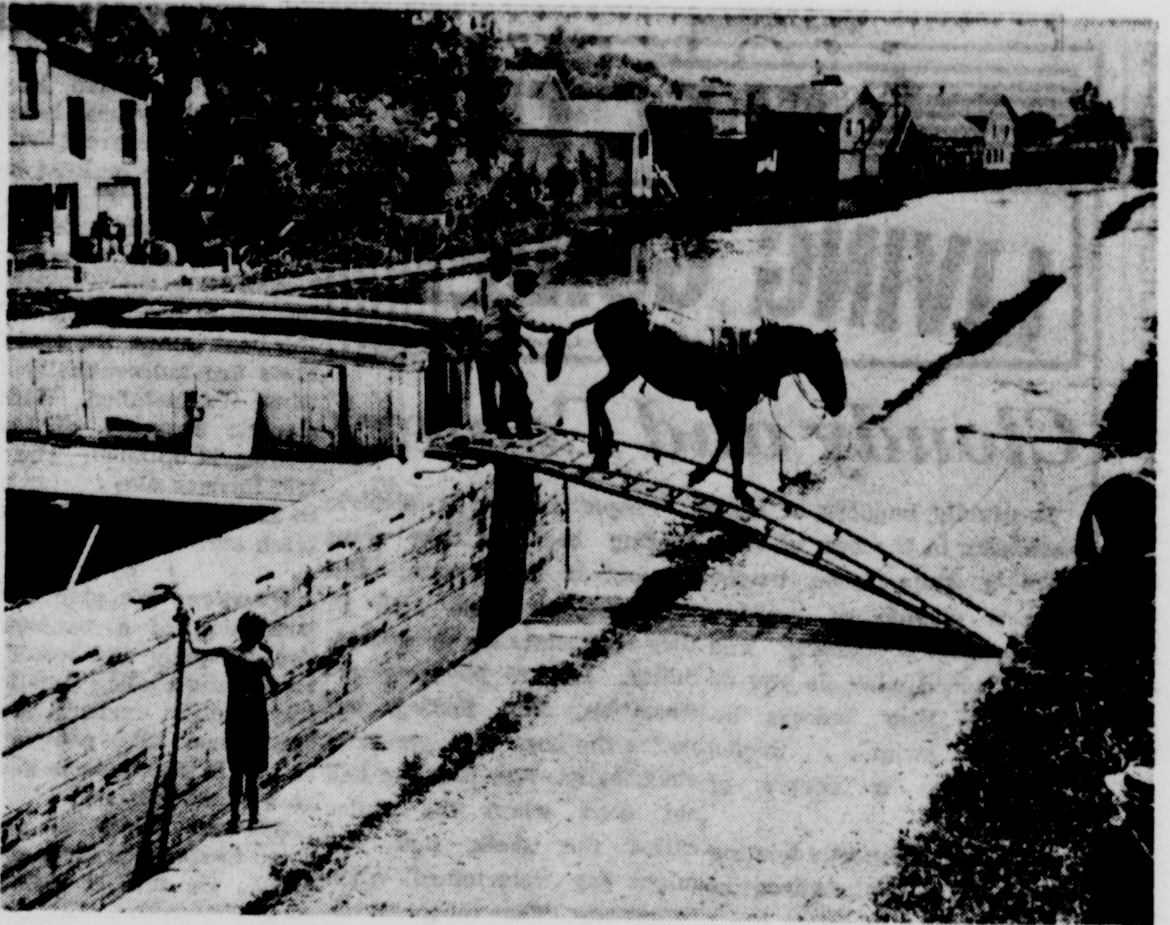

Among historians and collectors whose material he has studied are Carl Carmer, author of "Rivers of America—The Hudson;" Norman Studer, director of the Downtown Community School, who is one of the outstanding collectors of stories of the Catskills; Frank Warner, noted collector of New-York folklore and Peter Seeger, musicologist and folklorist. He is also making use of the extensive archives of the New York State Historical Association in Cooperstown.

As It Was

Kenneth Dewey, Applied Arts Director of the New York State Council on the Arts and well-known for his pioneering work in inter-media arts, originated the program. "Don will do now, using contemporary and historical material, what a troubadour did in the past," he explained. "Although the content of his songs will be up to the minute, the form is classical."

Last summer the New York State Council on the Arts sponsored "Erie Canal: 1817-1967," a multi-media exhibit carried on a barge, "The Erie Maid." This exhibit traveled the length of the Erie and Champlain Canals, stopping at 30 towns and was visited by a total of 138,250 people, establishing a common bond among those who live along the New York canals. The Hudson River Troubadour project is expected to accomplish the same sense of identification along the Hudson River. In addition, the troubadour will be the medium for an exchange of ideas and feelings among the peoples of the Hudson.

LAST SUMMER the New York State Council on the Arts gave Empire State residents an opportunity to renew their ties with the past through traveling exhibit on barge which featured prints of photographs like this one, taken when the Erie Canal was in its heyday. Floating show was seen by more than 138,000 people and hopes are high that even more New Yorkers will be hearing Don McLean, the Hudson River Troubadour, this summer's special project by the Council.

Twilight Concert

Ulster County Community College, as a community service, will present a Twilight Summer Concert by the Hudson Valley Chamber Players, conducted by Claude Monteux, at 7:30 p.m. Friday, July 26, at the college's Stone Ridge campus.

Admission will be free for the concert which will be held on the Macdonald DeWitt Library Court on the Stone Ridge campus.

"We are pleased to present this concert as a cultural event for our summer session students and for members of the community," college president George Erbstein said.

The Chamber Players, conducted by Monteux, consists of 12 strings: seven violins, two violas, two cellos and a double bass.

The program will consist of Purcell's Three Pieces for String Orchestra, a Sinfonia by C. P. E. Bach, a contemporary work by Britten, the Simple Symphony; Mozart's Eine Kleine Nachtmusik, and J. S. Bach's Planaise and Badinerie from Suite in B Minor. Conductor Monteux will play the flute solo in the latter piece.

Monteux, son of the world renowned French conductor Pierre Monteux, was born in Brookline, Mass., in 1920. His early years were devoted to the study of the flute, which he plays superbly both as a soloist and in chamber music.

As a recital flutist, he has appeared in all the major cities of Europe. He has given a command performance at the White House and performed under the batons of Toscanini, Mitropoulos, Walters and with Casals in Puerto Rico and his father, Pierre Monteux.

Before becoming the permanent conductor and musical director of the Hudson Valley Philharmonic Society, Monteux was conductor of the Columbus, Ohio, Symphony. He has guest-conducted in Berlin and Brussels and has performed in his unique dual capacity as solo flutist and conductor with the London Symphony Orchestra.

Trio to Solo

Willard McNary will direct Brahms' Nanie and Schubert's Mass in G at the second Choral Music Reading Concert, sponsored by the State University at New Paltz and the Mid-Hudson Camerata Chorale, at the McKenna Theatre on the New Paltz campus, July 23, at 8 p.m.

The concert is open to the public; there will be registration for all interested singers at 7:30 p.m., and there is no charge for either singers or audience.

The accompanist will be Kevin Walters, and soloists will be Betty White, soprano; Antone Aquino, tenor; and Curtic White, bass.

McNary received his B. S. from the State University at Postdam and his M. S. from Albany. He has taught in Troy, and is now the Choral Director at Poughkeepsie High School. He also directs the Marist College Glee Club, is a lecturer in music there, and has directed the Euterpe Glee Club for several seasons.

The show features versatile artists of all ages, from all parts of the U. S. and those now concentrated in Woodstock. Among works of special interest are an African dancer by K. White which is lively and individual despite its subdued colors; a man in a hammock by Nicolette in quiet, warm hues that seem seasonal; several exciting, emotional expressions by Lutrecian; and some bold, provocative heads by Lucile Blanch. Also on view: a myriad of prints, drawings, and collages, in old techniques and new — all enjoyable to see and discuss.

Turnau's Back!

Turnau Opera Players opened their fourteenth summer season of opera locally at State University College in New Paltz with a performance of Puccini's "La Boheme" last night in the college's Main Auditorium.

The performance will be repeated at New Paltz tonight, Saturday, July 20 and at Woodstock, Monday, July 22.

A reception followed the opening performance, giving the audience an opportunity to meet the cast of this well known opera. "La Boheme" tells the story of tragic young love in the Parisian Latin Quarter, and its artists include Cynthia Barnett, Lorine Buffington, David Cumberland, Richard Davis, Michael Di Stefano, Jonathan Rigg, Johanna Meier and Franklin Summers.

Tickets for this production are on sale in New Paltz at Manny's Lounge, 83 Main Street, and in Woodstock at the Woodstock Playhouse.

ELECTRIC LIVING GUIDE

All rights reserved. H. V. Robinson & Co., Inc., New York.

Cloudy and Cooler?

It usually happens at least once even in the best of summers—a snippet or maybe even a stretch of weather that's labeled "cloudy and cooler." And what do you do about it? Stay indoors instead of swim... maybe huddle into a couple of sweaters.

Well, according to a heating consultant, with the advent of complete electric home heating systems it doesn't have to be that grim anymore. "Heating isn't just a sometime thing, a winter-only affair, any more. In fact no matter what noses the temperature takes outside you can always step into a cozy house. And no work on your part to activate the system necessarily. Just keep the thermostats set for the temperature you prefer. The heating system goes into operation the instant the weather lets you down."

The immediate heating for all off-days in the summer is a "sort of bonus" he explains. Says that, of course, people decide on electric heating in the first place because it's proven so effective even for sprawled-out, hard-to-heat houses. And the equipment will outlast any other heating apparatus on the market, so it's economical, too.

"People invest in electric heating because they want comfort in the winter. But once they've lived with it, they appreciate the great flexibility. It's a pleasant re-education, this finding out you're the boss when you heat electrically. Not like the bad old days when the boiler called the shots, and you might say 'determined' when to operate. That meant mostly winter. Period. Off season? Maybe it was being cleaned, or the fuel supply was nil until the fall. Or if the weather changed fast back to warm, the old boiler took a while to readjust back to inactivity. And if the cold snap came on in the middle of the night? Well, forget it!"

So maybe you still can't turn on the sunshine over the beach, or the ole swimmin' hole... but there is something you can do about the weather somewhere. With electric heating you make even a nasty day "fair and warmer" indoors... with electric heat.

QUESTION BOX

Question: Do you or don't type, or baseboards, or pan-you need a duct system with electric heating? Some say yes, some say no.

Answer: That's because the Others add individual cooling answer is "yes" and "no." units according to taste.

There are radiant heating systems that need no duct work and they heat beautifully. And there are other systems (furnace or heat pump) that use ductwork, and they heat beautifully, also. That duct-work is then usually put to use to do an air conditioning job in hot weather. With the heat pump, the two functions are automatically there when it's installed. With the electric furnace, air conditioning is optional. The electric furnace also adapts easily to air filtration to keep rooms fresh smelling.

Question: We plan to take possession of a twelve-room house shortly and would like to add the cooling function to the electric furnace system, but dread the prospect of noise. Is there such a thing as a silent system?

Answer: This is getting down to specifics for a specific house. So talk it over with your contractor. In general terms: the cooling apparatus often coupled with electric heating these days is pretty quieted down for a modest size house. But even with a larger central unit for a larger house, it's easy on the ears. And remember if you prefer, that part of the system can be set up a certain distance from the house.

Question: We have friends with electric ceiling type heat... and it works just beautifully. We'd like the same, but do you provide for air conditioning with it? They don't have it, say they never felt the need. Is there any way we can have our ceiling and cooling, too?

Answer: There is indeed. This matter of heating and cooling your home should be like your eyeglasses; prescribed for you. Many homes with radiant heat (the ceiling and baseboards, or pan-you need a duct system with electric heating) please their owners as electric heating. Some say yes, some say no. Others add individual cooling units according to taste.

2 Held for Assaulting Trooper on Thruway

By WALTER S. CLARK

A bizarre skirmish on the Thruway in the Greene County township of New Baltimore Friday night during which a state trooper was beaten with his service revolver and robbed after being shackled and threatened with death, was climaxed with the jailing of two New York City men on several felony charges.

Trooper Joseph W. Gallelli, 25, assigned to the Kingston barracks of Troop T, was the victim of the two assailants. He was treated at the Columbia Memorial Hospital in Hudson for a deep laceration of the left cheek and multiple bruises of the face and wrists.

Held in the Greene County jail without bail are Thomas Graham Howard, 35, an unemployed artist, of 31 Grove Street, Manhattan, and Donald Charles Elfe, 34, a goateed unemployed salesman, of 1845 Phelan Street, the Bronx. They are being held for first degree robbery, unlawful possession of a dangerous weapon, second degree assault.

Howard also is charged with possession of a dangerous drug, marijuana.

Arrested before Catskill Town Justice George Carl, both men were committed to jail without bail pending a hearing and further investigation by state police.

State police officials gave this account:

On Night Patrol

Gallelli was on night patrol on the superway, riding alone in the police car and heading north near Cossackie at about 9:30 p. m. Friday, when he spotted a slow moving car heading toward Albany. As the young trooper approached the car he noticed the motor was over heating and the car with the two men was stopped.

The trooper offered to get water for the radiator of the Pennsylvania registered vehicle. A pail of water was obtained and Gallelli handed it to one of the men. After the trouble appeared corrected with the automobile, the trooper asked Elfe, the driver of the car, for his license and registration for a routine check.

Elfe, it was reported, walked to the rear of the car, opened the trunk and produced his wallet containing the registration. At this time, Howard got out of the passenger side of the car and approached Gallelli with a .45 caliber revolver pointing at him.

"This is it, I'll kill you," said one of the men as Gallelli was held at gunpoint. The trooper was forced to turn around with his back to the pair. He was handcuffed with his hands behind his back. His cuffs were used to shackle him. The trooper's wallet was taken from his pocket. His police shield was ripped from his blouse as his assailants pushed him into a wooded area some distance off the superhighway and then he was virtually thrown down an embankment.

The men drove north a short distance. Gallelli managed to crawl back to the police car.

Knocked Unconscious

Gallelli was hit on the face with a revolver several times. One blow knocked him unconscious and he lay prone on the side of the Thruway. The men then sped northward.

Sometime later the trooper regained consciousness. He again made his way to the police car and completed the signal which was a distress call over the police band. Within minutes several troopers arrived along with a maintenance crew.

The handcuffs were removed. Gallelli was rushed to the hospital in Hudson where he was treated.

Meanwhile, alarms were sent over the radio and state police teletype with a description of the car and the two Negroes provided by the injured trooper in his original distress call.

Sometime later, Trooper A. G. Clark of Albany spotted the car near the Berkshire spur. He forced the driver to stop. The men gave no resistance as they were held at gunpoint.

An official told a reporter later that Gallelli's wallet, service revolver, police shield, ID card and other personal belongings were found in the Pennsylvania car.

Marijuana Found

Howard and Elfe were taken to the Claverack State Police station for questioning. Later State Police and questioned by BCI Investigator Joseph Valenti. Howard was found in possession of marijuana, authorities said. Both men were accused of having fully loaded revolvers in addition to other illegal equipment.

According to one state police official, Howard admitted under questioning that he assaulted two policemen in separate incidents in New York City in the past year. One assault took place during a demonstration in front of the United Nations building. The official said Howard is active in the Harlem unit of CORE.

Gallelli, who was the victim of the assault robbery, on numerous occasions while on duty on the superhighway, has played the role of a good samaritan. This time the act wasn't appreciated and his life was in danger.

Very Little Difficulty At Honolulu Meeting

By FRANK CORMIER

HONOLULU (AP) — By all official accounts, President Johnson and South Vietnam's President Nguyen Van Thieu have had little difficulty reaching a meeting of minds during their brief Honolulu summit.

Officials from both countries said the two men and their top advisers had done such successful spadework for the conference that there was no need for extended conversations here.

Thieu announced he would tarry a bit in Hawaii to meet with newsmen after Johnson returns to the U.S. mainland.

Thieu, in a formal statement at the opening conference session Friday, said that of course his country hopes for a just and honorable peace at the conference table.

But he gave no indication, at least in that document, that he would favor a complete halt to bombing of North Vietnam. And a member of his party reaffirmed the fixed position of the Saigon government that it would never negotiate with the Viet Cong as a group, though it would listen to the views of any individuals from the other side who cared to air them.

Secretary of Defense Clark M. Clifford, in advance of the Honolulu talks, indicated a possible bombing halt and direct Saigon-Viet Cong negotiations would be among the topics to be explored by Thieu and Johnson.

Johnson and Thieu met privately for about an hour Friday morning at the hilltop command post of U.S. military forces in the Pacific, then went into larger group sessions and a working lunch that, altogether, took up half the day. In the evening they got together again at Johnson's borrowed seaside residence outside Honolulu.

A heavy raid by U. S. B52 bombers scared away Viet Cong guerrillas who set 39 manacled captives out as bait. Story on page 3.

Aides also held a series of small sessions on specific topics: Military, economy, diplomatic and so forth.

In his opening conference statement, Thieu quoted Johnson as saying it would be unacceptable to agree to "a fake solution and call it peace."

"Past experience have shown that peace cannot be secured simply through the pledges and signatures of the aggressors," he said. "It has to be accompanied by effective international guarantees, credible to friends and foes alike."

Czechs Stall Kremlin

By JAMES O. JACKSON

PRAGUE (UPI)—Czechoslovakia's anti-Stalinist Communist leaders today stalled on a Kremlin bid for a showdown meeting in Eastern Europe's greatest crisis in a decade.

Party sources said the Czechs will not agree to meet the Soviet leaders at least until all Russian troops are out of this country.

Leonid I. Brezhnev, the Soviet Communist Party first secretary, and his comrades Friday sent word here they want a meeting in either Kiev or Lvov—both on Soviet soil—Monday or Tuesday with the Czechs.

Alexander Dubcek, the Czech party first secretary and leader of the democratic reform forces hotly criticized by the Kremlin as dangerous to Communist security, conferred with his aides late into Friday night. The sources said they tried to figure out just how to stall the session.

Avoid Trap

Sources close to Dubcek said the Czechs "hardly will accept the invitation" to what they consider a sort of trap.

Diplomatic observers said the Soviets want the meeting to give them a chance to pressure Dubcek to curtail if not halt his reform program.

The Russians delayed sending their invitation until after the Czech Communist Party central committee met Friday. Possibly they figured the central committee might rebel at Dubcek's defiance of the Soviet Union. But the 110-member committee voted by acclamation to support Dubcek, who ousted Stalinist Czech leader Antonin Novotny from power eight months ago.

Czech party officials said resolutions, telegrams and other messages of support have flooded into Dubcek's office.

But eyes remained on the undisclosed number of Soviet troops, mostly motorized infantry, that remain in Czechoslovakia 20 days after the end of the east bloc war games for which they came. The Soviets have promised to have them out by Sunday but, according to Czech news reports, the Red Army caissons are rolling ever so slowly.

Diplomatic observers said the Soviet troop go-slow clearly is designed to keep pressure on Dubcek. The Soviets, joined by their hard line allies East Germany, Poland, Hungary and Bulgaria, have demanded Dubcek's regime put the shackles back on the newly free Czech press. In a joint letter they have demanded non-Communist groups be banned once more.

Defeat for Gun Amendments

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson's call for registration of all guns has been turned aside by two House votes that appeared to kill all hope for such legislation this session.

By surprising votes of nearly 2-to-1 the House Friday defeated registration amendments to a bill that would ban interstate mail order sales of rifles, shotguns and ammunition, plus over-the-counter sales to residents of nonadjacent states.

One amendment, offered by Rep. Jonathan B. Bingham, D-N.Y., would have required registration of all firearms. It lost by a standing vote of 172-68.

The other, sponsored by Rep. Robert McClory, R-Ill., would have required pistol registration only. It was turned back 168-89, on a final vote on the bill and on numerous pending amendments.

that could still weaken or strengthen it was put off until Monday.

Although it was possible another attempt would be made then to tack on a registration provision it was unlikely in the face of the overwhelming defeat of the two amendments Friday.

It also was considered unlikely in view of the size of the votes that such a provision could get through a joint House-Senate conference committee although there is strong backing in the Senate for both registration of firearms and licensing of owners.

Amendments on licensing are expected to be offered Monday. President Johnson first urged the interstate mail order bans on rifles and shotguns in the wake of the assassination of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy. Later, he urged registration and licensing legislation.

Backers of stronger gun controls saw hope for passage of some kind of bill in House approval of an amendment requiring mandatory prison sentences for persons who use or carry a firearm while committing a federal felony such as rape, murder, or robbery.

This amendment was approved as a substitute for one by Rep. Bob Casey, D-Tex., that would have required mandatory sentences for persons using a firearm in the commission of state felonies as well as federal offenses.

The substitute amendment, sponsored by Rep. Richard H. Poff, R-Va., would require mandatory sentences of from one to 10 years for the first offense and from 5 to 25 years for the second and subsequent offenses.

Reveal Plans of $300,000 Town Building for Ulster

By ALBERT J. CAWEIN

The Town of Ulster has completed its study for the construction of a $300,000 town office building complex and highway department garage and the proposal will be presented for public perusal at an information meeting July 25 at 8 p.m. in Lake Katrine Grange Hall.

In the preliminary studies it has been determined that the project to be financed by bond issue would be amortized over a 30 year period, and would add $1.73 per $1,000 of assessed valuation to the town tax rate. The study also notes that the elimination of the cost of the present operation in makeshift, leased and rented buildings could reduce the tax rate addition to $1 per $1,000.

On Town Property

Thenew 56 by 129 foot town hall and 65 by 200 foot town garage would be constructed on town property along Neighbourhood Road, Lake Katrine, near Route 209. The town hall would be of block and brick veneer construction with 6,248 square feet of space on the first floor at an estimated cost of $124,960. The basement would have 2,184 square feet with vault and storage room and is listed to cost $17,472.

The town highway department garage, also block and brick veneer will be 13,000 square feet plus a storage area and will cost $104,000.

The new facility, according to Town Supervisor Thaddeus Musialkiewicz, will provide large storage rooms for records and voting machines, a vault for vital statistics, deeds and records; a town clerk's office and reception room, offices for town tax collector, supervisor, planning board, building inspector, town justices, assessors, water department and a spare office for future expansion. There will also be a large meeting room and justice court, lavatories and supply room and a parking lot to accommodate 90 vehicles.

The highway department garage will have 20 stalls for rolling equipment, workshop, tool room, employees room and shower and superintendent's office. The garage is to be constructed on the same property some distance to the right of the proposed town hall.

Preparing Brochure

Supervisor Musialkiewicz said a brochure is being prepared and is expected to be printed in time for distribution to the public by the end of this week.

The Ulster supervisor said a series of photographs showing the existing facilities and indicating the handicaps town employees must overcome to operate town business are on display at the supervisor's office in the town post office.

ditions under which the township is operating:

No centralized location for town business; supervisor's office at 35 Vincent Street; town clerk's office at 1031 Columbia Street; assessors chairman at Lohmaier Lane; town meetings held at Lake Katrine Grange Hall; tax collector's office at Lay Street; water department at the Grange Hall, part-time; justice court at the Grange Hall; building inspector's office at the supervisor's office; storage of voting machines, and records at the supervisor's office; storage of records in metal garage behind highway department; storage of records at town clerk's office; a large safe as a vault in town highway garage; one undersized town garage 40 by 60 feet; highway equipment exposed to weather, and increased cost of government by renting and heating garage space in winter for highway trucks.

Musialkiewicz said Ulster is the third largest township in the county and a leader in the progress in the county. The 1966 special census population was recorded at 10,134 in comparison to the 1960 count of 8,448.

He noted that the present cost of operation, maintenance, rentals and storage is approximately $8,000. The proposed town hall and town garage would enhance the town's position and would be commensurate with the population, economy and forward look of the township, the supervisor said.

The POWER of FAITH

By WOODIE ISHMAEL

Mary Moore, director of social services for the Hospital of the Holy Family, which is a division of the Catholic Medical Center in Brooklyn, has a courageous faith which she shares with others. Mary Moore has been blind since childhood despite eight operations. She made up her mind, nevertheless, to live a normal life and to find a career in service to others. Her first schooling was at the New York City Institute for the Education of the Blind. She received her bachelor degree in social service at Mount St. Vincent College and her masters degree from the Columbia School of Social Work.

Perhaps because of her own handicap, which she chooses to ignore, Mary Moore can listen with sympathy to those who need understanding and counsel and give them courage to face their own difficulties. Not only does she work in the hospital with the doctors and nurses but she goes into the homes to dispense her own brand of sympathetic assistance.

Of her blindness she says, "It is a source of assurance to the patients. It is God's way of getting me in contact with people and through people I know Him."

where he spent six years as director of schools at the Methodist Mission in Katanga, a province of the ex-Belgian Congo. In 1959 he returned to the United States to become advisor to student government at Indiana University, and later director of student personnel and associate professor of Afro-Asian studies at the University of South Florida.

In 1963 he served as rector (president) of the Université Libre du Congo at Stanleyville and in 1965 he became general secretary (executive vice president) of the National School of Law and Administration in Kinshasa, Congo. In 1967 he accepted his present position on the faculty at New Paltz where he lives with his wife and three children.

Pastor Emeritus Returns to Trinity

The Rev. John H. Frenssen, pastor emeritus of Trinity Evangelical Lutheran Church, Spring and Hone Streets, will conduct the services and preach at the church July 21 and 28.

The Rev. Mr. Frenssen retired from the pastorate at Trinity last October. During his long and varied ministry, his service included the pastorate of First Lutheran Church, Poughkeepsie; the administration of the Wartburg Home for Orphans and Aged at Mt. Vernon, and membership on the Executive Board of the Metropolitan New York Synod of the Lutheran Church in America.

The Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Frenssen recently returned from a motor trip to Minnesota and Colorado and are making their home in Poughkeepsie.

Clerics Briefed On SS Benefits

Clergymen representing all faiths in the Ulster County area met for a social security seminar at the district office at 57 Albany Avenue, Kingston, this week.

A film on children's benefit payments was shown followed by a discussion led by Herbert Sumlin, assistant manager, and Hy Gardlin, field representative.

That there are still several hundred residents of Ulster County who have not yet inquired about the possibility of payments due them.

The clergymen were informed that they are now automatically covered by social security for retirement, survivors, disability, and medicare protection, unless they file a waiver certificate exempting them from coverage.

In attendance were the Revs. Austin Carey, James Childs, Olney E. Cook, Jonathan Eichhorn, Brooks N. Henry, Arthur E. Kaufman, James McManis, James J. McNally, Alvin F. Messersmith, Gerald Sutch and Gerret J. Wulfschlegler.

Another social security seminar for clergymen will be held Tuesday, July 23, at 10 a. m. at the Social Security Office at 57 Albany Avenue, Kingston.

Highlights of the discussion concerned the monthly payments that are made by social security. It was emphasized that there are still several hundred residents of Ulster County who have not yet inquired about the possibility of payments due them.

Fads and Fashions Apply to Religion

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

America's propensity for fads and fashions is clearly reflected in changing public attitudes toward religion.

During the late 1940's and most of the 1950's, religion was "in."

Newspapers and magazines were full of articles about the "religious revival" sweeping the country.

Billy Graham packed the country's biggest stadiums. Fulton J. Sheen ranked near the top of TV's audience ratings.

Church membership soared and churches across the land went on a $1 billion-a-year building spree to provide suitably large and lavish housing for their growing congregations.

One of the changes most noticeable to those outside the community is the manner of dressing. The habit is now a blue suit and white blouse, to be worn on those occasions when the group decides. At other times each Sister may wear ordinary dress.

In 1955, at the peak of the boom, 49 per cent of America's adults were in church on a typical Sunday morning. By 1965, the figure had dropped to 44 per cent, where it has remained.

But the statistics do not mean religion is a spent force in American life.

Religion in America has just come through a danger period of great popularity. Now it can look forward to being tested, tempered, deepened and purified by a little adversity.

The religious boom began to run out of steam in the early 1960's. The ebbing of popular interest could be seen in the Gallup organization's periodic surveys of church attendance.

The conflict of materialism and spiritual values in the life of an American businessman form the story background for In Times Like These, a motion picture to be shown on Sunday, at 8 p. m. at the Olive-Shokan Baptist Church, West Shokan. The public may attend.

Hippie Problem Big in New Paltz

If public intoxication is one of the big law enforcement problems in the Village of Ellenville, "hippies" appear to be a problem of equal proportion in New Paltz.

Village Police Chief Harold Phillips made the claim yesterday and he has instructed his men to "move them along" whenever they are blocking a merchant's doorway.

The so-called "hippie" problem exists on Main Street between little Church Street to the West, and North Front Street and Plattekill Avenue to the East.

Phillips said the "hippies" will move when they are told but that merchants refuse to sign complaints or "get involved," even though it is they who suffer.

One merchant, responding to The Freeman's questions, said that there was some fear of vandalism or harassment from those who would be hit with the complaint.

Most of the merchants questioned in line with the above reasoning refused to be quoted with their names, except, for those whose establishments did not provide the necessary front stoop resting places for weary hippie bones.

Two merchants suggested, however, that they do not appear given to violence and that they are, in fact, essentially harmless.

One woman merchant claimed that, although the hippies are "awful character types," they have never touched her unlocked parked car nor have they ever passed any questionable remarks.

"I don't think they are dangerous," she said, "but I wouldn't trust them."

The merchant went on to add, "When they look at you, they make you feel uncomfortable. They are living in a world of their own."

Business Suffers
There are a number of the merchants, however, who feel that business "definitely suffers" because of the young people of the long hair, shoeless feet, and what one man, waiting in the New Paltz Bus Terminal, called "that uncomprehendingly unwashed projection that is little understood but long remembered."

"They are rebelling, and maybe they should be, but a horrible war is going on and what future do they have," said a woman employee of a Main Street store owner.

She did add, however, that although "they (hippies) are looking for something, and they have to be listened to, we live in this town, we work here, and they do hurt business."

Her employer declared that when a contingent of hippies is sitting on the front steps of his establishment, "many customers believe the place is closed and they go elsewhere."

He stated that, "If all the merchants got together, then maybe something could be done. The situation is now, that whenever we tell them to move, they move and that's it."

Dyson Attacks Rocky, Wants Senator Named

Democratic candidate for Congress in the 28th District, John S. Dyson, in recent statements attacked Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller for not naming a successor to the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy and outlined solutions to the plight of the district's elderly residents.

In a telegram to Rockefeller, Dyson said it was "about time" the governor appointed a Kennedy successor. He suggested such persons as Howard Samuels, James Scheuer, Richard Ottinger, John Lindsay, John Gardner and Ogden Reid. Dyson also said that he hoped Rockefeller was not using the appointment as a "political plum" in his (Rockefeller's) quest for the presidency.

Speaking before the Red Hook Democratic Club, Dyson urged the stabilization of property taxes for the low-income elderly persons and the increase of social security benefits to keep pace with inflation.

Four Injured In Area Mishaps

Four persons were injured and several others escaped unhurt as the result of traffic accidents early today that were investigated by Kingston State Troopers Norman Kilfoyle and E. A. Zeboris.

At 1:20 a. m. Ronald Torri, 26, of 231 Albany Avenue, was driving his 1964 car east on Route 28 when an unknown vehicle in passing sideswiped the left side of his automobile and forced it off the highway.

Passengers in the car were Robert Koeppen, 18, of 118 Hooker Street, who received possible injuries of the left ankle, and Philip Beechel, 21, of 231 Albany Avenue, possible injuries of the right arm and shoulder. The three were examined at Kingston Hospital.

Robert Gilmore, 22, of 14 Bennett Avenue, Saugerties, was driving a 1965 convertible east on Route 212 at 1:45 a. m. today when an unidentified vehicle forced him off the left shoulder into a rock cut. Marine Kenneth Lavelle, 21, of 22 Otis Avenue, Ware, Mass., a passenger, sustained multiple abrasions and contusions of the face and shoulder. He was taken to Kingston Hospital by Saugerties Ambulance Service. The mishap occurred five miles west of Route 32 in the Town of Woodstock, according to Trooper James Fitzgerald.

Frank Adamiak, 45, of 106 Prescott Street, Demarest, N. J., narrowly escaped injury when his car hit a deer on Route 28 about 1½ miles west of the village of Phoenixia in the Town of Shandaken at 12:40 a. m. Adamiak lost control of the vehicle as it went off the left side of the highway down an embankment and overturned.

Police Surrender Perry to MPs

Douglas R. Perry, 19, who told authorities he has no permanent address after his capture by Kingston police that ended a massive manhunt on Thursday, was turned over to military police late yesterday and taken to Stewart Air Force Base, presumably to face charges.

Perry escaped from custody by leaping from a police car in the parking lot at the county courthouse after he had been picked up as an accused deserter from the U. S. Marine Corps. He was taken into custody nine hours later by city police after a resident reported Perry was seen on South Washington Avenue.

The youth was held in the county jail until military authorities arrived late Friday.

Cited by Police

Paul F. Koch, 19, of RD 4, Box 546, Kingston, was cited by city police early today for failure to produce a registration for the car he was driving, unsafe tire, faulty muffler and operating a motor vehicle with insufficient lights. The summonses are returnable before City Judge Hubert A. Richter.

U.S. Bombers Strike Hard Against Viet Guerrillas

By GEORGE ESPER

SAIGON (AP)—A heavy raid by U. S. B52 bombers scared away Viet Cong guerrillas who set 39 manacled captives out as bait and planned to ambush South Vietnamese troops coming to their rescue, military spokesmen said today.

The government troops freed the emaciated men and women, who had been chained to stakes in the ground, and reported killing six Viet Cong soldiers who had stayed behind as guerrillas fled.

Three South Vietnamese infantrymen were wounded when the government troops charged into an open field Friday to free the prisoners in the Mekong Delta, 125 miles southwest of Saigon, spokesmen said.

The captives, held by the Viet Cong for periods ranging from two months to two years, included 13 women, 21 male civilians, three militiamen, a hamlet chief and an assistant hamlet chief.

Field reports said the Viet Cong learned of government troops' plans to try to free the captives, dragged them into an open rice field and set up ambush positions around them.

But the government soldiers were not scheduled to sweep the area until after the B52 raids.

The captives were quoted as saying that most of the guerrillas fled when thousands of pounds of bombs from the eight-engine bombers fell on the fringes of the ambush site. They told officials they had seen at least seven Viet Cong who were wounded by the air attack.

Officials questioned the captives at the provincial capital of Can Tho, where they were taken for medical treatment.

Government troops on the sweep operation also reported capturing five guerrillas and four other suspects and seizing more than 250 mortar and anti-tank rocket shells, 10 rifles, 200 sticks of TNT and 42 rounds for recoilless rifles.

Nine miles north of the ambush site, other government troops reported killing 29 guerrillas in two days of skirmishes in an operation that ended Friday. A military spokesman said three government infantrymen were killed and 28 wounded in the intermittent fighting. The South Vietnamese troops also reported capturing 20 tear gas grenades.

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, JULY 20, 1968

Air Bridge to Russia

Times Square and Red Square are now just 10½ hours apart—plus circling time waiting for a landing slot and commuting time to and from the airports.

Direct airline service between New York and Moscow (one round-trip U.S. flight a week, one Russian) would have come about long ago had it not been for cold-war animosities. Some may still fear that allowing Soviet Aeroflot planes to land on U.S. soil represents one more instance of the erosion of America's will to resist international communism, if it does not provide actual expressway for spies and other nasty characters.

But we retain enough confidence in this country's intelligence services and the good sense of the general public to feel they can handle this new challenge. The situation works both ways, and the Kremlin faces a substantial increase in American tourists, with all capitalistic influences they may carry with them.

Coffee, tea or milk? Or vodka, borscht and caviar? You can now pay your money—a sizable chunk of it—and take your choice.

Riot Risks Too Risky

There is a new type of backlash for which American slums are suffering. It is the insurance backlash. The key London reinsurance market that usually underwrites a large part of American insurance is turning its back on the high riot-risk insurance originating in this country. That has led to cancellations and outright refusals of casualty insurers to cover risks in slums.

The nation's casualty insurers took in $23 billion in written premiums last year, compared with riot losses of $70 million. Even this year's 72 million riot-linked losses do not disturb the insurers. But the industry's overall underwriting loss in 1967 reached $23 billion. The industry barely broke even.

The riot losses tilted the scales. London was unwilling to re-insure slum property and autos in the light of industrial disasters, British economic austerity measures, and the devaluation of the pound sterling against the dollar last November.

Nothing less than Federal re-insurance presently under study can offer a solution to slum coverage and anti-riot insurance. The slums and the riots are the responsibility of the Government. For that reason, the Government must assume its share of the insurance burden.

Chain Letter Revival

It seems that every decade has its chain letter craze. The one now playing on credulity, superstition and bluff is citing names of socialites, fashion designers and other such well publicized persons as a come-on. It is apparently catching a lot of dupes.

One that offers a prayer that promises the receiver an award if he sends it to 20 friends does not violate the law, since it does not send or request anything valuable through the mail.

The mail department, however, brands the others, the so-called "executive quickie," one that does violence to the law. It requires the recipient to invest $15 with the hope of gaining $2,190 in 10 days—always provided you send it on to 20 friends.

However, in most chain letter schemes only the originators collected. So beware. In the past three or four decades, chain letter campaigns have started to free France from the Nazis, Czechoslovakia from the Communists, end the Korean war, ban the atomic bombs and seat Communist China in the United Nations. Most chain letter schemes are as futile as these, though they are usually pitched to personal profit, not such lost causes.

Confidence in Advertising

When asked about their over-all attitudes toward advertising, 41 per cent of Americans consider themselves favorable for it, 14 per cent unfavorable and the rest are indifferent or have mixed feelings.

Most consumers agree that advertising has helped to raise our standard of living, though they question some of its social effects.

Contrary to the views of critics, only one per cent of the adult public thinks advertising is in need of more government regulation.

These are some of the figures released after an in-depth study by two Harvard professors covering 1,846 interviews conducted among a cross-section of adult Americans.

It is reassuring to learn that the authors discovered that the consumer "is no passive, helpless target of communications." He has built-in defense mechanisms against advertising, such as boredom, doubt, personal experience or disinterest.

Preseason Warmup

Henry J. Taylor Says Nixon Must Avoid Booby Trap

Able Richard M. Nixon has a simple choice and the more surely he makes it—all out—the better it will be for him and for the Republican party. Nixon's Democratic opponents, along with Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, claims that he (or any Republican) can win only by appealing to the so-called Democrats and independents. This is a booby trap.

First, it assumes the rigidity of groups that today simply does not exist. Blocs disappear, or become not decisive, when an over-all protest vote wants to make itself felt.

Second, this is the same old timeworn push by writers and others whose hearts are ready with the Democrats and very humanly want a Republican nominee who is as close to being a Democrat as is available.

How come that nearly every Administration spokesman and nearly all Democrats in the press prefer Mr. Rockefeller? They want the Republicans to scuttle Mr. Nixon. They wring their hands in behalf of the GOP and insist that it seek a "moderate" Republican. What is this idiotic search for a Republican "moderate"?

By every conceivable definition and test Richard M. Nixon is a moderate. The trouble is that Mr. Nixon, far more than Mr. Rockefeller, threatens the status quo.

Well, that's exactly where Mr. Nixon's simple choice comes in.

The harder he hits at the status quo, and concentrates

his appeal as a dissatisfied, worried American who will "throw the rascals out," the closer he will come to the great, throbbing support of the country. Moreover, Mr. Nixon has the duty to fairly and honorably do this in justice to the two-party system. Nothing needs competition so much as government bodies.

Endorsement of this stance, this positive turn-away from the booby trap, is available in a veritable Niagara of evidence.

Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy's surprise showings merely display the scope and intensity of the dissatisfaction with the status quo even within the Democratic party itself. His stunning success in the New York Democratic primary all but completed the evidence that Vice-President Hubert H. Humphrey cannot campaign on the Great Society's record as it now stands and, as generally conceded, would lose both New York State and California against any Republican. The full array of Empire State Democratic party leaders will confirm this to you privately.

Mr. McCarthy, nationwide, is neither a man of great standing nor a whiz-bang TV orator. The McCarthy phenomenon should be read in terms of how immense is the roar of the protest vote.

Gallup reports that George C. Wallace has nearly doubled—to 16 per cent—his nationwide support since April. It has never been so high. Mr. Wallace is a poor exponent of the protest vote and, like Mr. McCarthy, he is merely revealing resentments against the status quo.

faction by his March 31 withdrawal.

If you get out into the grass roots the McCarthy and Wallace phenomena become less mysterious. Everywhere I go across the country average folks seem just itching, and ready, to kick somebody in the pants—and they don't care much who.

People vote against, not for, in most elections, although candidates' vanity seldom permits a candidate to believe this.

"Throw the rascals out" is the thing that works against the status quo and the great and entrenched power of the "ins."

As usual with the "ins," their ambition is to lure the Republicans, first, into nominating a Democratic blood-brother and, failing this, to claim that no one who is a real opponent can be elected.

The timeworn ploy is to force any real opponent into the defensive, always speak of the future because the present would kill them dead rather than a duck, and have the whole charade end up making their opponent unable to polarize the protest vote.

A good place for any Republican candidate to start in avoiding this booby trap is by turning his back on The New York Times editorials and the many articulate handwringers in and out of the press and politics who are Democrats at heart anyway and always have been.

That's not easy. Many involved are sincere. But if Mr. Nixon leaps over the booby trap and forthrightly, energetically, relentlessly and honorably polarizes the protest vote—but surely does it—the payoff is very likely to be astounding.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

Chief Justice Earl Warren, speaking of capital punishment, said: "Throughout my life there has always been something to me that was repulsive, to have the government take a life when you are asking everyone else not to take a life." Mr. Chief Justice, this is what it is like:

The night is cold. The air holds its breath as the file of men crunch down the hill on old snow. Two keepers crouch on frisk the men at the gate. Stars wink hard in winter. The warden waves the reporters into the death house. They look disreputable in wrinkled overcoats. Some smell of whiskey.

The building is brick. A door is at the rear, as in church. There are seven rows of pews and a center aisle. No hymn books. Two doctors lean against a wall. The young one twirls stethoscopes around his extended finger. Three turns this way. Three turns that way. The older one leans against his hands.

The chair is front and center. It looks homemade. The black straps fall outward. The room is square and bright with light. The heat is turned high. The writers shuffle to the pews. They are now state witnesses. They whisper. Some make notes. A State Trooper crouches behind me. I can hear his breathe.

The executioner is a family man. He is tall and skinny and his features slide toward his chin. He is a worried hunting dog. He stands in the alcove to the left, spinning a dial. A door to the right opens a trifle. The Principal Keeper peeks. The warden holds the time is 10:59. The day is Thursday.

The PK emerges. He has the rolling gait of a sailor. Behind him is a priest in cassock and surplice. He walks backward with a gold crucifix held high. It picks up the ceiling light and spangles the face of John Cullen. He is medium all over: size, age, demeanor. Two keepers help him to walk.

Mr. Cullen had 36 years in which to straighten out his life. Now he has three minutes. John was a $1.98 crook. One afternoon he got in a little deeper when he tried to rob a refugee of a $3,000 ring. John got piano wire. Instead of tying her hands, he tied her neck.

He will not look at the chair. He looks at the concrete floor. The PK nods. John turns and sits. The hands are on the big arms, and he tilts his head back as though a barber is about to lather his face. There is a long sigh. The PK asks him if he has anything to say. John Cullen swallows and his Adams apple bobs. "No," he murmurs. "Thanks."

The keepers crouch for the leg and arm straps. The executioner assists with the big ones across the chest. One comes across the chin; another tight on the forehead. The priest murmurs prayers for the dying. John Cullen could have used those for the past year. That's how long he has been dying in the death house.

The swinging stethoscope slows. It stops. John Cullen is patient. He can see by looking under the forehead strap. The faces he sees are stiff with fright. Mr. Cullen closes his eyes and sighs a big one. The executioner hurries to the alcove. There is no sound. No dimming of lights. Mr. Cullen tries to leap straight out. He is hit by 2,000 volts and 16 amperes. His body strains against the chest straps. A thin spiral of blue smoke emerges from one hand. The State Trooper murmurs: "Jesus, Mary and Joseph."

The executioner turns the juice down, then up. In the silence, the chest straps crack like bullwhips. The executioner is opposed to messy work. He makes sure. The second hand creeps around his watch three full times before he turns everything off.

Cullen sinks back, relaxed. The keepers take the body straps off. The white shirt is unbuttoned. One sponges the chest with a towel. The PK motions to the doctors. They are professionals. They leave the wall, walking in step, to the chair. The silver stethoscopes are held to several parts of the chest. They are removed from the ears and passed to the other man. He listens. The two men whisper. The older one turns to the reporter and says: "I pronounce this man dead." John Cullen is now even with the world he has just left. He owes nothing. The trooper behind me is sick.

A hospital table comes in. A clean white sheet is tucked around it. The keepers lift John Cullen. He is most relaxed. The eyes are open. A tear runs sideways down one cheek. It is alive.

This, Mr. Chief Justice, is what it is like . . .

Drew Pearson Says Fortas's Admission May Cost Him Liberal Support

FORTAS: WHITE HOUSE CONFEE

On November 19, 1967, Drew Pearson and Jack Anderson reported that Justice Abe Fortas had participated in various conferences in the White House regarding Vietnam and other problems. Pearson and Anderson referred to this in several subsequent columns.

On July 16, 1968, this was the highlight of Justice Fortas's testimony before the Senate Judiciary Committee during the consideration of his appointment as Chief Justice.

WASHINGTON — Justice Abe Fortas's admission that he gave advice to President Johnson on high policies of State has strengthened Senate opposition to his confirmation. In fact, his testimony that he had summarized the advice of others on Vietnam for the President may have lost him support among some liberal Senators.

It had long been known in Washington society that the Fortases cancelled out on dinner parties because they were suddenly called to intimate family dinners at the White House.

It was also known that President Johnson asked Fortas's advice on a great many subjects ranging from whom he should appoint as Attorney General and whom he should appoint to the regulatory agencies, to the war in Vietnam. The President himself has been quite frank about this, even when Fortas himself was denying it.

On more than one occasion after he was appointed to the Supreme Court, Fortas remarked belittlingly that it was libel per se to print reports that he had been conferring with President Johnson. Obviously this was a sensitive matter—though he has now confessed it to the Senate Judiciary Committee.

But the President himself was not so sensitive, and frankly informed many people that Justice Fortas was one of the trusted friends on whom he leaned for advice.

No. 1 Hawk
Now it develops from Fortas's own testimony that he must have been the leading hawk among the war advisers. This had been suspected but never documented.

The President numbered among his advisers Secretary of State Rusk, who assumed the role of impartiality; former Secretary of Defense McNamara, a definite dove; Ambassador Averell Harriman, a dove; Walt Rostow, a hawk; Under Secretary of State George Ball, a dove; Ambassador Arthur Goldberg, a dove; the Joint Chiefs of Staff, hawks; and Clark Clifford, who since he has become Secretary of Defense has been revealed as something of a dove.

If Justice Fortas summarized this conflicting advice for the President, then by his own testimony it would appear that he kept the President on a war course which turned out to be one of the most disastrous in the history of the United States; a course which has undermined the other truly great domestic accomplishments of the President.

Other Fortas Advice
Testifying on other matters, Fortas glossed over his persistent recommendation that U.S. Attorney David Bress be made a U.S. district judge. Bress has been an excellent U.S. attorney and deserves reward. However, the basic point is whether a member of the Supreme Court should recommend judgeships. Under the constitutional separation of the executive from the judiciary, he should not. Yet Fortas recommended Bress as U.S. attorney in the first place, and then asked that he be promoted to be a judge in the second place.

He was also firm in vetoing such men as New York attorney Louis Nizer to be Attorney General, though this occurred before Fortas assumed his position on the bench.

No Supreme Court Justice has conferred with the President more than has Fortas, except for Justice Felix Frankfurter, who was a notorious busybody in running back and forth between the Court and the White House.

All of this runs counter to the long history of the United States in which the Chief Justice has been completely independent of the White House.

sometimes at loggerheads with it.

It began with Chief Justice John Marshall, whom Thomas Jefferson described as "a crafty Chief Justice who sophisticated the law to his mind by the turn of his own reasoning."

Yet it was John Marshall who probably more than any other man used the Supreme Court to keep the early struggling states from becoming a loose-knit federation. Had it not been for John Marshall's tough decisions and his independence of the White House, the United States would not be the powerful country it is today.

The tug-of-war between the court and the White House continued under Abraham Lincoln, who said of the Dred Scott decision that it got the doctrine of democracy down "as thin as the homeopathic soup made by boiling the shadow of a pigeon that had starved to death."

On the other hand there was the close and secret liaison between President Buchanan and Justice Catron of Tennessee and Justice Grier of Pennsylvania by which Buchanan knew in advance that the Missouri Compromise was to be held invalid.

Among the more recent Chief Justices, Charles Evans Hughes was horrified when President Roosevelt suggested conferences between him and the Court.

Perhaps the ideal relationship between the President and the Chief Justice has been that between Earl Warren and Lyndon Johnson. They maintain friendly, cordial relations, but remain completely aloof where policy is concerned.

In the case of Justice Fortas it is easy to understand why Lyndon Johnson, having leaned on Abe for advice for 30 years, continued to lean on him after he went to the Supreme Court. It was a natural relationship and Fortas's advice on domestic matters was brilliant. The question, however, is, first, whether this was a correct relationship; and, second, whether the advice of a man who knew nothing about foreign affairs was not disastrous for the American people.

Soviet, Chinese Military Aid Interrupted by Armed Clashes

By MARK GAYN

Chicago Daily News

Foreign Service

HONG KONG, July 17 — The flow of Soviet and Chinese military aid to North Vietnam has been cut off a number of times since mid-June, diplomatic sources here report.

Most of the interruptions have been on the 125-mile section of the railway that runs south from the Chinese provincial capital of Nanning to the border with Vietnam. Other serious breaks, however, have been reported on the line running north from Nanning to the vital railway junction of Luichow.

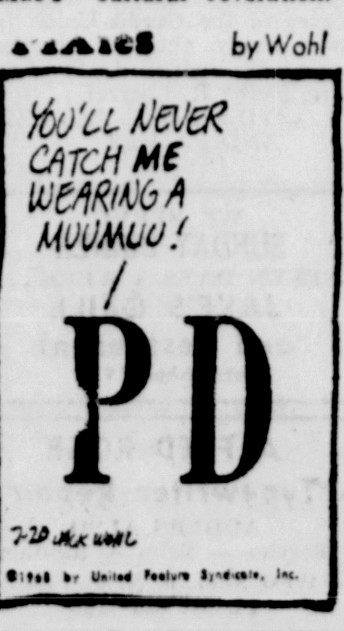

Nearly all the interruptions have been caused by armed clashes among rival factions of railwaymen, workers, Red Guards and army regulars. Peking has tried to insulate railroad employees from battles raging around them by ordering them to avoid ties with local revolutionary bodies. This ban, however, is being breached everywhere as the feuding groups of railwaymen seek allies on the outside.

The same diplomatic informants denied the rumor, current here for weeks, that the North Vietnamese consulate in Nanning had been sacked by Red Guards angered by the Vietnam peace negotiations in Paris.

They, however, reported that in May the North Vietnamese consul was compelled to attend a mass meeting in Nanning and to deliver a speech that followed the Peking rather than the Hanoi line. He is said to have told the crowd that the only path to victory in Vietnam lay not in peace talks, but in a protracted war, along the lines taught by Chinese Communist party chairman Mao Tse-tung.

This is not the first time the movement of Soviet and Chinese aid to North Vietnam has been affected by Mao's "cultural revolution."

by Wohl

Since last November, there have been at least three instances reported by the Chinese themselves.

Last fall, Premier Chou En-lai castigated the several hundred young men who had walked out of the Chinese "labor battalions" in North Vietnam with the excuse they wanted to "make revolution" in China. He told them they had really fled from U.S. bombs and accused them of betraying the revolution.

Early this year, Premier Chou struck at the Red Guards who had raided arms shipments going to Vietnam and helped themselves to the guns and ammunition they felt they needed to "make revolution" in South China. In one instance they were said to have captured and fired 10,000 rounds of ammunition intended to help the North Vietnamese shoot down U.S. aircraft.

The latest and the most detailed disclosure came in a speech Chou made about three weeks ago in Peking, before a meeting of out-of-town railwaymen.

Chou's Sharp Lecture
In his sharp lecture, Chou reported that ships were being raided for guns in the major Chinese ports of Dairen, Shanghai and Tsingtao. He described some of the raiders as "thugs."

Railway operations were also said to have been disrupted all across the length and breadth of China, but especially at the three major points through which all Soviet overland aid and most of the Chinese must pass. These points are Shenyang (formerly Mukden), in former Manchuria; Ghenchow, which lies at the junction of the north-south and east-west rail systems; and Luichow, another junction point in the south.

In Ghenchow, the trouble has been centered on the northern station, where the personnel simply appears to have walked out, still stalling vital operations. But it is Luichow where the unrest has converted a rail hub into a jammed bottleneck, halting the flow of supplies to North Vietnam. Of it, Premier Chou said:

"Here the struggle has been the longest. When an agreement was reached at one point, it could not be implemented at another. The chief reason is that the two local factions are influencing the two railway groups and armed clashes have never ceased."

The premier added: "In the meantime, the Nawei mechanical section (which lies in the joining Kweichow province but is part of the Luichow rail system) is also in a doubtful situation. Traffic is at a standstill. Material cannot be transported to Hailow or to Vietnam. Goods brought from Zee-chuan, Kweichow and Yunnan are piled up there . . ."

Operations in Nawei, according to Chou, have been disrupted for "the past year or more"—much of the time by go-slow or full-blown strikes. The section has now been put under the Kweichow military district, with the army made responsible for untangling this difficult knot.

Charges Sabotage

In every instance, from Shenyang in the north to Luichow in the south, Chou accused senior railway officials of sabotaging operations. In each case, the culprits were turned over to the army garrison commander in Peking with hints that they would meet with stern punishment. The real reason for the trouble on the railroads, however, is that they cannot be insulated against the political storm shaking the nation.

Diplomatic informants, who are not American, discounted the reports being circulated by East European diplomats in several Asian capitals that China had deliberately allowed the Red Guards to interrupt the flow of Soviet supplies to persuade Hanoi that Moscow is failing it.

The informants noted that the Soviet Union is trigger-quick to note any Chinese tampering with the movement of Soviet supplies and it has not made a complaint in months.

The informants, however, did say that are some signs both China and the Soviet Union have been gradually cutting down on their military aid to North Vietnam.

American sources do not believe it.

By LYNN MULVANEY

The final count of Democratic primary votes cast June 18 for delegates to the national convention has been tallied for the five-county 28th Congressional District with the three men committed to Vice President Hubert Humphrey, the victors.

The slate, headed by Congressman Joseph Y. Resnick, who took the top number of ballots—7,263, is comprised of Thomas Quinn of Columbia County with 5,817 votes and Roy Guarino of Dutchess County with 5,216 votes. Together they reaped 18,496 votes compared to a total of 14,079 for the next three runners-up, all committed to Sen. Eugene McCarthy.

No State Dem Party Leader For Two Years Claims Burns

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York State Democratic Party will have to wait at least until 1970 to find a leadership replacement for the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, says Democratic state chairman John J. Burns.

The affable man who holds the splintering reins of the state committee says it will take the election of a governor to make his organization a viable one again.

Burns, starting his second full term as the $40,000-a-year state committee chairman, doesn't see himself in the position vacated by the assassination of Kennedy.

Now 47, Burns has no plans of making another run for a statewide office. He ran for lieutenant governor in 1962 on an unsuccessful ticket headed by U.S. Attorney Robert M. Morgenthau, who was closely associated with the late John F. Kennedy.

A strong supporter of both Kennedys, himself, Burns is looking for a candidate to charge into the picture with the appeal of either the late president or senator.

Some Glamorous Names
Kennedy forces in New York

State look to some of the glamour names in their camp to bridge the candidate gap in 1970. Both Ted Sorensen and Stephen Smith are spoken of as Senate and gubernatorial candidates.

Others mentioned were Howard Samuels, now undersecretary of commerce who was on the 1966 gubernatorial ticket headed by New York City Council president Frank D. O'Connor Rep. Jonathan Bingham of the Bronx and former Mayor Robert F. Wagner, U.S. Ambassador to Spain.

Some party leaders have said Burns has the makings of a state leader. Assembly Speaker Anthony J. Travia, who retired to take a federal judgeship, urged Burns to step forward to fill the vacuum.

O'Connor is the titular head of the party because of his spot on the last gubernatorial ticket, but Burns says the City Council president does not have the patronage or power to keep the state county leaders in line.

Brooklyn County leader Stanley Steingut and Queens County leader Moses M. Weinstein are expected to battle it out for the speaker's post vacated by Travia if the Democrats retain their assembly edge this fall but it would be difficult to measure the kind of leadership influence they would be able to exert in this post.

Most of the contenders for the leadership have been involved in bitter party squabbles the past few years—except Burns.

"If you can't get along with John Burns," a longtime Democrat said two years ago, "You've probably got problems getting along with anybody in the human race."

Even the leaders of the camps of Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy and Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey took pains to avoid criticism of Burns during the bitter party squabble over at-large delegates to the national convention.

"The county leaders overruled him," said the McCarthy group, "he wanted to help us but they never let him."

The black-haired Burns took over as chairman in 1965 after William H. McKeon resigned in the midst of a party feud.

He helped bring the debt of the party down from $670,000 to $400,000 in less than a year, and despite increasing costs and some more borrowing has managed to cut the deficit to where it is now $300,000.

The death of Kennedy—both a severe emotional and political loss—also may hurt the party pocketbooks. "He was a dynamic figure, a very effective campaigner who was a great fund raiser," Burns said.

The senator's brother-in-law, Stephen Smith, also is known for his party fund raising. "I am hoping he would continue to help," says the party chairman. There was not one dissenting voice at the state committee meeting at which Burns was re-elected for another two-year term.

The state chairman was born in Binghamton on July 12, 1921, one of three children of a Firestone rubber executive. After finishing high school, he got a job with a wholesale hardware and sporting goods company, loading trucks and boxcars before working his way up to salesman.

But by that time it was 1942 and World War II beckoned the nation's youth. Burns enlisted in the Navy.

After the war Burns, whose grandfather had been a Binghamton city councilman, took a political plunge. In 1946 he was an unsuccessful candidate for county supervisor and in 1950 he lost again as a Democratic-Liberal candidate for Congress.

But his campaigning had drawn the attention of local party leaders and in 1951 he was appointed deputy chief assessor. A year later Mayor Donald W. Kramer named Burns his executive assistant. And when Kramer bowed out Burns stepped in and won election to his first four year term. He did it again in 1961.

The burly Burns—6 feet 2 and about 220 pounds—still is a commuting chairman. He maintains a party office in Binghamton as well as one in New York City. There are usually two round trips per week.

But Teresa, his wife for 18 years, says things couldn't be better. "It's disgusting, isn't it," she laughingly told a newsman some time ago. "Our marriage keeps getting better."

The three delegate candidates, formerly committed to the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy were last with George Whalen of Dutchess County receiving 4,294 votes, Roger Mabie of Ulster County 3,741 and Hillary Masters of Columbia County, 2,830.

Resnick Wins County

In tabulating Ulster County's votes, the Resnick slate remains ahead but among the runners-up, Roger Mabie of Esopus came out ahead of Skau and Whalen and in the City of Kingston, Mabie came in second behind Resnick.

The total Ulster County and City of Kingston vote is as follows: Resnick, 2,152; Quinn, 1,966; Guarino, 1,792; Efron, 1,508; Geertsema, 1,477; Mabie, 1,432; Skau, 1,372; Whalen, 1,222 and Masters, 1,058.

A report out of Albany this week shows that Sen. McCarthy captured 62 of the 123 elected delegate seats to the convention.

The election bureau reported that delegates pledged to the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy won 27 seats while forces of Vice President Humphrey won 15 seats in the primary.

Nineteen delegates who are uncommitted also were elected. The report from the Department of State came amid furor in the Democratic ranks over the distribution of New York's 65 at-large delegate seats.

Protest Decision

McCarthy backers have protested the decision of the Democratic State Committee to allocate only 15 1/2 of the at-large votes to McCarthy. They claim he is entitled to many more.

Reacting to that criticism, State Chairman John J. Burns is trying to persuade some of the at-large delegates to resign so that the committee can redistribute some of the at-large votes.

The state's 190-vote bloc will be one of the largest in the presidential nominating convention now scheduled for Chicago next month.

Burns' effort to have some of the delegate's at-large resign is designed to meet criticism that the Negro and Puerto Rican communities have been short-changed in terms of representation.

This criticism was leveled in addition to the complaints from McCarthy supporters that their man deserved more at-large votes.

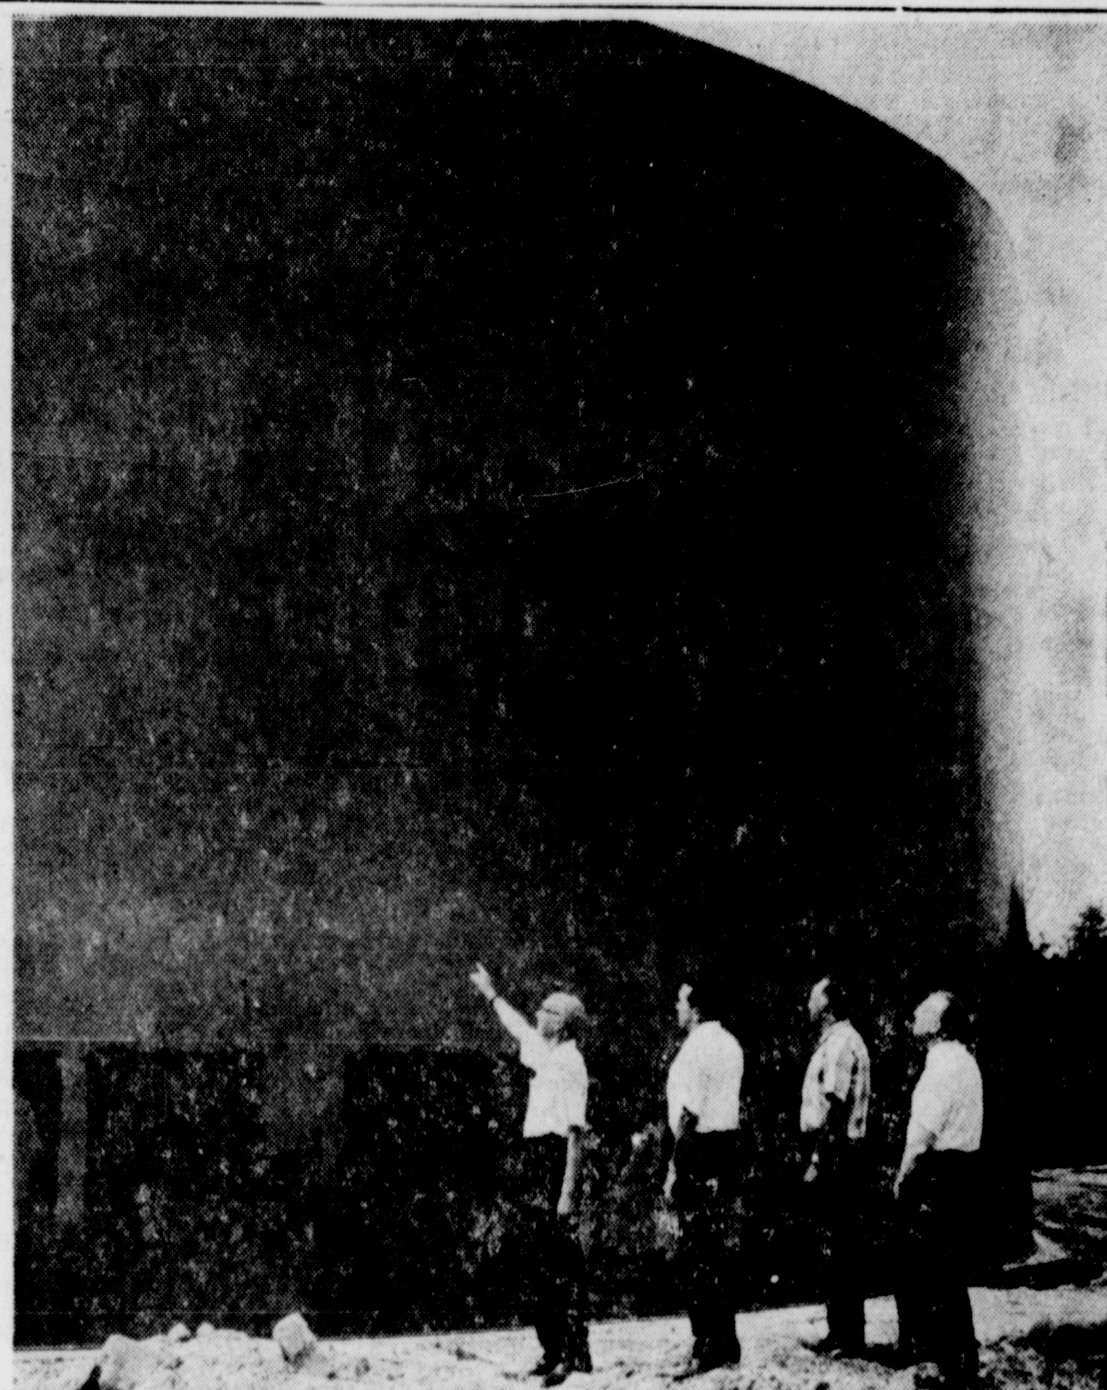

Power Failure In New Paltz

One short summer shower and a streak of lightning meant a power failure in the Village of New Paltz yesterday, at 4 p. m.

O'Dwyer's Margin Is 18,238 Votes

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Paul O'Dwyer, who supports Minnesota Sen. Eugene McCarthy for president, defeated Eugene Nickerson by 18,238 votes in the three-way, Democratic primary election for U.S. senator, final official results show.

The Department of State reported Friday that O'Dwyer, a New York City lawyer, received 275,877 votes in the June 18 primary.

Nickerson, Nassau County executive and an ally of the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, had 257,639 and U.S. Rep. Joseph Y. Resnick of Ellenville 229,893.

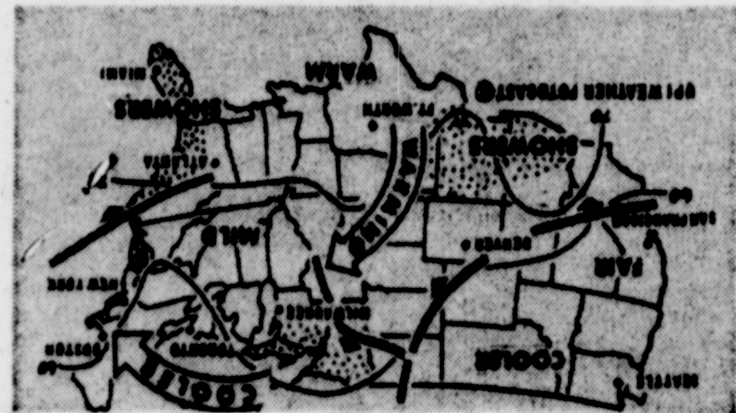

The department also said U.S. Sen. Jacob K. Javits, a Republican who seeks a third term, received 10,277 votes to

3,969 for Murray Baron, a labor lawyer, in the contest for endorsement by the Liberal party. Javits had no GOP opponent, but Baron challenged a decision by Liberal leaders to back the senator.

James L. Buckley was unopposed as the Senate candidate of the Conservative party.

O'Dwyer outpolled Nickerson in New York City by a margin of approximately 7-5. Nickerson prevailed 7-5 outside the city but could not offset a larger vote in the city.

The figures were:
New York City — O'Dwyer, 175,934; Nickerson, 118,339.
Outside New York City — O'Dwyer, 99,943; Nickerson, 139,300.

U.S. Savings Bonds/ New Freedom Shares

Today, Savings Bonds are a better investment than ever. Now they pay 4 1/4 % when held to maturity. And new Freedom Shares pay a full 5% when held to maturity.

Freedom Shares are still sold on a one-for-one basis with Series E Bonds, but now you can buy the combination any time at your bank—and not just on a regular monthly plan as before.

The higher interest rate on Savings Bonds applies not only to the new ones you buy, but to your older ones too for their remaining period to maturity—generally effective with the first full six-months interest period beginning on or after June 1. (Outstanding Freedom Shares are not affected).

Your Dental Health

SURGERY WITHOUT PAIN WAS SLOW DEVELOPMENT

By William Lawrence, D.D.S.

Someone once pointed out that the first operation under sleep anesthesia was done by the Lord. In the third chapter of Genesis, it says, "... the Lord caused a deep sleep to fall upon Adam, and he slept; and he took one of his ribs and then closed the flesh."

Since then, relief from pain

has been a profound hope of mankind. But it took many thousands of years before the next painless operation under deep sleep anesthesia was recorded, and this occurred under circumstances peculiar enough to have pleased even Dr. Tim Leary, the psychedelic dilly.

Either was synthesized in the 12th century but not until many centuries later did some Georgians, probably sated with alcoholic hangovers and looking for new kicks, discover its exhilarating effects.

Some very interesting parties or happenings called ether frolics were then taking place in Georgia and other parts of the South. A few whiffs of ether were enough to send you to Pleasure Land.

But, as was inevitable, someone took an overdose and instead of a jag this reveler fell down "dead."

A doctor was called but, by the time he arrived an hour later, his patient awakened, apparently none the worse for his experience.

Dr. Crawford Long in Jefferson, Ga., heard of this incident and began experimenting with ether. Once, while under the influence, he severely bruised his leg. When he sobered up, he did not remember either bruise or pain.

Thus did Dr. Long "discover" ether and come to understand its proper use. It was he who actually performed the first recorded surgical operation in the history of the world (barring the Lord's) under general anesthesia.

The year was 1842, and the operation was routine enough: lancing a boil.

Please send your questions about dental health to Dr. Lawrence in care of this paper. While he cannot answer each letter personally, letters of general interest will be answered in this column.

When Is a Camp Not a Camp — When It's for Teens

TEEN CAMPERS RETURN — Weary campers unload gear at the Jewish Community Center Thursday after three day sojourn dude ranching down county. The JCC Teen Camp program puts the emphasis on travel for 15 teenagers participating in this second year of operation. (Freeman photo by Haines).

Jewish Community Center Teen Campers have taken to the high road and low during the first part of the season. Fifteen "campers" have taken part in the program which emphasizes travel by car, bike and foot. Not at all a camp session, the JCC Teen Camp provides a unique summer of arts, culture and fun, all of which is being recorded on movie film by the campers themselves.

The teens during the first camp period ending July 27, will have visited Lake Taghkanic, Overlook Mountain, toured the Art Students League at Woodstock, and participated in an overnight bicycle trip to Camp Thoreau, Wallkill, during the first week.

This week's highlight was a three-day trip to the Sunny-croft Ponderosa Dude Ranch in Wallkill and the group also spent another day at Lake Taghkanic.

Future Events

Next week they will attend a performance of Peter, Paul and Mary at the Saratoga Performing Arts Center, visit Rye Beach, tour the Ellenville Antique Auto Museum and Sam's Point and the Ice Caves, and spend another day at Lake Taghkanic.

During the second session of the camp, starting July 29 and ending Aug. 16, the highlights will be a three-day trip to Mystic, Conn. and environs, including a visit to Yale University. Other highlights include day trips to Lake Taghkanic, a trip to Palisades Park, and a trip to the Saratoga Performing Arts Center to see Diana Ross and the Supremes.

Film Makers

As part of the program, the group is producing a film which they are making, using the places they visit as settings for the film.

Freeman TEEN Page

Directing the program are Donn and Mary Ann Avallone. Participants in the first session are Eric Berger, Lori Braunschtein, Randy Feit, Joel Feldman, Kenneth Friedman, Richard Gossett, Eddie Halpern, Ricky Kamen, Meryl Kanover, Naomi Katz, Arlene Markowitz, Steven Rafalowsky, Jody Summer, Ellen Sherry and Howard Tevlowitz.

The Jewish Community Center is a member agency of the Ulster County Community Chest. Stanley King is executive director.

ON CAMERA — Ken Friedman aims his movie camera at where the action is while Eric Burger and Randy Feit direct the production. All the summer events are being recorded on film. Settings are easy to come by as the fun seekers travel around the county and the state. (Freeman photo by Haines).

The Teen Scene

FACING THE MUSIC AT NEWPORT

By LEI

The Jazz Festival, held annually starting on the Fourth of July, is over for another year, and for another year, the music has just begun. Now, for the next 11 months, everyone will be analyzing and criticising every aspect of the Festival. Fortunately, this year there was very little trouble with the badcats that inevitably give everybody a hard time. So this year most of the discussion is about music.

Probably the most complaints (after those about the general overcrowding) concerned the large number of "pop performers" who appeared. Probably the most comments were about the return of the big band. Actually, to those following the scene, neither of these "surprising developments" is noteworthy.

Aside from a small and loyal minority, jazz is no longer the musical idiom of the young. Probably there are many teenagers unfamiliar with the work (or even the names) of Thelonius Monk or Dizzy Gillespie. However, jazz is far from dead. With an "if-you-can't-lick-it, join-it" abandon, jazz has started popping up in pop, until sometimes it is hard to tell them apart.

It might be easy enough to class the Ramsey Lewis Trio as jazz, along with Louis Armstrong and Pete Fountain (though all have had pop hits), but where would one class Hugh Masekela? Or Dionne Warwick, and Nina Simone? Al Hirt is jazz, of course, but what on earth is Herb Alpert? (That was not one of the alternatives we had in mind. . . .) And how could Ray Charles, who has sung everything from soul through c & w be put in one bag?

The purists protest that they will not go to Newport again to hear another "pop festival." Perhaps they were not so much put down by the performers who did appear, such as Dionne Warwick, as they were disappointed by what appear to be odd omissions, such as Ella Fitzgerald. And perhaps they were irritated that some of those attracted by the "pop" names were not as rapt while listening to Duke Ellington and Count Basie.

The return of the big band should surprise nobody, when even in such traditionally "simple" music as country and western, full orchestras now back record singers, and when rock groups now tour with the 30-piece band needed to give them their "lush" backing. Unfortunately, some big bands make music, while others make memories. They appeal to widely different groups.

Generally, any dissatisfaction with the 1968 Newport Jazz Festival can probably be traced to a public habit of overclassification. Good music is good, no matter what its bag. Those who split hairs over what type of music was being played would do well to consider, without nostalgia or a desire to be "with it" the actual merits of the music they heard. It might appear that the performers at this Festival were chosen with more of an eye toward selling tickets to EVERYONE than they were toward providing a uniformly excellent level of performance.

Paltz Classes Attract 65

For Summer

New Paltz students are taking advantage of the six week summer school session at the high school to learn personal typing and driver education skills. In all 65 students are enrolled, 41 in driver ed and 24 in personal typing. Retired business education teacher Miss Laura Stanley is typing instructor. At the end of the course students should be able to type at least 25 words per minute and certainly be able to type their own term papers. Driver ed classroom sessions are being taught by Robert Doucette, Board of Cooperative Education Services special education teacher. The road work required equals the book work sessions. Instructors are Theodore Sirko and Lawrence Johnson, chairman of the science department and director of athletics respectively at New Paltz High School. Since only four students are permitted in the car at one time two cars are required. Louis Smith Chevrolet of Highland has provided a 1968 model for use in the summer course, joining the 1967 Ford provided by Rizzo Ford, Highland, for use during the regular school year. Students will divide their time between the two cars.

Local Delegates Back From Key Club Parley

Six Kingston boys, members of Key Clubs at two local high schools returned recently from Montreal where they attended Key Club Silver Jubilee International Convention. Representing Kingston High School were Gene Bruno, Garry Schantz and Gary Matthews. John Augustine, William Franz and Gerard Grier were John A. Coleman High School delegates. More than 2600 Key Club delegates were on hand for the five-day parley, representing every state in the United States, every province of Canada, Puerto Rico, Antigua and the Bahamas. Key Club International is a service club for high school students and is sponsored by awards.

Experiment Tripper Gives City's Medal

Kingston's own ambassador to Germany delivered greetings and gifts last week to the Mayor of Zoest.

Anna Mary Portz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Portz of 27 Orchard Street, Hurley, is touring Europe as part of the Experiment in International Living this summer. A fall semester senior at Kingston High School, Anna Mary was a winner of a Prisma scholarship for the trans-Atlantic adventure. Further assists for the trip were provided by Kingston Kiwanis Club which bought film and camera and Hurley Lions Club which gave money.

She visited Zoest July 12 and presented the mayor with a medallion and citation from Mayor Raymond W. Garraghan on behalf of Kingston. In a letter to her parents this week, she reported the German mayor was "very pleased and proud of the medal." She will deliver his message in person when she returns the end of August.

After an orientation period at Experiment headquarters in Vernon, Anna Mary left from Bradley Field, Conn., July 9. She met her home stay family in Bad Sassendorf and was presented with a bouquet of roses by her German "sister." At present the American Experimenters are touring Germany, Austria and Italy with high hopes of side trips to France and Switzerland.

Also on the agenda is a visit to East Germany where the group is slated to see a play. The Hurley girl will return for a three week stay with her German family about Aug. 2. Return flight will be Aug. 30, just in time for return to school. So far Anna Mary with her group has visited London, Brussels and much of Germany including the cathedral city of Cologne where she got her first view of the mighty Rhine and toured the Kolner Dome. Other area students participating in the Experiment in International Living this summer are Linda Krause, also a Prisma scholarship winner; Michael P. Shienbold and Beatrice Zebree who is the Ulster County Community Ambassador, sponsored by the Ulster County Experiment in International Living group.

KINGSTON EMISSARY—Anna Mary Portz receives medallion and citation from Mayor Raymond W. Garraghan for presentation to the mayor of Zoest, Germany. Anna Mary is currently on a European adventure as part of the Experiment in International Living. She made the friendship presentation on the other side of the Atlantic July 12.

MONTICELLO — Rivaltime holds the fastest mile ever raced at Monticello Raceway, a 1:58.4 race mile three seasons ago. Last night at the Mighty M, the six-year-old didn't have to set a record, easily capturing the $10,000 first division MYR Pacing series, now in its second and final week at Monticello.

Reined by George Sholly, the pint-size driver that guided the bay son of Good Time out of Tallulah Hanover by Billy Dietrich to record mile, Rivaltime toured the Mighty M's double oval last night in 2:01.4, winning easily, gate-to-wire by two lengths over five others.

In a class all his own, Rivaltime left from the rail and drew the fans support, going off at 2-5 odds, a prohibitive favorite. Rivaltime shot for the top as the starting gate pulled away.

Bob Camper, driver of Schell Hanover (6), went to the top against Rivaltime, staying only until the first turn. Rivaltime was more than a length in front at the first quarter, timed in 30 seconds flat.

Bueno-Tegart Battle
EASTBOURNE, England (UPI)—Brazil's Maria Bueno and Judy Tegart of Australia played their way into the women's singles final at the Rothman's Invitation Lawn Tennis Tournament with decisive victories Friday.

Miss Bueno captured her semi-final match 6-2, 6-4 from Winnie Shaw of Britain. Miss Tegart's opponent, 21-year-old Alex Soady of Britain was never in the match. Mike Sangster of Britain defeated Australia's Bill Bowrey 6-4, 9-7, and Herb Fitzgibbon, of Garden City, N.Y., beat Britain's Bobby Wilson 7-5, 6-2, and will meet in the Holyoke men's singles final.

Trailing Schell was Key Club (2), and Dream Pick (4). They hit the half-mile mark in 1:01.3, the three-fourths in 1:31.2, a 29.4 third-quarter, and in the final turn, Sholly had opened a length and with Rivaltime. The bay coasted home, eased up after taking the two-length margin from Record Time (5), who got up for second, and another length away from Freight Comet (3). Rivaltime paid $2.80, 2.80 and 2.10. Record Time's place prices were $4.80 and $2.60, Freight Comet, $2.20 for show.

Spanish tennis corps, won a gruelling two-hour-and-18-minute marathon from Nicolo Pietrangeli Friday with a sweep of the final two sets for a 6-3, 3-6, 4-6, 6-4, 6-2 triumph.

Dear Abby

Too Young, She Wants Out

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
© 1968 by Chicago Tribune
N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I must have started a dozen letters to you and tore them all up, hoping each time things would work themselves out. Well, they haven't so this time I am writing to you for advice.

I'm not quite 18 and have been married for 10 months to a a man who is 26. When I told my mother I wanted to marry Phil, she begged me not to, saying I was "too young," and would regret it. I wouldn't listen to her, said I was "in love" and I talked her into signing for me.

Now I realize my mother was right. I can't begin to tell you how unhappy I am. Phil is jealous, suspicious, treats me like a child, and he even "spansks" me on my bare bottom if I don't obey him. All the love I had for him is dead and I can hardly stand for him to touch me. Abby, this is just not working out. I talked to my pastor and he says, "Give your marriage a chance."

All day long thoughts keep running through my mind. Should I just leave and go home? Should I tell Phil I want a divorce? Could I get an annulment? Or, now that I've made my bed must I lie in it? Please, please help me.

SICK AT HEART
DEAR SICK: Tell Phil what is in your heart and go home to your mother. A lawyer can tell you if you're eligible for an annulment. Fortunately you are childless. Better to leave the bed "you made" than to lie in it and conceive children there you don't want, in a marriage you feel is a mistake. Confide in your mother. She will understand.

DEAR ABBY: I have asked many people this question, and they have all come up with different answers, and I would love to know yours.

I am a 16-year-old girl. Just for fun, an 18-year-old boy challenged me to a race. I won.

Should I have let him win for the sake of his masculine pride? Or should I have beat him as I did, fair and square?

FAST GIRL
DEAR FAST: Since HE challenged you, and you accepted the challenge, you should not have "let him" win. Naturally, it was a blow to his masculine pride, so let this be a lesson to you. Never accept such a challenge with a boy again, because if you win, you lose.

DEAR ABBY: Saturday I attended the wedding of a relative. I wore a very nice black cocktail dress with long sleeves, and as I didn't want to spoil my hair-do I wore a black lace mantilla on my head.

Now I know they say that black is out for weddings, but I have seen plenty of black dresses at weddings so there is nothing so unusual about that.

Well, outside the church, a friend of my mother-in-law asked me "WHOM I HAD LOST?" It took a minute for me to realize what she meant. At the reception my husband's uncle asked me the same thing. I am furious. What should I have said to these rude people? Do you share my opinion that these remarks were ignorant and uncalled for?

HURT
DEAR HURT: If the remarks were intended to ridicule, I would agree with you. But perhaps they were not. It was probably not so much the black dress that gave the impression of mourning as the black lace mantilla.

CONFIDENTIAL TO RICK: You probably talk too much. Nobody ever listened himself out of a job.

Everybody has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069 and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

FOR ABBY'S NEW BOOK-LET "WHAT TEEN-AGERS WANT TO KNOW," SEND $1.00 TO ABBY, BOX 69700, LOS ANGELES, CAL. 90069.

Bridge

By Oswald and James Jacoby

Today's hand is an old timer with a new twist. Seven diamonds is a reasonable contract, except for one thing. There is no real play for it because declarer has two clubs in each hand and can only discard three hearts on dummy's top spades.

On the other hand, most declarers will make the contract against any lead but a spade by cashing two clubs and all the trumps. East and West are each likely to guard spades and will have to discard down to one heart each in order to do so.

Of course, if South bids hearts along the way, West may count up and decide that his partners will hold at least four spades, whereupon West will throw spades early.

The new twist is supplied by British writer Victor Mollo. South is a very bad, but very lucky, player who reached seven diamonds as shown in the box. He carefully won the first club with dummy's queen and led a diamond to his ace. When East showed out, declarer, who couldn't count very well, decided to go back to dummy with the ace of clubs to finesse the diamonds. He was so intent on this that he led dummy's jack of diamonds.

At this point, there was no way to get to dummy for the three top spades. An ordinary poor player would realize this and play ace and one heart to get out for down one but Mollo's man was built of sterner stuff. He wouldn't lose a trick until he had to and he ran out all his trumps.

East threw one spade early but West did not discard a spade. Eventually, declarer played his ace of hearts and was about to concede down several when he discovered that all his small hearts were good and he made his grand slam!

Horoscope

By SYDNEY OMARR

It's In The Stars

("The wise man controls his destiny... astrology points the way.")

FORECAST FOR SUNDAY, July 21, 1968

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Streamline methods, appearance, surroundings. Means get rid of nonessentials. You will be better able to concentrate once motives are clearly defined. Know this—respond accordingly.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Build spiritual bridges. You profit by obtaining peace within. Be sympathetic to needs of one who confides problem. If you are generous, repayment will be bountiful.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Day when your appearance, personality are emphasized. You attract attention. You can successfully take initiative. Welcome contacts, challenges. Be ready to accept unusual invitation.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Trust intuitive intellect. Means hunch pays off. Heed urgings of inner voice. Spiritual matters take precedence. Participation in group, club, charity drive proves beneficial.

LEO (July 23-August 22): Socialize—meet people, go places. Extend hand of friendship. Study Taurus message. Realize you are not alone, but you must make first gesture. Then contentment follows.

VIRGO (August 23-September 22): Check details. Your career potential, goals, ambitions are spotlighted. If vigorous in pursuit of ultimate aim, you can succeed. Accent on potential. Realize and appreciate your own worth.

LIBRA (September 23-October 22): Good lunar aspect to added knowledge. Gain shows through written word. Read, study, absorb information. Individual with spiritual insight expresses desire to aid. Accept. SCORPIO (October 23-November 21): Emotions run deep. You have a flash of illumination.

FORECAST FOR MONDAY, JULY 22, 1968
ARIES (March 21-April 19): Completion of important project indicated. Favorable effect on security shown. Family affair turns out well. No need to chastise one who disagreed. Extend hand of forgiving friendship.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Make that call to relative. Obtain hint from Aries message. Show by actions that you are mature. Accent on short journey. Messages. Take initiative. Utilize creative abilities.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Find out how best to utilize assets. Consult experts. Some willingness to aid. Accent generous offer. Your instincts about project apt to prove correct.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Your personality is spotlighted. Means people are more aware of your speech, mannerisms. Weigh words, actions. Be natural, but don't discard caution. Cycle is high—you are due to win.

LEO (July 23 - August 22): Study areas which are not open. Means peek behind the scenes. Find out the mechanics of a special project. Discover what makes operation tick. Be thorough and dedicated.

VIRGO (August 23-September 22): Accent on the way you achieve desires. Some judge your methods. Be flexible and a good listener. Member of the opposite sex displays affection. Your ego soars.

LIBRA (September 23-October 22): Stress authoritative manner. Be confident and let others know you have faith. This promotes aura of success. Specifically, you have special assignment which must be completed. SCORPIO (October 23-November 21): Good lunar aspect to day coincides with chance to tion with family, home, security, basic things in life. Pay attention to inner revelation. SAGITTARIUS (November 22-December 21): Stand back and review. Play waiting game. Don't be in too much of a hurry to prove a point. One allied with you waits for a fond gesture. Break from pattern.

CAPRICORN (December 22-January 19): Put foot down where situation indicates others are taking advantage. Be practical. Fine for coming to understanding with associates, co-workers. Deal from a position of strength.

AQUARIUS (January 20-February 18): Good lunar aspect today coincides with creative activity, love, romance, dealings with children. You get chance to prove abilities. Be warm, giving. Then you receive reward.

PISCES (February 19-March 20): Give attention to domestic situation. Don't ignore basic matters. Those who advocate quick action should be treated with kind tolerance. But your own feelings should dominate.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you possess ability to make people laugh during a time of crisis. You are going through a period of searching, but opening for greater expression is on horizon.

By BOB ROSE

LOS ANGELES — On a January night 15 years ago, America was talking about two big news events—the inauguration of Dwight D. Eisenhower as president—and the birth of a baby, the child of a round-eyed, pink-haired comedienne named Lucille Ball and her Cuban-born husband, Columnist Hedda Hopper breathlessly reported that "interest in the birth was fantastic." She told how she was in Washington for the inaugural cocktail party with two distinguished publishers and their wives when one of the ladies rushed in and demanded that the TV set be turned on.

"Lucy's having her baby," she said. "We have to see if it's a boy or a girl."

It was the same all across the country, a country in the midst of a great baby boom. Everybody knew that Lucille Ball and Desi Arnaz, stars of the fantastically popular I Love Lucy comedy show, were having a baby in real life as well as on the series.

Since the baby had to be delivered by caesarean section, their writers could time everything perfectly. And they did.

On Monday night, Jan. 19, 1953, the regular I Love Lucy show night; the episode was entitled "Lucy Goes to the Hospital." When the show was over, the sponsor was able to end the unbearable suspense.

"It's a boy, Desi Arnaz Jr.," came the announcement.

Lucy is taking Desi Jr. and revamped weekly show, which is still regularly no. 1 in the ratings. The new show, titled here's Lucy, starts on CBS Sept. 23, again on a Monday.

Lucy is also taking Gale Gordon, her current co-star, along with her from their Lucy show, which has had a six-year run.

Lucy will be a widow (Lucy Carter) with two children, Kim (Lucie) and Craig (Desi).

"It's still the same Lucy. I'll never change that. She just has a new name," says Miss Ball, an ex-model and longtime movie star 34 films in 20 years pre-TV, and TV's reigning comedienne for 17 years.

Now she sits at a desk in an office that used to belong

City Beat

By HUGH REYNOLDS
Freeman City Hall Reporter

IT LOOKS like the Big Top won't be back to Kingston, at least as long as Mayor Garraghan is in office.

The circus that came to town June 12 left a lot of happy children, a lot of deep holes in the ground at Dietz Stadium and a lot of unhappy city officials.

The Beatty people also left $25 to cover the cost of cleaning and damage to the field, but this was hardly a down payment on the $200 patching job the city had to do. Fortunately a bond taken out by the sponsoring organization, the Knights of Columbus, covered the cost.

This was the second year in a row Garraghan was talked into letting the circus in town against his better judgement. The same thing happened last year and Ray said no more circuses, but being a sofie for kids, was eventually talked out of it. Now he's fed up.

But all is not lost. City officials have no complaints with the Coleman Carnival shows which leave the fields they rent in fine shape. Except for the animals there isn't much difference between a carnival and a circus, anyway.

WITH THE MAYOR'S secretary, June Diamond, on vacation drastic measures had to be taken. City Treasurer Stan Petro, the last of the two-fingered typists, volunteered his services and is doing a commendable job. Stan may not be too fast but he's accurate.

Speaking of Stan, the Petros are a pretty interesting political family. Stan is, of course, a Democrat, a committeeman and long-time friend (despite his youth) of Mayor Garraghan.

Stan's parents are both rockbed Republicans and have been for years. Stan's sister, Judy, is Ulster coordinator for Tommy Mayone in his campaign for Ulster County sheriff. Judy was also recently appointed to a job in Family Court, the bailiwick of John Ray Mayone, city Republican chairman.

A family gathering of the Petros must make for some interesting political discussions.

BACK TO John Mayone. It looks like the move to dump him from his city chairmanship ended with a meeting of the minds between H. Clark Bell and Peter J. Savago forces.

Bell's boys were hot after John Ray following the significant defeat of Savago, a heavy favorite whom Mayone backed to the hilt. Twenty-seven city committeemen were needed to accomplish the deed but sources close to this column said the highwater mark was reached at 18. Close, but no cigar. Better to string along with John Ray until after the election than blow the whole bit over a party split.

There were a few other considerations, too, like who was going to replace the hardworking city chairman. John was open to criticism but being lazy wasn't one of them.

Democrats, of course, are a bit let down over the settlement. They have a strong candidate this year in Dr. Gerald Gorman who stood a good chance of making it if the Bell-Savago primary battle had expanded into a major party split. With the tacit unity of the party, it looks like Bell is once again a favorite. Aren't all Republicans running on a county level?

HALLMARKS — Morton Finch, one of the city's fire commissioners, recently returned from the hospital and looks in fine shape. Mort has more than a passing interest in the aldermanic race in his ward this year. His son, Jack, is running on the Democratic ticket against Louis Smith in the new Fifth Ward. Should be a most interesting race as both men are well-known and popular in their ward with Smith having an edge in campaign experience.

Voting Next Week On New Housing Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate and House are expected to vote next week on a $5.4-billion housing bill hailed by one sponsor as the greatest advance against slums in 20 years and by another as "breath-taking in its scope."

In what amounted to a victory for President Johnson, House-Senate conferees agreed late Friday on a compromise version of the measure whose major new feature is government interest subsidies to help low-income families buy homes.

The conferees took just five days to iron out some 150 differences in the versions that passed the separate chambers. The final bill follows closely legislation as recommended by the administration which will carry out the first three years of a 10-year program the President hopes will wipe out slums.

Agreement by the conferees virtually assures passage by the House and Senate.

The provision to assist home buying is aimed at 500,000 families in the $3,000-$6,000 income bracket.

CONTROVERSIAL SIGN — Robie Construction, general contractor at Rondout Gardens and Colonial Gardens, has erected a sign to explain its position in the company's current dispute with Teamsters' Local 445. The sign, erected Thursday afternoon, met with immediate opposition from the Teamsters and the Kingston Housing Authority which is building the two apartment houses. The Authority has ordered the sign removed and the Teamsters have threatened possible court action. (Freeman photo by Kruh).

Ray Tucked Away In Memphis Jail

By BILL OHNSON
Associated Press Writer

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — James Earl Ray, tucked safely behind the most elaborate security screen ever seen here, awaits meeting with his lawyer since being removed from a London jail.

The lawyer, Arthur Hanes of Birmingham, Ala., arrived by plane from New York shortly before midnight Friday, quickly got into a car and drove to a downtown hotel—escorted by six policemen.

Hanes told newsmen here he had talked briefly with Ray shortly before his client was handed over to United States authorities for the Thursday flight to Memphis.

After being searched and passed through cordons of heavily armed, helmeted sheriff's deputies, Hanes presumably was admitted to the third floor cell block where Ray, charged with the April 4 assassination of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., is confined in the Shelby County Jail.

Quarter-inch steel plates cut off light and air from the windows, and the hum of newly installed air conditioners provides a quiet background for the talks.

There is a telephone at hand, and in the corridor there is a sandbag-lined steel box—the receptacle for any bomb or explosive device that might be smuggled past all the guards and security.

Ray, arrested in London June 8, was taken to the jail just before dawn Friday after a secret flight aboard a U.S. Air Force jet from Britain. Hanes, who caught a later flight to the United States, protested the decision that prevented him from accompanying Ray.

No date has been set for an arraignment for Ray, and Hanes is expected to work this out with Judge Preston Battle, who will preside at Ray's trial, and the prosecution. Ray must enter a plea at the arraignment.

It was learned that Judge Battle does not expect to set a trial date at the time of the arraignment, but will give opposing counsel time to determine when they are ready.

Battle has laid down strict ground rules for the trial, sharply limiting news and photo coverage and forbidding all the principals—and even employees of the court from making any comments about the case. A copy of this order had not been served on Hanes when he arrived in New York from London.

Steel Strike Near Reality

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A big sentiment after top union negotiators called for a strike vote, overwhelmingly in favor of a steel strike and with only 11 days left before the nation's 450,000 basic steelworkers are free to walk out bargainers are holding weekend meetings and planning strategy.

Caught by a reporter at the end of a long day Friday, Joseph P. Molony, the United Steelworkers Union vice president, shrugged when asked how the sessions were going.

"I'm so tired that if you asked me what time it was I don't know that I could give you a good answer," Molony said.

Local 1104 at U.S. Steel Corp.'s Lorain, Ohio, works, one of the largest in the union, voted 85 per cent Friday in favor of a strike. It was the first test of

The first public demonstration of the federal government's interest in the status of the bargaining surfaced Friday when the nation's top mediator, William Simkin, flew to Pittsburgh. He met with the nine-man committee that will settle the basic wage-benefits package and said: "Both parties desire very sincerely to reach a mutually satisfactory agreement without a strike and without government intervention. I support that objective. I hope and believe that it can be accomplished."

Simkin, who worked out a four-month contract extension that prevented a strike in 1965, said his visit was not government intervention.

Both union and management, worried about their crucial role in the economy, have repeatedly said they want the government to stay out of this year's negotiations.

Simkin, who had tried to keep his visit secret, returned to Washington and said he had no plans to return to Pittsburgh soon. He refused to give any evaluation of the talks.

Both union and management, worried about their crucial role in the economy, have repeatedly said they want the government to stay out of this year's negotiations.

Simkin, who had tried to keep his visit secret, returned to Washington and said he had no plans to return to Pittsburgh soon. He refused to give any evaluation of the talks.

Novel on '66 Congressional Election In This Area Called "Real Scorcher"

"A real scorcher," Doubleday Publishing Company calls "GRASS ROOTS," a novel by Catskill author, Jane Barry, and just released last week.

Billed as a novel of "outside love and inside politics," Grass Roots is based on the 1966 Congressional election in this district which pitted Alexander Aldrich against Hamilton Fish Jr. in the Primary and Fish against Joseph Y. Resnick in the General Election of that year.

Since Doubleday publicized book before its release as one which "rips the lid off local politics, and shows the intimate inner workings of how campaigns are run," we asked author Barry if there was a villain in the novel. Said Miss Barry, "No, unless perhaps it's politics as such. For individuals I don't think there are good guys or bad guys in politics. There are just a lot of hungry guys. That's not bad, that's just human."

The Inside Scene

She went on to say: "The book deals with how a campaign on the local level is run. How it works. The scene is from the inside where the entire drive is just to win, not what is going to happen after you win.

"In lots of ways a political campaign is like a war. For the people in the campaign, like a soldier in combat, it's all reduced to just zap Charley before Charley zaps you. Everything gets lost in the combat itself. All the ideas and ideals and good and bad are for the non-combatants, the people on the sidelines," she said.

And what of Miss Barry herself, whose political novel deals with that recently remembered and toughly contested political campaign for Congress? She's a Hudson River Valley native, born and raised in Greene County, and Grass Roots is her sixth book. Although she's one of the most successful novelists in our immediate area, she is probably not as well known locally as she should be—a fact that stems from her propensity for shunning publicity and personal appearances.

"I didn't used to mind being on radio and television or talking to groups, but I found I liked it less and less and now

First About Today

First published in 1955, Miss Barry's first two novels, THE LONG MARCH, and THE CAROLINIANS dealt with the American Revolution. Her next three books, TIME IN THE SUN, a Book of the Month selection, SHADOW OF EAGLES and MAXIMILIAN'S GOLD, presently under movie contract, were set in the American South West. Grass Roots is her first contemporary novel.

But she does bring to the subject of her new book a life-long experience in local politics on the grass roots level. Her father, the late Levitt Powell, was supervisor of the Town of New Baltimore, and her earliest memories involve small town politics.

Married to John D. Barry in 1952, she has been immersed in politics ever since her husband, president of John Barry Associates Inc., a public relations firm of Catskill, managed the Hamilton Fish Jr. congressional campaign in 1966. In his business Barry has been running political campaigns for 15 years.

"Ever since I married John our life seems to have been one political campaign after another. In the early days I used to go to a lot of political functions with John. I gave that up when I realized one day that I heard all the political speeches at least 10 years ago," Miss Barry said.

Fought for Fish

Asked if she participated in the Fish campaign to get material for Grass Roots, Miss Barry who worked actively in support of Fish said, "No. I had been thinking of a political novel for years. I jumped into the actual campaign finally because John was so deeply involved, and in the general election against Congressman Resnick we all knew we were going to lose. I couldn't stand to see John get beaten, as he knew he was going to be, without doing all I could to help."

In reading the book, one would have to grant that Miss Barry displays a thorough knowledge of politics from the inside. The novel is fully contemporary in tone and handling and the author calls it "contemporary historical." Only the fact that the hard-fought campaigns upon which the novel is structured occurred in the very recent past separates it from what could be termed traditional historical novel.

Like all historical novels, Grass Roots depends upon actual events to create the novel structure and development. Readers will recognize the fact that the author's close involvement in the 1966 campaign upon which the novel is based gives a vividness and power to the writings, as well as a universal understanding of the people and drives that dominate political campaigns.

Jane Barry's GRASS ROOTS should prove to be of more than passing interest to local readers in this election year of 1968 since two of its main protagonists have been much in the news again of late. If Fish lost to Resnick in 1966, he has proved his durability in his comeback bid for Congress this year. And if Resnick was the winner who took all two years ago, he has now suffered the same type of defeat he bestowed on Fish by being beaten by Paul O'Dwyer, whose followers were once referred to by Resnick as "a few marbles rattling around in the bottom of a tin can and making a lot of noise."

Two Broadway Hits for a Summer's Evening

THE HOMECOMING, Harold Pinter's hit of London and new York will be playing at The Woodstock Playhouse for two more performances, tonight and tomorrow night. THE APPLE TREE, a funny, delightful musical, opens Wednesday, July 24 and runs for two weeks.

The Homecoming is theatre of the new genre, certainly different — certainly shocking — in its conception. Pinter has written a play about the black side of the mind, but he has retained his character's humanity. He has mixed laughter and a macabre kind of lunacy. He shows us forces from the primeval world existent in the present. And then he turns the tables on us, just as surely as his heroine Ruth, the "sacrifice," confounds her new family by suddenly, irrevocably becoming the powerful one in the family circle. The pivotal role of Ruth is performed with cool lucidity by Tanny McDonald. Her husband, who has brought her home to London to meet his family, is played by

The Apple Tree has been called one of the most delightfully, downright funny musicals ever to hit the Broadway stage, where it was the toast of the season. Actually, it is an evening of three one-acts. The first, The Diary of Adam and Eve, is based on a short story by Mark Twain. In it we see a Twain version of the original Garden of Eden with a perplexed Adam and a continually delightful Eve. Tanny McDonald plays Eve, Gene Nye is cast as Adam, and Gary Miller portrays the devilish snake.

The second show of the evening is an uproarious spoof called The Lady and the Tiger, in which we have a heavily feathered and beaded Princess Barbera trying to decide whether it is better to lose her lover to a tiger or to another woman. Miss McDonald is the slightly selfish Princess; her hapless lover, Captain Sanchar, is Gary Miller. The playlet's balladeer is R. Mack Miller, and King Arick is created by Nicco Boccio.

The last of the Apple Tree trio is the one-act written by witty Jules Feiffer, Passionella, a take-off on the old Cinderella story. A poor chimney sweep yearns to be a moo-vie star, "not a well-liked, rich, beautiful, glamorous moo-vie star, just a beautiful, glamorous moo-vie star." And does she get her wish? The marvelous character Passionella is played by triple threat actress-singer-comedienne Tanny McDonald and her Prince Charming, Flip the Rock n'Roll singer, by Gene Nye. The narrator of the show is Michael Bradshaw. For a triple treat sounds like you'd better see the Woodstock Playhouse's fabulous production of The Apple Tree designed by David Segal and directed by Harold Baldrige.

Tickets are available for all performances. For reservations call the box office.

Beal Exhibit Revives Legend: No Flies on Mary's Railings

Now in its third week, the Gifford Beal exhibition at the Storm King Art Center in Cornwall, is attracting many visitors.

The exhibit featuring the works of the late artist who spent a great of his life in Newburgh and the New England region, will continue until August 25.

the Newburgh landing stage during the early part of the century, has attracted considerable attention.

Out of Rondout

The Mary Powell was built in 1861 for the Hudson River Day Line for passenger service only. Her captain was Absalom L. Anderson who sailed his craft between Rondout Creek at Kingston, and New York City.

A popular legend about the fine old riverboat which was named after Mrs. Beal's great-grandmother, was that Capt. Anderson was so proud of his ship that he had the flies whisked from her railings to keep the vessel's weight down for better speed.

This boat was one of the finest, fastest, safest and most popular of the Day Line's ships. She was also considered the most beautiful.

The Mary Powell remained in service for almost 50 years since boat trips up and down the Hudson River, until 1915, was the only way to travel to the vacation areas of the Hudson Valley.

The grounds of the Art Center are an added attraction at the exhibition. Art lovers, students and horticulturists will find the many outdoor works of art interesting. The Center is open daily except Monday, from 2 to 5 p.m. Admission is free.

STEELE IN "TREE"

By TOBIE GEERTSEMA

Everyone has to start somewhere! There on a field outside Woodstock, sitting on blankets or sprawled in the grass all around and behind me, were hundreds of people who had seen it every single time it came to town. The 20-year-old boy in the red poncho next to me had seen it four times. The girl in the long braids and bell-bottom frouzers sitting in front of me had seen it three times. Everyone in all that great outdoors had seen it at least once or twice before. And I hadn't been to a Sound Festival even once. It was like a loss of innocence.

Presuming, just presuming, that there is someone else in the area (and they would have to be over 30) who hasn't seen it, a Sound Festival is something that shouldn't be missed. It's where the action is, it's where it's happening . . . and it's THE SCENE in letters a mile high.

If you want to be erudite about it, it's all part of the almost complete cultural revolution that has had its roots in the younger generation and which has swept across America in the last few years. It's that new trend in contemporary culture known as pop and it can be used to define topics and embrace emotions of almost every conceivable type. While it has rocked the world of art, drama, literature and lately, student endeavor and politics, its major influence has been on music — and even the so-called "serious music" has been made to sit up and take notice, and sometimes assimilate.

Flower-Casual

If you want to be more descriptive about it, Sound Festival (at least the Woodstock version) is an artistic contribution to the senses. The visual scene alone is worth the price of admission. The audience comes from all points north, east, south and west, and those who come do so to be involved as much as to listen. In attire that runs the gamut from Far East exotic and flower-casual to Bermuda shorts now considered square and mini-skirts no longer daring, they combine digging the music with sunbathing during the afternoon sessions, and take their blues and acid rock and folk around sizzling campfires at night.

Sound Festival is attempting to organize today's music and to present it for all it's worth. And even those who attend with reservations because of the generation gap (as we did) find themselves coming away with more understanding of pop and its influence on this country; and of youth and its aspirations.

We missed the first Sound Festival last Labor Day and the second last spring. And we missed the third over the Fourth of July weekend but that was the one in which Tim Hardin, Major Wylie, the Blues Magoos, Chrystalis, Happy and Artie Traum and a host of other contemporary music artists jazzed, jammed and rocked it up in a field on Pan Copeland's farm between Woodstock and Saugerties on Glasco Turnpike in High Woods. That was the one that attracted hundreds of scene makers from everywhere to pick up on how the music sounded out of the discotheques and in the open, free-of-four-walls confinement of the Catskills. That was the one where the old, familiar smell of woodsmoke from campfires mingled with the modern dazzle of a light show.

That was the one that was so successful, it sent out signals that another Sound Festival was called for as soon as possible.

There's Communication

Well, it's here and it arrived without any vintage labels attached. And it's interesting in its every aspect from the enthusiasm of the performers to the communication between them and the audience. As one who has rarely missed a Newport Jazz Festival is on its way and moving up. Lately, Newport has become totally commercial; has lost its sense of being different. Sound Festival seems to have the charisma Newport now lacks.

Last night we plugged in and tuned on the latest and current festival for size and it was a great way to spend an evening. The musicians who put in appearances were worth the attention of anyone who has ever wondered where music is going. Among them were the remarkable Cat Mother and the All Night Newsboys, Jerry Jeff Walker, Sweet Honey, Billy Batson, Scott Fagin, Major Wylie, Kathy Powers, Happy and Artie Traum, and Lothar and the Hand People . . . and there were others, too.

They'll all be back again today and tonight, beginning at 3 p. m. and infiltrating the mountain air until midnight. There's a light show by Pablo for a sunburst background and Bob Fass of WBAI and Kip Carson of WKIP share the MC honors, and food abounds right on the grounds at a spot called Putt's Place.

If you drive down Route 212 from Woodstock, follow the signs and fall by, you may find — as we did — that Sound Festival is informal and relaxed. And you may find that there is no truth in the legend that a magic moat separates popular and serious cultures. Somehow we got the impression that even Bach, who was a bit of a transcriber himself, would have approved of the fresh instrumentation we heard last night.

MAJOR WYLIE, who appeared at Woodstock's first sound Festival over the Fourth of July weekend, is back for the second such happening, the finale of which takes to the great outdoors tonight.

CHRYSLIS, a fairly recent rock group on the American scene, is due for stardom and all its trappings in the not too-distant future, insist the multitude of fans this youthfully talented group of musicians has attracted in several appearances in this area.

CRAFTS

With crafts—the old crafts that found their beginnings in handworked clay, fiber and metal—making a big comeback this year, more than a few local residents will probably be attending the 15th Annual York State Craft Fair. The fair will hold forth in the Terrace Dining Hall on the Ithaca College campus from Monday, Aug. 5 through Saturday, Aug. 10. It'll be open from 1 to 10 p. m. Monday through Friday and from 10 a. m. to 4 p. m. on Saturday.

This year's featured craftsman is the distinguished jeweler Jean Delius of Buffalo. Her imaginative designs, combining enamels with gold or silver, as well as her consummate skill in handling technical difficulties, has gained her a notable reputation that vies with her fame as a teacher.

In addition, seminars in clay, fiber and metal will be offered each morning at 9:15 to 12 noon, as follows: Metal, Aug. 7, Fiber, Aug. 8, and Clay, Aug. 9. These seminars may be signed up for either in advance or on the mornings slated. The mornings of Aug. 5, 6 and 10 will offer demonstrations in Joinery Craft-In, a new feature of the fair this year. Distinguished craftsmen from Ohio, New York, New Hampshire and Massachusetts will participate in the seminars and demonstrations or serve as moderators.

Another activity will be

Constructions for Youngsters, entering its second year and providing a supervised area for both play activity and a means of expression. Children have been so enthusiastic about this feature that the excitement of their spontaneous constructions have made it a permanent part of the fair, and all children over five years are invited daily from 1 to 4 p. m.

Continuing demonstrations at the fair will include pottery, weaving, printing, enameling and glass blowing, as well as metal casting.

Over There Posters

An exhibition of "Posters and Sheet Music" from the period of World War II (1914-1918) will go on display at Museum Village of Smith's Clove, on Sunday, July 21.

The posters reflect the patriotic fervor of the times and the music is concerned with variations on the theme of "Mother," "Over There," "Roses," "The Girl I Left Behind Me," and others.

Included in the exhibition at the Monroe Museum will be military equipment and dress reflecting the war. The exhibition will end on Aug. 18.

Television

On the eve of her 17th year in TV, Lucille Ball is making a brand new start. Her upcoming "Here's Lucy," which debuts this fall on CBS, gives her the distinction of launching and starring in three prime network comedy series. Also new will be the fact that she'll be making her own children a part of her professional life. Via a new format, Lucie Arnaz and Desi Arnaz Jr., were written into the series. Seems the kids have always been interested in show business and Lucy feels the hard work involved in a full-time TV career, in addition to keeping up with schoolwork, will keep them on the straight and narrow.

Another fall show that may possibly have the making of a hit is "The Ugliest Girl in Town." It'll be fun, gags and quips and, for a switch, the "ugliest girl" will be played by young Canadian actor Peter Kastner. The series will run Thursday nights over ABC and revolves around the swinging adventures of a kookie young Hollywood junior talent agent and his equally kookie English girlfriend. Insiders say the idea came from Twiggy's life story. Since she looks more like the boy next door than the girl next door, author Robert Kaufman dreamed up a script about a Twiggy in reverse — a thin, 17-year-old boy who is mistaken for a girl model and let loose in the fantastic shirl of the contemporary London mod scene.

Olympics Again

Been wondering when the Summer Olympics will be televised what with all those advance advertising commercials? ABC's tentative schedule calls for a one-hour special on Sunday, Oct. 6. Opening ceremonies will be aired Oct. 12 and closing ceremonies will be live and in color Sunday, Oct. 27.

There's talk in TV circles of resurrecting the classic "Abie's Irish Rose" for a series and, if it happens, it'll be because of two witty people named Jerry Stiller and Anne Meara. You've probably seen Jerry (a Jewish boy) and Anne (his Brooklyn wife with the "map of Ireland" on her face) on the Ed Sullivan show. They've done more than 30 of their ethnic comedy routines on that Sunday night program in the past few years. Incidentally, Anne was once an apprentice at the Woodstock Playhouse.

REFLECTIONS: TV has to be given credit for trying to promote understanding between the races, with series like ABC's Time for Americans and CBS's Of Black America. Nevertheless, the media's major job must be to get those who need to be taught compassion and understanding to watch. Most viewers, it seems to us, are usually concerned people who already care . . . Without the British Isles, TV wouldn't be half as interesting since Patrick McGoochan is one of the smoothest actors around, Roger Moore one of the best looking, and Patrick Macnee one of the suave.

Since it's cooler inside than out these humid nights — and since the mosquitoes around our house refuse to allow us in the backyard anyway — we've been watching a lot of night-time TV of late. Among the shows that intrigued us last week was Channel 17's "Conversation with Muhammed Ali" in which former champ Cassius Clay told how he feels about being stripped of his title, what it means to be a Black Muslim, and how he feels about George Wallace and other members of the white race.

Watching the Miss Universe Beauty Pageant with 63 — count 'em — 63 beautiful girls from different countries, brought home the fact that, statistically, the girls are getting bigger in each successive show from a tape measure standpoint. There were actually some size 16's on parade.

Real Shockers

What made "Prejudice and the Police" on Time For Americans well worth the viewing were those nose-to-nose confrontations between minority community leaders and the cops. All of them were real shockers as were the aftermaths.

You didn't miss anything if you didn't catch "A Walk in the Night" on Premiere — all about a Swedish seaman who jumps ship in Chicago, of all places, to try to find his wife. On the other hand, "Justice and the Poor" over Channel 17 did an excellent job of pinpointing legal inequities at all levels.

Funniest bit of the week, far as we're concerned, was Paul Lynde as a nervous flagpole sitter who's stunned to find a lady reporter shinnying up the pole for an interview on Thursday's "Dean Martin Presents the Goldiggers" show.

WIDE WORLD OF SPORTS (ABC, 5 p. m.). Featuring the World Figure "8" Stock Car Championships from Islip, L.I., and the World Lumberjack Championships from Hayward, Wis.

THE PRISONER (CBS, 7:30 p. m.). A highly provocative episode in which the Village where he is held captive turns into a ghost town enabling Pat McGoochan to escape via a scary sea route.

Sunday, July 21

PUBLIC HEARING (CBS, 11:30 a. m.). "Humphrey vs. McCarthy" is the topic debated by a Humphrey assistant and CAMERAS OF NET'S Washington affiliate station were on hand to record a memorial program for Carl Sandburg held on the steps of the Lincoln Memorial last September. Footage of this event will be included when NET FESTIVAL presents its tribute to the late poet next Wednesday at 9 p. m. on Channel 17.

a McCarthy delegate — at — large in the N. Y. State delegation to the Dem National Convention.

ANIMAL KINGDOM (NBC, 6:30 p. m.). Focus is on the Florida Everglades with its variety of snakes, turtles, rare birds and rarer insects, plus the stars of the show — the vanishing alligators now threatened by extinction.

DR. JEKYLL AND MR. HYDE (ABC, 9 p. m.). A repeat but an excellent one of this classic warhorse, with Jack Palance playing the dual personality with restraint and a minimum of makeup.

Of Zithers and Roller Organs

"Dimensions of American Music" is the title of the unique exhibit of old musical instruments that is now being displayed on the mezzanine of the Hall of Springs on the Saratoga Spa grounds.

Created and installed by the New York State Museum and Science Service, the exhibit has been loaned to the Saratoga Performing Arts Center by Clifford C. Allanson, executive director of the New York State Council of Retail Merchants, Inc., and noted collector of musical Americana.

Brass horns, zithers, roller organs, and a variety of other instruments of historical interest will be on display in the Hall of Springs evenings from 5:30 p. m. through the first intermission throughout the Saratoga Performing Arts Center's 1968 summer festival, which formally opened on July 4.

The exhibit is the third in an annual series inaugurated simultaneously with the opening of the Performing Arts Center in 1966. Last summer, ballet costumes of Barbara Karinska and ballet photographs of Martha Swope were featured, and the previous year, the exhibit was devoted to memorabilia of old Saratoga and her racing community.

Allanson, who has played a number of instruments for many years and now plays the trombone in the Delmar Community Orchestra, began his rare collection years ago when living in Ithaca. He and his wife built a country house of logs for an escape place in a wooded area on their property. When looking for primitives to decorate the country house, Allanson found a couple of zithers which he intended to use for decoration. But, as he explains, "The zithers were too interesting to hang on the wall," so they were repaired and played, and never were used for mere decoration.

The Allanson collection now contains about 800 items, and Clifford Allanson can speak with authority about each of them.

Steuben Day

Steuben Day, originally scheduled for early June at the New Windsor Cantonment but rained out, will be celebrated Sunday, Aug. 4, at the "living" museum, which is in its fourth season. The day will honor the memory of the great German soldier who came to America in the dark days of Valley Forge and infused new skill and determination in Washington's army.

The original program, featuring members of the Westchester Militia in field exercises at 2 p. m., will be maintained. One of these will be a re-enactment of General Friedrich Wilhelm von Steuben's first efforts in drilling rag-tag colonial troops. Heinrich Schreiber, the Cantonment's farrier, will portray Steuben.

On Sunday, July 21, the Cantonment at nearby Vails Gate will feature General Knox Day, with talks on artillery. On July 28, Training Day, the New York Line will be featured in military exercises.

Suddenly Faier Is Everywhere

Billy Faier, who hails from Woodstock and has soared to the top in musical circles, will appear in concert — playing banjo and singing his own all new songs—Tuesday, July 23 at the Woodstock Playhouse. The popular Faier has played the Playhouse almost every summer for the past decade and audiences there have come to know him as an old friend, talented musician and versatile performer.

Faier's material Tuesday will be brand new and all original compositions and the Woodstock musician says it will be his first performance of a spanking new sound for banjo—a sound he describes as "very flowing, of Eastern influence and highly improvisational."

Faier, as most of his fans know, has played Broadway, had his own radio program over a New York City station, made a galaxy of records, and given concerts in famous folk houses all over the U.S.

The artist as opposed to musician side of Faier shows up currently in his show of light-boxes at Woodstock's Polari Gallery. The show which opened last Sunday and runs through July 23 highlights Faier's talent in an exciting new art form. Public response to his striking light-boxes (not to be confused with light shows) has been enthusiastic. For Faier, who has been working in this media for the past year, the boxes represent "a work of art illuminated from within."

As a producing artist concerned with self expression in many forms, Faier has virtually taken over the art colony this week. He'll be on double view at the Playhouse and the Polari and the public is the winner in being afforded an opportunity to see the two sides of Billy Faier. So drop into Polari and see the light-box show and reserve your tickets for the July 23 concert through the Playhouse box office.

Anne Bancroft For Berkshire

Anne Bancroft will star in the Berkshire Theatre Festival's second 1968 production, William Gibson's "A Cry of Players" opening Wednesday, July 24 at nearby Stockbridge, Mass. Miss Bancroft continues her association with Mr. Gibson which began when she starred in "Two for the Seesaw" and "The Miracle Worker."

"A Cry of Players" follows Elaine May's "A Matter of Position" which completes its three week run tonight.

Gene Frankel, who directed "The Blacks" off-Broadway and Samuel Beckett's "Waiting for Godot" in the Festival's inaugural season, directs "A Cry of Players," which also stars Frank Langella.

Langella, who received an Obie for his performance in Robert Lowell's "The Old Glory" returns to the Berkshire Theatre where he was seen in

Boerick Returns

William Boerick, who first appeared on the Berkshire Playhouse stage with Ethel Barrymore in "Declassee" is featured in "A Cry of Players." His more recent credits include Max in the National Company of Harold Pinter's "The Homecoming" and DeSade in the National Repertory Theatre's production of "Marat/Sade."

Music for "A Cry of Players" has been composed by Richard Peaslee who wrote the music for Peter Brook's original production of "Marat/Sade." Settings are being designed by David Mitchell and lighting is by the Festival's resident lighting designer Michael Davidson. Costumes are by Patricia Quinn Stuart.

Mail orders are being accepted now for "A Cry of Players" at the Berkshire Theatre Festival, Stockbridge, Massachusetts.

How to Rent an Opera Company

The cost of buying an opera company is beyond most people's reach. The cost of renting one, however, is within reason thanks to the New York State Council on the Arts Touring Program.

The program, now in its eighth year, provides financial assistance to non-profit community groups and institutions to help defray the cost of performers' fees. The program thus helps professional performing arts groups to reach communities throughout the state which, without state aid, could ill afford them; it consequently supports the artists themselves by giving them increased opportunities to perform and to earn a salary commensurate with their talents and training. To stimulate community participation, funds are directed to local sponsors (PTA's, colleges, service organizations) who make all arrangements including ticket sales, booking of theatres, and local publicity.

Information concerning attractions is contained in the Council's Touring Program brochure, now available from the Council's offices at 250 West 57th Street, New York City 10019. Included in the booklet is an application blank for council support.

This year's brochure contains a listing of 89 symphony and other musical groups, 52 dance groups, and 18 opera attractions. For the first time, provision for Council support of solo recitalists has been made. This season the Touring Program assisted in the presentation of over 340 concert, dance, theatre and opera performances in 190 communities throughout the state.

Now, at KINGSTON SAVINGS BANK you can choose the Savings Plan you like best—and still get high SAVINGS BANK interest-dividends.

5% a year on REGULAR SAVINGS ACCOUNTS — latest interest-dividend, compounded quarterly, paid from day of deposit.

DAY OF DEPOSIT TO DAY OF WITHDRAWAL ACCOUNTS will earn one-quarter percent per annum less than regular savings accounts, as prescribed by N. Y. State Banking Law. Interest-dividends credited for whatever number of days your money is on deposit provided a balance of at least $10.00 remains in the account at the end of the quarterly dividend period. This account is advantageous for people who make frequent deposits and withdrawals.

5% a year guaranteed interest compounded semi-annually on TIME DEPOSIT ACCOUNTS, if held to maturity.

Available anytime in amounts from $1,000, maturity on any day you select from 6 months to 2 years. You may however, withdraw part or all of your money at any time after 30 days at a reduced rate in accordance with regulations of the N. Y. State Banking Department.

Salty Art

The salty seaport village of Mystic, Conn., will again be the setting for the Annual Mystic Outdoor Art Festival, a yearly event returning for the 11th time and slated on Aug. 10 and 11. Mystic will literally be taken over by some 300 entrants who will set-up "Portable Art Galleries" along the narrow streets and picturesque riverbanks, as professional and amateur artists come from all over the U.S. to present a colorful two-mile panorama of art. The festival has three simple rules for exhibiting: the work must be original, it must have been executed by the exhibitor, and the exhibitor must assume full responsibility for his equipment and work. Entry applications may be obtained from the Festival at its Mystic address and a nominal registration fee is the only financial obligation of the artist. Some 50,000 tourists and local residents are expected to spend the two days browsing, "people-watching," bargaining, and buying from the vast variety of art work available.

Focus on New Trends

RAVI SHANKER

Global Flavor

"Wide World" is the theme of the current exhibition at the Woodstock Artists Association Gallery on Tinker Street, Woodstock. The show is the fourth of the current season and must be tabbed one of the most colorful. An international flavor is conveyed by the paintings whose motifs were inspired by the experiences of the artists while traveling both in this country and abroad.

A jury consisting of Harold Baumbach, Sam Prager, and Maurice Sievan made the final selection from the many works submitted. While landscape predominates in subject matter, there are many works depicting figures characteristic of various foreign locales. The Mediterranean area and Latin America are the most frequently portrayed regions. The show runs through July 24.

Primordial Jazz Blast

AN ENGLISH MAGAZINE rates Roswell Rudd as "the world's number ONE trombonist," and he'll attempt to prove just that when he brings his Primordial Jazz Octet to the stage of the Woodstock Playhouse for a late show session at 11 o'clock tonight. Veteran of Manhattan's Survival Music series, Rudd's big band features two saxes, a clarinet, vocalist Susan Elrauch, two bass fiddles, drums, and Rudd alternating on trombone, French horn and piano. Reminiscent of Duke Ellington's old band trombone-soundwise, the Rudd Octet also takes off on wild atonal patterns, astonishing staccato runs and off-note melodies. Tonight's show should be jazz at its best what with Rudd's record of winning the title of Best Jazz Arranger of 1966 and a Downbeat Jazz Poll earlier

Tanglewood, in nearby Lenox, Mass., has long been a musical mecca for those who appreciate the symphony orchestra. And Saratoga Springs, just a stone's throw from Albany, is one of those quiet upstate college towns for most of the year that comes excitingly alive during the summer as an arts center for performances of every type.

Ulster residents are fortunate in having both these festival breeding grounds so close to home. Thousands of people drive hundreds of miles to enjoy the riches offered at Tanglewood and Saratoga, while those of us who live here in the Mid-Hudson Valley are able to do so in our own leisurely fashion.

And, from Tanglewood this week, via a press party tossed by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, came news that was startlingly new. Tanglewood, steeped in the traditions of the classics, said orchestra spokesmen, is definitely "getting with it." Interspersed with all the Brahms and Bach this season will be "Contemporary-Trends" Concerts. Sponsored by the Berkshire Music Center, the "new" concerts will feature jazz and folk, music from India, and rock.

Keeping Pace

Tanglewood, which has towered over the music scene for many years, has apparently remained modern enough to see the direction in which concert performances have been developing in recent years and has recognized the fact that the young people who study there have grown up with popular music in all its guises. Bowing to progress, the musical center will strive to present pop music and so-called serious music in amiable co-existence.

It is also significant that the Berkshire Music Center is showing its awareness of these new musical developments not only by instituting the concerts, but by keeping the participants in residence for varying periods to work with students.

The first concert came off successfully July 17 when a jazz/folk evening presented Judy Collins, The Modern Jazz Quartet and Don Ellis and Orchestra. Two more are planned this month: Music from India with Ravi Shankar and Ali Akbar Khan on July 24, and The Association in a rock show on July 31. Both will be at 8 p. m. in the Shed at Tanglewood.

Looking to the future, too, and realizing that in the recent past serious and pop music have influenced one another in remarkable and unexpected ways, is the Saratoga Performing Arts Center. To broaden the public's vision of art and recall the days when Saratoga was the exciting and glamorous "Queen of American Spas," SPAC also combines the classics (ballet and symphonies) with the new (movies and electric guitars).

In Third Week

The New York City Ballet has just entered its third week at SPAC with premieres of two ballets: "Slaughter on Tenth Avenue," and "Meditation." "Slaughter" is George Balanchine's new ballet and, on the same program, the troupe features "Divertimento No. 15" and "La Valse," featuring Patricia McBride. The triple bill can be seen tonight at 8:30 p. m. and tomorrow's matinee, at 3:30 offers "Serenade," with Melissa Hayden; "Allegro Brilllante," with Miss McBride and Anthony Blum; "Meditation," with Suzanne Farrell and Jacques d'Amboise, and "Ballet Imperial," with Violette Verdy. Other events slated at SPAC this week include:

Sunday, July 21, 8:30 p. m.—Congress of Strings concert at the amphitheater, a free program featuring a 60-member orchestra of young string players with Richard Burgin conducting.

The Spa Summer Theatre Film Festival, tonight at 7:30 and 9 p. m. has Katharine Hepburn in her film debut, "A Bill of Divorcement," with John Barrymore. The week of July 21 to July 27 will be devoted to three of the best of the films of Humphrey Bogart, one of the all-time great screen personalities. The films are "The Treasure of the Sierra Madre," playing from July 21 to 23, "The Petrified Forest" playing on July 24 and 25, and "The Maltese Falcon" on July 26 and 27.

PATRICIA McBRIDE and CONRAD LUDLOW

Courbette, Croupade, Capriole

One of the world's rarest and most exciting displays, the leaping Lippizan stallions will be at the 128th Orange County Fair on Friday, August 2. The program will take place in the Fair Stadium, Middletown, at 2 p. m.

Prof. Ottomar Herrmann, who brought the animals from Austria, will put on the display with his family.

The Royal Lippizans, also known as Lippizanners, perform their famous "airs above the ground," the courbette, croupade and capriole, in which the great horses seem to hang suspended in the air, thus giving the display its name.

One of the most amazing feats is the series of three caprioles when the horse leaps three times in the air, stretching its legs each time in a great arc.

Flying Falcon

"Flying Falcon," ridden by Harry Herrmann, is the world's only horse to jump a bar while standing on his hind legs like a man.

One other horse has done this, one trained 50 years ago by the professor's father.

When asked how he trained the animal, the professor changes the subject, but whatever the secret it means kindness.

"I hate the whip," the professor says. "Speak to him kind and be with patience."

Solely for Beauty

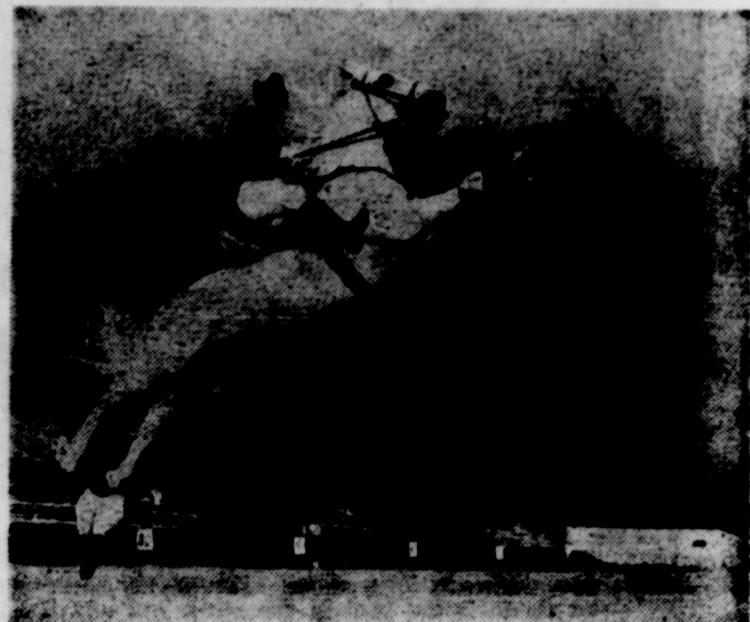

The horses were originally taught these maneuvers for use in battle by Austrian nobility, but now they are done solely for beauty.

Only a few hundred of the breed are alive at a time and only a handful can make the great leaps.

The whole breed was threatened with extinction at the end of World War II when the Russians overran Austria. Herrmann was one of those who smuggled the horses away to the protection of Gen. George Patton and the American Army.

MOVIES

THOROUGHLY MODERN MILLIE. Anyone who has ever heard of Ross Hunter (a fairly big name as movie producers go) knows full well that he generally dresses up his films (Magnificent Obsession and Madame X among others) for the suburbanite who likes to see a pretty girl in a fine pickle wearing reams of fancy frocks. In Thoroughly Modern Millie, he fits Julie Andrews into some flapperish fantasies by designer Jean Louis to continue the trend. And if this is not the greatest musical ever produced, it is one that will be happily remembered for better reasons than its jazz age styles.

The image that lingers for this reviewer is Beatrice Lillie as a white-slave trader operating the Priscilla Hotel for Single Young Ladies. Pushing a creaky wicker laundry cart through the corridors, the inimitable comedienne collects the flibbertigibbet guests (Julie Andrews, Carol Channing and Mary Tyler Moore for starters) she has plied with chloroform, poisoned apples or spiked party punch and packs the poor things off to a Fate Worse Than Death.

Channing's entertaining, Moore gets plenty of opportunity to show her hoofing expertise in the picture, and comic relief is also generously displayed by Andrews, freed from the presweetened roles that have shot her to movie stardom without utilizing much of her obviously mischievous talent. A perfect Roaring Twenties flapper, Julie is the bee's knees as a light comedienne, heedlessly swan diving into every pitfall prepared for the heroine of this nitwit adventure yarn. Millie's a romp and it's now playing at Kingston's Community Theatre.

ROSEMARY'S BABY. Satan is alive and whooping it up on Central Park West in Manhattan. And the millions of readers of Ira Levin's best-selling chiller from which this movie was made should enjoy Old Nick on film as much as they did in the novel. Two reasons would be the excellent job of directing by Roman Polanski (the Pole who gave us Knife in the Water) and the superb acting ability of Mia Farrow.

Mia, as Rosemary Woodhouse, and her husband Guy (John Cassavetes) move delightedly into an apartment in a drafty old fortress of an apartment house in New York called the Branford. They're sure life there will be magical, but a faithful author friend (Maurice Evans) thinks it might be black magical inasmuch as the Branford has an unsavory history of suicides and diabolical happenings, including the near murder by a mob of a notorious Satanist.

Life at the Branford is fine at first. There's a funny old couple next door (Sidney Blackmer and Ruth Gordon) and a girl Rosemary's age. But then the girl commits suicide by jumping out a window. Still, the funny old couple is as darling as ever and Rosemary's hubby's acting career is booming—and so they plan to have a baby.

Even those who read the book and know how Baby comes out will get the eerie feeling when Rosemary passes out from too many martinis and too much chocolate mousse and has an all too real nightmare. And in what become the most unpleasant pregnancy in fiction, Rosemary grows more emaciated the more the funny old couple offer tonics and advice.

The old black magic that jinxed Rosemary and her baby makes for a bewitching film, full of suspense, and it's superb viewing as it continues into its second week at the Mayfair Theatre here.

THE GREEN BERETS, the movie they are holding over at the 9-W Drive-In for a second week, is virtually without precedent in this age of "new" cinema. Two qualities give it a special distinction. The first is that John Wayne should have stuck with stagecoach westerns and with the Marines on Iwo Jima instead of branching out as an authority on Vietnam. The other is that the content of this film is totally unbelievable in view of what the press and TV tell us about this war, which holds the distinction of being the longest conflict in which America has ever been involved.

Instead of leading his Berets into action in documentary style, quasi documentary style, or simply as an observer judging neither side, Wayne chooses to fictionalize a war that has become more real through television than any other in history . . . and to play the hawk to the hilt.

He preaches the righteousness of the U. S. cause from his own messianic conversion and does so with such a lack of common sense dedication that the nice - guys are always us; the bad guys those caviar devouring, champagne swilling V. C. Director and star Wayne is simple, honest and courageous; the American press (personified by David Janssen) is a bleeding dove; bullets fly as they do in standard cowboy flicks, and all Vietnamese talk like Indians in war-paint readying a massacre on a covered wagon train.

When Wayne tells a Vietnamese orphan at fade - out that he'll do all his worrying for him since the timorous tyke is "what this war's all about," most viewers will wonder dubiously why, if that's the case, American foreign policy is on the griddle, bestiality is in the headlines, the impact of bullets and Napalm on bodies is shown in the color pages of every magazine, and comprehension of this gory, glory-

JOHN WAYNE talks things over with Edward Faulkner, Jason Evers and George Takei after a Vietnam skirmish in "The Green Berets," war adventure film which has been held over and is now in its second week at the 9-W Drive-In here.

hallelujah war is so impossible for so many.

Still, "The Green Berets" is probably the most hopeful picture on display currently. Looking into his crystal ball, Wayne ends his film with the V.C. in full retreat and us in control.

THE SCALPHUNTERS. By contrast, this film — which takes second billing to "The Green Berets" at the 9-W Drive-In — is one of the cleverest sleepers of the year. It's an amusing western with a racial equality twist and it's got everything — an avalanche, a locoweed stampede, Shelley Winters chewing on cigars, an educated horse named Agnes who sits up like a human to talk with Burt Lancaster, and that most beguilingly guileful actor, Ossie Davis.

Davis plays a runaway slave with finely flaired fettle. Captured by Indians, foisted on fur trader Lancaster, and captured yet again by bounty hunters (headed by Miss Winters), Davis romps through his role with relish. So does Telly Savalas as the villain of the piece.

In BANDOLERO and in TONY ROME, the two films now playing at the Sunset Drive-In, celluloid through the windshield watchers will see post-Civil War veterans off to the West in search of excitement, and Miami through the wry view of Frank Sinatra who plays a roughed - up and reluctant private eye.

Bandolero has James Stewart and Dean Martin as brothers who fought on opposing sides in the war. Now that it's over, Dino has turned head of a small band of outlaws and bank robbers. Most of the plot concerns his ravaging of the countryside, capture by the sheriff (George Kennedy), rescue by brother Slim Jim Stewart, and the inevitable escape and trackdown. There's lootin' and killin' all the way to Mexico, but there's also sultry Raquel Welch for the old fallin' in love with Dino bit.

Sinatra is Tony Rome, an ex-cop (not exactly by choice) who services (not exactly by choice) a demanding and dangerous clientele. Through Miami's high spots and low spots, he keeps his wit and wits in spite of all obstacles and calls his broads (including Jill St. John, Gena Rowlands and Sue Lyon) the way he sees 'em. Art in the Park

The second annual "Art in the Courthouse Park" will be held in Monticello on Saturday, Aug. 10, from 10 a. m. until dark. Sponsored by Catskills Resort Association, Inc., the art show received broad acclaim last year and artists from various communities in three counties participated.

This year there will be three classifications; novice, apprentice and professional, with four classifications of art including scenic, portrait, still life and abstract. The 1968 edition will see cash prizes as well as ribbons awarded to winners and artists may offer their works for sale if they so desire.

All artists interested in exhibiting should contact Mrs. Max H. Rhulen of Monticello, or Mrs. Burton Levinson of Liberty.

JULIE ANDREWS' DREAM of turning herself into a 1920s-style flapper comes true in this scene from the hilarious romantic comedy with music, "Thoroughly Modern Millie." John Gavin is the gent in the straw hat and the jazz age film is currently on-screen at Kingston's Community Theatre.

"YOUR SHIELD OF SECURITY"

A River Troubadour Begins Hudson Trek

A contemporary troubadour will carry current news and historical lore the length of the Hudson River this month and next. The objectives of his wanderings, according to the New York State Council on the Arts, sponsor of the program, are "to make a human connection between the over-all community of the Hudson corridor. At the same time the project is an attempt to relate the arts directly and immediately to what is happening now in each of the river communities."

Don McLean, a 22-year-old singer and song writer, will be the Hudson River Troubadour. He began his trek Monday from the top of Mt. Marcy in the Adirondacks, the highest point in New York State and the source of the Hudson River. He will travel from town to town and sing where people are gathered.

Prior to starting his trip, McLean had been intensively reviewing and gathering historical lore pertinent to the area.

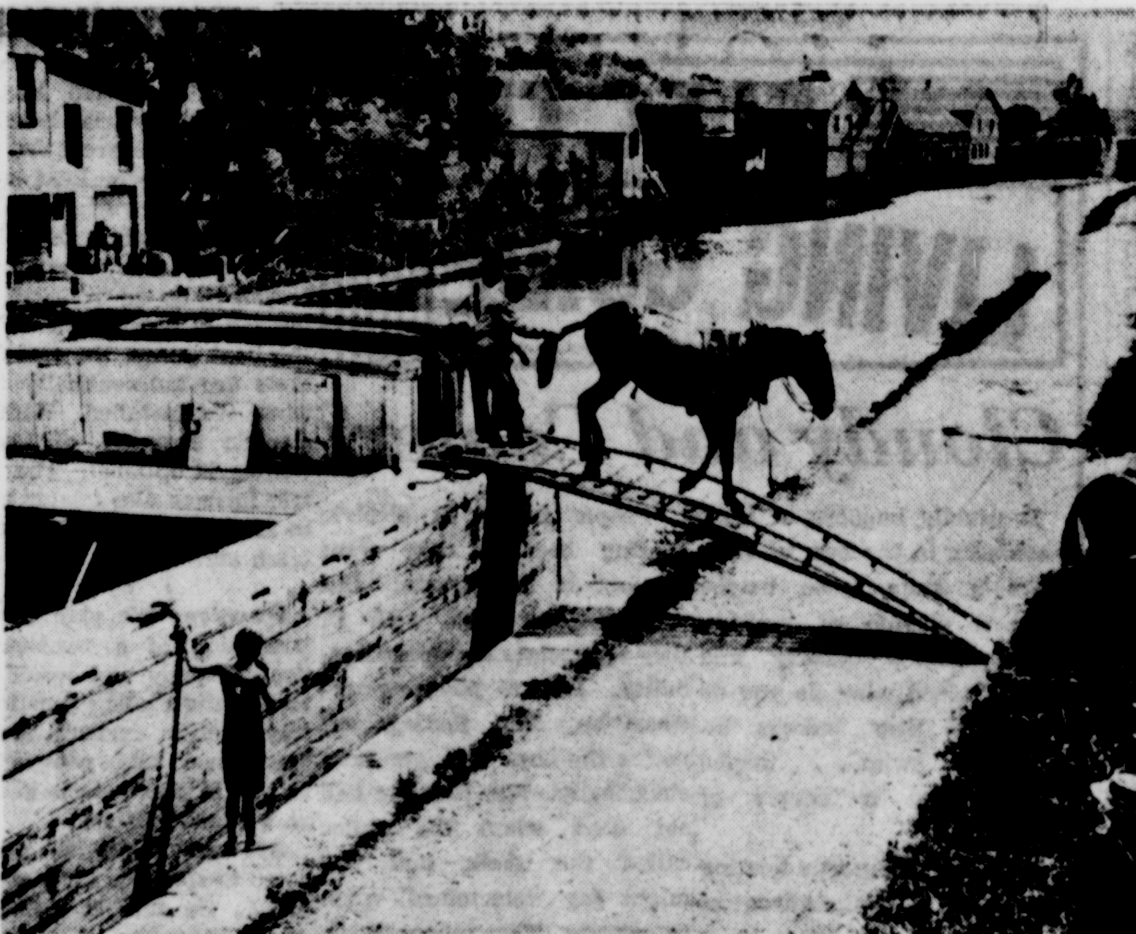

Among historians and collectors whose material he has studied are Carl Carmer, author of "Rivers of America—The Hudson;" Norman Studer, director of the Downtown Community School, who is one of the outstanding collectors of stories of the Catskills; Frank Warner, noted collector of New-York folklore and Peter Seeger, musicologist and folklorist. He is also making use of the extensive archives of the New York State Historical Association in Cooperstown.

As It Was

Kenneth Dewey, Applied Arts Director of the New York State Council on the Arts and well-known for his pioneering work in inter-media arts, originated the program. "Don will do now, using contemporary and historical material, what a troubadour did in the past," he explained. "Although the content of his songs will be up to the minute, the form is classical."

Last summer the New York State Council on the Arts sponsored "Erie Canal: 1817-1967," a multi-media exhibit carried on a barge, "The Erie Maid." This exhibit traveled the length of the Erie and Champlain Canals, stopping at 30 towns and was visited by a total of 138,250 people, establishing a common bond among those who live along the New York canals. The Hudson River Troubadour project is expected to accomplish the same sense of identification along the Hudson River. In addition, the troubadour will be the medium for an exchange of ideas and feelings among the peoples of the Hudson.

LAST SUMMER the New York State Council on the Arts gave Empire State residents an opportunity to renew their ties with the past through traveling exhibit on barge which featured prints of photographs like this one, taken when the Erie Canal was in its heyday. Floating show was seen by more than 138,000 people and hopes are high that even more New Yorkers will be hearing Don McLean, the Hudson River Troubadour, this summer's special project by the Council.

Twilight Concert

Ulster County Community College, as a community service, will present a Twilight Summer Concert by the Hudson Valley Chamber Players, conducted by Claude Monteux, at 7:30 p.m. Friday, July 26, at the college's Stone Ridge campus.

Admission will be free for the concert which will be held on the Macdonald DeWitt Library Court on the Stone Ridge campus.

"We are pleased to present this concert as a cultural event for our summer session students and for members of the community," college president George Erbstein said.

The Chamber Players, conducted by Monteux, consists of 12 strings: seven violins, two violas, two cellos and a double bass.

The program will consist of Purcell's Three Pieces for String Orchestra, a Sinfonia by C. P. E. Bach, a contemporary work by Britten, the Simple Symphony; Mozart's Eine Kleine Nachtmusik, and J. S. Bach's Planaise and Badinerie from Suite in B Minor. Conductor Monteux will play the flute solo in the latter piece.

Monteux, son of the world renowned French conductor Pierre Monteux, was born in Brookline, Mass., in 1920. His early years were devoted to the study of the flute, which he plays superbly both as a soloist and in chamber music.

As a recital flutist, he has appeared in all the major cities of Europe. He has given a command performance at the White House and performed under the batons of Toscanini, Mitropoulos, Walters and with Casals in Puerto Rico and his father, Pierre Monteux.

Before becoming the permanent conductor and musical director of the Hudson Valley Philharmonic Society, Monteux was conductor of the Columbus, Ohio, Symphony. He has guest-conducted in Berlin and Brussels and has performed in his unique dual capacity as solo flutist and conductor with the London Symphony Orchestra.

Trio to Solo

Willard McNary will direct Brahms' Nanie and Schubert's Mass in G at the second Choral Music Reading Concert, sponsored by the State University at New Paltz and the Mid-Hudson Camerata Chorale, at the McKenna Theatre on the New Paltz campus, July 23, at 8 p.m.

The concert is open to the public; there will be registration for all interested singers at 7:30 p.m., and there is no charge for either singers or audience.

The accompanist will be Kevin Walters, and soloists will be Betty White, soprano; Antone Aquino, tenor; and Curtie White, bass.

McNary received his B. S. from the State University at Postdam and his M. S. from Albany. He has taught in Troy, and is now the Choral Director at Poughkeepsie High School. He also directs the Marist College Glee Club, is a lecturer in music there, and has directed the Euterpe Glee Club for several seasons.

The show features versatile artists of all ages, from all parts of the U. S. and those now concentrated in Woodstock. Among works of special interest are an African dancer by K. White which is lively and individual despite its subdued colors; a man in a hammock by Nicolette in quiet, warm hues that seem seasonal; several exciting, emotional expressions by Lutrecian; and some bold, provocative heads by Lucile Blanch. Also on view: a myriad of prints, drawings, and collages, in old techniques and new — all enjoyable to see and discuss.

Turnau's Back!

Turnau Opera Players opened their fourteenth summer season of opera locally at State University College in New Paltz with a performance of Puccini's "La Boheme" last night in the college's Main Auditorium.

The performance will be repeated at New Paltz tonight, Saturday, July 20 and at Woodstock, Monday, July 22.

A reception followed the opening performance, giving the audience an opportunity to meet the cast of this well known opera. "La Boheme" tells the story of tragic young love in the Parisian Latin Quarter, and its artists include Cynthia Barnett, Lorine Buffington, David Cumberland, Richard Davis, Michael Di Stefano, Jonathan Rigg, Johanna Meier and Franklin Summers.

Tickets for this production are on sale in New Paltz at Manny's Lounge, 83 Main Street, and in Woodstock at the Woodstock Playhouse.

ELECTRIC LIVING GUIDE

Cloudy and Cooler?

It usually happens at least once even in the best of summers—a snippet or maybe even a stretch of weather that's labeled "cloudy and cooler." And what do you do about it? Stay indoors instead of swim... maybe huddle into a couple of sweaters.

Well, according to a heating consultant, with the advent of complete electric home heating systems it doesn't have to be that grim anymore. "Heating isn't just a sometime thing, a winter-only affair, any more. In fact no matter what nosedives the temperature takes outside you can always step into a cozy house. And no work on your part to activate the system necessarily. Just keep the thermostats set for the temperature you prefer. The heating system goes into operation the instant the weather lets you down."

The immediate heating for all off-days in the summer is a "sort of bonus" he explains. Says that, of course, people decide on electric heating in the first place because it's proven so effective even for sprawled-out, hard-to-heat houses. And the equipment will outlast any other heating apparatus on the market, so it's economical, too.

"People invest in electric heating because they want comfort in the winter. But once they've lived with it, they appreciate the great flexibility. It's a pleasant re-education, this finding out you're the boss when you heat electrically. Not like the bad old days when the boiler called the shots, and you might say 'determined' when to operate. That meant mostly winter. Period. Off season? Maybe it was being cleaned, or the fuel supply was nil until the fall. Or if the weather changed fast back to warm, the old boiler took a while to readjust back to inactivity. And if the cold snap came on in the middle of the night? Well, forget it!"

So maybe you still can't turn on the sunshine over the beach, or the ole swimmin' hole... but there is something you can do about the weather somewhere. With electric heating you make even a nasty day "fair and warmer" indoors... with electric heat.

QUESTION BOX

Question: Do you or don't you need a duct system with electric heating? Some say yes, some say no.

Answer: That's because the answer is "yes" and "no."

There are radiant heating systems that need no duct work and they heat beautifully. And there are other systems (furnace or heat pump) that use ductwork, and they heat beautifully, also. That duct-work is then usually put to use to do an air conditioning job in hot weather. With the heat pump, the two functions are automatically there when it's installed. With the electric furnace, air conditioning is optional. The electric furnace also adapts easily to air filtration to keep rooms fresh smelling.

Question: We plan to take possession of a twelve-room house shortly and would like to add the cooling function to the electric furnace system, but dread the prospect of noise. Is there such a thing as a silent system?

Answer: This is getting down to specifics for a specific house. So talk it over with your contractor. In general terms: the cooling apparatus often coupled with electric heating these days is pretty quieted down for a modest size house. But even with a larger central unit for a larger house, it's easy on the ears. And remember if you prefer, that part of the system can be set up a certain distance from the house.

Question: We have friends with electric ceiling type heat... and it works just beautifully. We'd like the same, but do you provide for air conditioning with it? They don't have it, say they never felt the need. Is there any way we can have our ceiling and cooling, too?

Answer: There is indeed. This matter if heating and cooling your home should be like your eyeglasses; prescribed for you. Many homes with radiant heat (the ceiling or baseboards, or panel heaters) please their owners as electrically heated houses are well insulated. Others add individual cooling units according to taste.
